WHAT WELL DRESSED WOMEN WILL WEAR

BY Anna Kellenhouse

Aug 22.—The coast of Normandy is the spot at this moment where fashionable world elects to show off. War talk is supreme, but go on wearing good gowns and thinking peaceful, playing the "little" and risking gods on the big nerves, why not? At least it is amusing, interesting. One who must write finds the subject well at hand, this amazing coast. Wherever one goes there is much the same crowd; it is up of those who live on the cliffs, who fill the hotels, who are through the various fashionable resorts. The Americans are foregathered Americans, French, English, Italians, Russian; the same set of folks one sees in the Riviera in the early morning.

After a season at each place one finds the celebrities as well as their and their habits. You even know dogs—they are the shadows cast by chattering personalities.

Live for clothes, many of these, as they fit in nicely with our surroundings; they are food for good and reflection. They keep us from searching for clothes and fashion they bring them to us.

They and their vast army of men will concentrate at the races at Deauville, but the Grand Prix is run the second week in August so, as that great week, when prices as high as aeroplanes, the fashion world will gather at Etretat to see champions play tennis.

Will gather such players as Millet, in the 15-year-old world champion, Decousus, Count Salm and others. Prowess is a household word over stat on the Normandy coast is one amazingly lovely spot on the Ocean—or that bit of it that is English channel. Nestling between cliffs on long stretch of smooth sand that passes for a beach, with its old Norman houses built on narrow streets, gay little casinos, its superb golf courses, it naturally presents an alluring picture to the traveler, the season the flower-strewn villas and on perilous crags are lived in by people who use their touring cars down the coast in search of amusement.

Americans are here, many English. Our language is heard a bit more than the French, adding to the fact it is becoming more difficult each to speak French in France. French people know their own language prefer to perfect themselves in English rather than to aid in perfecting French.

In the meantime you are getting French and clothes, which are the best in the world, furniture, the Anglo-American has not changed either. As for good dressing—it is only the well-to-do and fashionable not spreading below the gilded cage as it does in America, but, thank goodness again, thanks, is unusually exact.

Matters how unimportant the inn, is sure of delectable food. The coffee is not good, but the rest is beyond compare. Etretat is always more or pretentious, and one expects good food here at the curious little hotels built on a line with the pavement; but during sunny week everything takes on a different hue. The beach, or what passes for one, is a brilliant splash of color coming from the bathing suits, the striped parasols, the sweaters, the blankets, the fisherman's hats. It is almost blinding, especially when the sun is shining on the white cliffs and the sea is so blue that it seems to have coloring matter poured into it. And there is something so intimate, so personal, about the English channel. It harbors within sight of land such a vast variety of craft that mark its surface like reflections in the human voice, moving it from the monotony of the ocean.

That plan they have over here of splashing the beach with green and white frame bath houses is most attractive. Whole families take possession for the hour of bathing. Women sit there knitting, sewing, while dogs guard the rope swing among the smooth stones.

Above on the stone terrace that runs the whole length of the place from cliff to cliff that bulges into the sea, there are groups of well-dressed women sewing, sipping coffee, flirting, posing under the huge mushrooms of gay colored cottons; and still is the veranda of the long struggling casino, where the red-coated musicians play the same old tango, maxixe and one-step that beat the air from Mexico to Manoa.

Not intruding, but giving the right background to such triviality, is the Norman town with its twelfth century church and its chapel on the cliff filled with votive offerings of those who have been saved from the sea, and with its town crier who rings a dinner bell and excitingly proclaims the fact that there will be a sale of lace at midday, when you expected nothing less than vital war news.

The town crier and the motor! His bell and its horn! Strange medley and fascinating.

THE CLOTHES THEY WEAR.

France has gone in heavily for all the Anglo-Saxon sports. It is the smart thing to do. Women wear the short skirt, the loose manish coat, tennis shoes and soft hats which a dozen years ago, or less, they would have scorned to consider. And they are admirable sportswomen, too, these products of an old civilization that taught every path but this one.

The American is startled at first by their habiliments, which are strikingly like those worn at any American resort, when one expected otherwise. The boyish look of half the smart people gathering here for the tennis week shows how deep it has gone, that desire for freedom from restraint in clothes, and how it has ousted methods that have obtained through the centuries.

One wonders how the empress of the French who used to come to this Normandy coast for summer recreation would have regarded the young women she would now see in white corduroy skirts to the knee where the shorts go in winter, half-sleeves and hats! Arbitrarily of fashion that she was, would she ever have given her consent to this spring of strenuous masculinity?

There is one thing admirable about the clothes they wear, the vivid colors they use to harmonize with the sea and sky. Sweaters (ugly word!) have arisen to such a height of fashion that the Americans are buying heavily to use them at home in the autumn.

There are many silk ribbed ones that we know full well in Norwegian blue, orange and Japanese red. And there are others which are newer—loose garments of soft cloth that go over the head like "middy" blouses, made of myrtle green and all the other colors in frequent use this summer, they fall loose from the shoulders and are held in at the hips with a six-inch band of the fabric run through deep, narrow slides. The hem is turned up on itself. Mlle. L. of the Opera Comique wears these in the mornings with her short white flannel skirt, met by high white canvas boots. She has taken up the wide sailor hat in every color and fabric. In the morning it is of white corduroy with a scarlet bow, in the afternoon white linen with an orange band, at night white or black satin with a velvet poinsettia and a flange of flesh pink tulles.

COLORFUL TOP COATS.

Next in importance to these brilliant sweaters made of silk, of wool and of cloth are admirable top coats.

It was at Deauville last August that Rowant and Chanel brought out such good looking top coats that all the world copied them, and it is not improbable that many of the styles were here for tomorrows will be exploited in the early autumn openings.

There is one kind that is made in a vivid light blue, almost sparkling, that is laid in wide gathers at the shoulders, the fullness falling well below the hips, held in with a wide band of the material which is knotted at the side or run through a buckles of itself.

The bishop sleeves are put into wide turnover cuffs to match a collar that rolls about the ears. Large white pearl buttons fasten the fronts.

With this coat goes a hat to match, made with a soft crown and a brim of moderate width that disappears in the back.

None of these new coats flare at the hem, nor do they cling. The garment of eighteen months ago that wrapped itself around the knees and ankles is rarely seen today, and the glaring Russian priest's robe that Pollet started never made much headway. The accepted shape is straight from shoulder to hem, with a wide loose belt placed below the waistline.

STILL THE LONG WAIST.

And, by the way, that waist line whom some one started on the downward path is still going down. Each woman accentuates according to her caprice or her character. On evening gowns it is often exaggerated in such fashion that the effect is too suggestive of the hazard of mouse and the mouse is not so pleasant, but on the top coats and those looms, broad shouldered workman's blouses the women wear, the straight line that accentuates is good.

It is not easy to obtain this long waist line except on an outer garment. One cannot attach it to the ordinary gown in the wardrobe, because it demands the kind of blouse or bodice that reaches over the normal waist line and has sufficient length to allow itself to be belted in at least three inches below the usual place and then demand in a kind of ruching.

FINE WHITE GOWNS.

Among all the dashing colors and new materials shown down here the fine white gowns that made their appearance for tea at the casino made a decided contrast. As they were worn by two exceptionally smart French women, took it for granted they were very correct. We knew they were pretty.

If the Oriental touches are suggestive of Algeria, these frocks were suggestive of the white sulphur springs a quarter of a century ago. They were of sheer Paris muslin trimmed with "footing" as it was then called.

The skirts were ruffled from hem to waist, short enough to show white silk stockings and broad-toed black slippers laced with black satin ribbon around the ankles. The blouses were gathered to a half low neckband finished with a tiny ruche of tulle. The long sleeves were very full and were gathered into a deep ruffle at the wrist. A new note was the twisted bracelet of tulles that accentuated the wrist line and was finished with a flaring bow at the back.

And one the frocks mind you, the waist line was exactly in the right spot and was wrapped with a band of the material tied in the exact center of the back into a fluffy bow, ends and loops of the same length.

FASHION NOTES

Roses are a decided fashion this summer, and one of them that has caused a good deal of attention is made of black net. It is sometimes worn on the waist and sometimes it is worn on the bodice for house and street wear. It is most effective when worn with a white gown.

The new hats for autumn wear are made very largely of black velvet and many of them are trimmed with silver or gold roses. There have been many predictions that metallic fabrics would come into high favor, and the roses on the new hats justify them. They are very attractive—these velvet hats with silver roses or silver binding of braid about the edge.

If you have an old lace shawl packed away in a cedar chest bring it to light. You may wear it this summer with impunity. In "rapé" fashion, with your white or other evening frocks. French women have set the fashion for this. One smart French woman wore, also, a Japanese silk shawl, fringed along the edges, made into a cape and thereby attracted much notice.

Braid as a binding is much used on the new tasse and gabardine suits and it is very effective. Probably it will receive an added impetus in the present warlike state of Europe because of its military suggestiveness.

Black velvet applied in some way to white taffeta as trimming is one of the August notes. It suggests a tendency in fashions that is to be deplored. But in its early stages this trimming idea is well worked out. One striking frock is made with a long white taffeta tunic over a white taffeta foundation which has a border formed of small squares and oblongs of black velvet. A white taffeta skirt is banded with lengthwise stripes of black velvet ribbon of various widths from waist to hem. It is an idea that any dressmaker could vary to suit her own taste.

Lace continues in favor. At many of in Europe, evening frocks made of lace flourishes abound. The ruffled skirt is especially attractive when it is developed with lace flourishes. One interesting model recently seen in Paris was made with brown lace ruffles mounted on a brown silk foundation.

Hip pockets are still a feature of some skirts. On sport skirts there are flat striped fabrics, not the Roman stripes are worn by well-dressed women this summer. A most interesting frock in the summer wardrobe of a well known woman is made of striped crepe de chine, with plain white collars and cuffs.

ENGLAND AIDS
RUSSIA IN CHINAPronouncement of Policy by Sir
Edward Grey May Wreck
His Career.

PEKING, Aug. 29.—Both regret and uneasiness seem to have been awakened, and not unnaturally, by the cabled re-

British House of Commons by the Garter Knight and Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Sir Edward Grey. Sir Edward is quoted as saying:

"If China does not sign (the proposed new Tibetan convention), but resorts to an aggressive policy the consequences must be disastrous for China. There certainly will be grave trouble on the Indian frontier, which will require Great Britain to take up the matter seriously with the government of China."

The meaning of this remarkable statement is all too obvious. Great Britain it would seem, has decided to support the Chinese policy of her ally Russia. And the Anglo-Russian entente, so far as the situation of China is concerned, is construed, not under the Garter legend, "non sicut qui mal y pense," but from the more canny interpretation of that other motto, "pro tanto quod recipimus," which an early clerk of Harrow's College once rendered, "For that which we give we expect quite as much in return." It is an interesting historical fact that the "robust baron," who first sported this quartered heraldic squared pennant was rejected as a candidate for the jewel and staff of the knights and gentlemen owning actual succession from those courtly men-at-arms who saw service under the third Edward, and his more famous son at Cracow and Poitiers, and claiming a sentimental descent from the "Round Table" of Arthur, those Grail knights of early Saxon-English traditions.

Grey's unfortunate threat suggests two separate sets of unpleasant reflections. The one is personal, the other international. The first concerns great Britain merely; the second touches at the quick fundamental principles of amicable international relations.

GREY'S PERSONALITY.

Sir Edward Grey, England's foreign secretary, is not quite so well known to Americans as doubtless are Premier Asquith, Winston Churchill or David Lloyd-George. His principal claim to knowledge among readers of American news papers has been the unquestionably brilliant and eminently useful part he played as the president and the guiding spirit of the St. James Palace peace conferences, which narrowed the limits of the Balkan embroilment, averted an European flare-up, and unquestionably helped to bring about peace between the allies and the defeated and humiliated Sublime Porte after the restlessness of the Balkan kings themselves. But in English politics Sir Edwin Grey has been a power for many years. The understanding of the gifted Earl Rosebery at the foreign office, Grey remained as a sort of an impalistic safety valve in the Radical-Liberal-Labor coalition after the retirement and death of Gladstone and Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, and the disaffection of men like the "Red Earl" Spenser and others whose liberalism was mellowed and moderated by the influence of "leage, lands and lures."

Grey has several times been suggested as the most likely successor in the leadership of the Liberals when Mr. Asquith decides to retire, has practically made up his mind to withdraw from public life as soon as he has carried through Parliament those great, far-reaching reforms which will make his administration one of the most memorable in England's annals.

VIEWS IMPORTANT.

As the standard-bearer of what might properly be called "gilded liberalism," the party at once of intellectual and economic independence, of reform tempered by scholarship and moderate judgment, Sir Edward's political views are important.

If his pronouncement of the Tibetan controversy is to be taken seriously, he is determined to revert from the policies of Gladstone and the other great Liberals of the Victorian era to those of Palmerston and the "Tempestuous Tories."

As we would say, he proposes, if Liberal England will permit him, to "yield the big stick" in brotherhood with the Muscovite, to browbeat China and to nullify solemnly-given pledges as to the reservation of the territorial "status quo" on the Oriental mainland. It is highly likely that other Liberal leaders will challenge this departure from orthodox Liberal principles of foreign relations. It is still possible that Sir Edward's "leap in the dark" may blast his political career, and exclude him from future premiership.

Threats, force, hostility are not likely to advance the British interests in China.

A false move in Tibet will destroy, and forever, England's prestige at Peking and her prosperous traffic along the Yangtze. The Liberal party might try to get along without Sir Edward Grey, as it has contrived to endure the retirement of Rosebery, Lancashire, at least, will not quietly brook actions which must recoil with boomerang force upon her cloth piece goods trade with China, her peculiarly acute interest in the living forces of the "open door."

OPEN DOOR POLICY.

In a broader and bigger sense, the statement of Grey begets emotions charged with uneasiness and with dissatisfaction. There have been reports from China, from Japan, from various European capitals and from London, too, suggesting a concerted movement on the part of certain powers to nullify the principle of the "open door," to stultify the persistent work of successive American Secretaries of State guaranteeing China's sovereignty within her own borders, and a fair field for all foreign interests and foreign nations. Countries of unquestioned authority, whose motives are beyond question, whose opportunities for inquiry and information on the spot have been considered, have issued from time to time warnings that if sufficiently strong opposition does not develop, and speedily, the land-hungry nations will again assert new rights and essay new encroachments under the cover of "spheres of influence" until the "open door" will become the dismantled gateway leading onto a blind alley of the grass-grown track to a de-

BALLET DANCERS
ORIGINATE STYLES

Most Daring Fashions Are Started in Great Spectacles on Stage.

PARIS, Aug. 29. (De la Red.) — The influence of the Russian ballet on modern fashions has been extraordinarily marked.

And small wonder.

The women's dresses in these wonderful spectacles from the first not had the merely flashy gaudiness of an ordinary stage show; they have been the creations of some of the most inventive and daring of contemporary artists.

The best known is, of course, M. Basik, who is the genius of the more exotic pieces. He is a specialist in early nineteenth-century fashions, and there are others. It is really without precedent that artists of such rank should turn their attention to the designing of clothes. M. Basik seems to have ranged over Asia, Africa, China, India, Persia, and novel designs and details, and the fashionable ladies of half Europe have not failed to take hints.

It is safe to say that during the past seven years, since the ballet was first launched in Paris, no single one of the pieces has been without some effect or another on fashion.

ARTISTIC TASTE REVERSED.

In the eighteen-eights, when fashion was also to some extent artistically inspired, "aesthetic" colors meant dim, neutral or fugitive hues—sage greens, fading yellows, and like "ethereal colors," and gave way gradually to the reds, thanks to M. Basik who has shown how the most violent, the "crudest" tones can be used. "The Hamar"—not quite one of the very finest battles, on the whole—was an astonishing demonstration on this head. The scene in the court of the Queen Christiana, Circassian queen, was a masterpiece.

In the clothes of the court ladies great squares of brilliant colors that had never met before were successfully wedded—blues, emerald greens and plum color in one place mingled triumphantly. It disposed forever of any idea that to be "aesthetic" meant the discreet, late autumn hues of Burne-Jones.

The modern predilection for barbarically beautiful but not necessarily very precious jewelry likewise comes from the ballet. Then the headdress of the peasant queen in "Sheherazade," the adoration of the Virgin without some alibi, has been freely copied.

ORIGIN OF HOBBLE SKIRT.

One of the earliest of the famous troupe's creations was "Cleopatra." To this much-applauded spectacle the world of women owed dubious gratitude and the common heartbreak that came with the beginning of the "hobble skirt."

Everyone now knows the fantastic scene of the queen's arrival swathed like a mummy in a sarcophagus, and gradually loosed by obsequious slaves from fold to fold of her diaphanous robes. She stands revealed, the tight bodice, the clinging, hemmed-in and almost beauty. It seems that the modern woman could not see the result without herself tying her knees together, regardless of the difference between the normal demands on her activities and those of the enchantress of old Egypt.

The motive of the act was revenge. He declared that inferior men had been promoted over him. He therefore plotted to destroy the ship and all on board. He ignited a heavy charge of powder while the warship was at Shizuoka.

The real case of the disaster was rigorously kept secret.

Naval authorities explained that the powder at the magazine had accidentally exploded. Meanwhile, Furuta was secretly arrested and submitted to close examination at a naval court martial. After nearly ten months' inquiries the examination was recently brought to an end and judgment of death pronounced.

STONSY, Australia, Aug. 29.—The advancing cost of living in Australia, charged in part to the machinations of the American meat trust, has caused the State government of Queensland, where the Chicago packing firms are said to have gained a foothold, to propose exercising its power of resumption over many holdings of grazing land, with a view to raising.

Noel has heretofore been the prime consideration among Australian ranchmen, but at the recent meeting of the Sheep Farmers' Association, Noel Suttor, urged the breeding of meat-producing sheep.

in which the Emperor Francis Joseph, who spent his eightieth birthday last week in the midst of the agitations and alarms of terrible war,

When Berchtold was Austrian Ambassador at St. Petersburg, Berchtold was his secretary. When Berchtold returned to Vienna to become Prime Minister in 1895, he became the Emperor Francis Joseph's ambassador to Russia. Berchtold was great favorite with the Czar until it became the Emperor Francis Joseph's duty to hand to the Czar the autograph letter from Emperor Francis Joseph, informing Russia that Austria had taken possession of the two states, Bosnia and Herzegovina, over which, since 1878, she has had a protectorate for Turkey.

The Slavs of the Balkans implored Russia to force Austria to give up her capture, but it meant war with Austria with Germany backing up her ally, and Russia was not then ready for war.

RESIGNS SOON AFTER.

Count and Countess Berchtold found St. Petersburg not very agreeable after that as a place of residence, and the Ambassador soon after resigned and returned to his own country. When Berchtold died suddenly, Berchtold was free to succeed him and carry out his plans. They had the full approval of the Emperor Francis Joseph, and they must inevitably have included plans for the war which is now engulfing Europe.

Count Berchtold is personally one of the most delightful men in Europe, and in times of peace had a host of friends in London and Paris as well as St. Petersburg, now the capitals of Austria's enemies. He was in Paris for eight months as Secretary of Embassy, and in London for four years, speaking French and English with perfect ease and adapting himself to his surroundings with great facility. Both he and Countess Berchtold are Hungarians and have the latent fascination of the race. Countess Berchtold belongs to the celebrated Csáky family, her father having been Austro-Hungarian Ambassador in London when she was a young girl.

TSAR SECRETLY AGREED.

Count Berchtold has a famous estate and castle in Moravia, which he placed at the disposal of Baron von Aehrenthal for a secret meeting with the then Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs Izvolsky, some years ago. Aehrenthal declared that the Russian Minister, speaking for the Czar at this time, promised to allow Austria to have Bosnia and Herzegovina if she wanted to set them along about 1898.

Izvolsky, after the seizure, made statements to qualify this promise, and European diplomacy understood that the agreement was that Austria was to be allowed to seize Bosnia and Herzegovina ostensibly from Turkey if Russia should be allowed to set them along the same time the Turkish port of Constanța, which she had desired for two hundred years. It seems to have been a plot between Austria, in which one, Austria, stole a march on the other and played the whole game without some effect or another on fashion.

Navy Officers No Longer Seek Fashion Leaders, Admiral Asserts.

TOKIO, Aug. 29.—The golden age of beautiful women is passing, according to Admiral Yashiro, minister of the navy, who with friendly paternalism has been observing the choice of wives which naval officers have made.

"For over 10 years," he said, "the idea has obtained in the navy that the officers were a kind of diplomat, and that their wives must be pretty and charming. The officers were always looking for pretty modernized women with a taste for fashion.

"Now, however," he observed, "Chinese women are changing. The modernized naval officers of today are looking for women who are sober in mind and healthy in body. It is probably due to the object lesson furnished by husbands taxed with prudery, but in luxurious, vain and uncontrollable wives."

Admiral Yashiro said that although the number of selfish people had increased in Japan, as witness the recent naval bribery affair, he was convinced that the people as a whole would not countenance such conduct and such an attitude toward life.

The Japanese would, he thought, return to loyalty, altruism and patriotism.

MACDONOUGH

"Cabiria," the wonderful photo-spectacle enters upon the second and final act of its phenomenal success at the Macdonough theater with its matinee this afternoon. It is doubtful if any attraction has appeared at the Macdonough in a very long time that is created wider interest and causes more discussion than this "historical" picture. It has been called by its author, the noted Italian poet and artist, Gabriele D'Annunzio. Just now when the greatest armies in the world history are engaged in a mighty clash "Cabiria" is of especial interest.

and students of ancient history regard the work highly. The time of this vast photo-drama is when Rome and Carthage were engaged in the final supremacy of the former, and was followed by the consolidation of the Roman Empire, which shortly before the Christian era probably reached the epoch of its greatness.

The fine symphony orchestra and chorus of mixed voices add greatly to the enjoyment of the entertainment in rendering music that has been expressly composed for this remarkable film-spectacle. Matinees are given every day at 2:30 o'clock.

"TOO MANY COOKS."
The announcement of the Macdonough

Theater for next Sunday is the screamily funny comedy "Too Many Cooks," which kept New York theatergoers in a delirium of laughter for one solid year. The attraction comes under the direction of William A. Brady, Ltd. Next week, for once a proverb will go wrong. "Too Many Cooks" will not spoil the broth, nor the fun, nor anything else for the matter of that, at the Macdonough. On the contrary, Frank Craven, in his own merry comedy, will cause much genuine fun.

OPHEUM

Mlle. Natalie and M. Ferrari, latest European and terpsichorean sensation, will head the bill at the Oakland Orpheum next week, presenting the classic and modern dances which have made them so famous. They are said to totally eclipse all their predecessors on the light fantastic, and to furnish one of the most delightful acts ever presented in vaudeville.

"Taming a Tartar" is a new comedy by the prolific pen of Frank Pixley. It is to be presented by Ann Tasker and her players as a prominent feature of next week's program. Mr. Pixley is one of the most famous librettists in America, known to many Americans for his operas, "The Burgomaster," "Prince of Pilsen" and others who wrote in collaboration with Gustav Lunders. In "Taming a Tartar" he has contributed one of the brightest and most delightful musical skits that vaudeville has ever enjoyed. Miss Ann Tasker who is to present the new play is a prima donna who has starred in "Madame Sherri," Harry R. Hayward and Frances Stanford, will appear in Mr. Hayward's new sketch, "The Devil Outwitted," which contains a complete story and holds attention from the outset.

For real hooray, fun and melodious singing, one would have to travel far to find the equals to the Avon Comedy Four in their farce, "The New Teacher." Every one of the quartette is a comedian and every one of them has a good singing voice. As a straight quartette, they are most entertaining, but they surpass while doing the foolish stunts that transpire in the school room. They all portray clear cut and distinctive characters of the eccentric order. They are not hampered by a plot, but go pell-mell into the affair and excite a whirl of laughter with their good natured fun.

artist responsible for the big scenic equipment. There are fifteen singing and dancing show girls in the cast and a large company of principals, including the well known George H. Ford and Jeanne Hathaway.

The story of the playlet tells of two lovers, who, on New Year's eve, visit Chinatown, while the maid-servant to the kindly, fat, old keeper of a notorious opium den. A beautiful woman of the underworld induces him to "hit the pipe" and yielding to her persuasion, he is carried away on Oriental dream-clouds to the land of the Poppies, with his terrors, The Vampire. Awakening, he sees his sweetheart among the flowers, and realizes the truth. They are married in the Cabaret Palace and as they sail away on their honeymoon out on the ocean life, Glory throws her orange blossom wreath to the defeated Vampire, and their ship sinks into the joy-lighted future.

Comedy honors of the new bill will probably go to A. O. May and Sunny Kilduff, who have a "rube" farce entitled, "The Limb of the Law." Another pleasant young person is Miss Louise de Graffenreid, who is the daughter of Ruth Gibson, a young charming actress. It is a tense little playlet called "There's Always a Way," Alla Zandoff, concert violinist, and Helen Bradford, pianist, return with new compositions. The Three Flying Kays promise a startling aerial flying return act and Keystone first-run comic motion pictures complete quite an imposing array of talent for a popular-priced vaudeville show.

OAKLAND PHOTO

A triumph in artistry is the new Lasky film, "The Call of the North," which will be seen at the Oakland theater for four days, commencing Sunday and continuing until Wednesday night, in which Robert Edeson, the star of years in big productions on the legitimate stage, makes his first appearance on the screen.

There is a prologue in which Gates Albert, the factor of an important trading post in the great Northwest, bids farewell to his wife and two small children, who are to travel with him. Young Gates had proved a hundred times, since he was born, that he could not help thinking it has been drawn from life. The story, of course, will carry a special appeal to people around the bay, because the environment is the one we know. Life is lived out by the hero in San Francisco and in our own city, Oakland. Familiar sketches greet us on every hand.

Mr. Norris proves in his story that the great adventure of life is the love of a good man and a good woman for each other and the culmination of their love in marriage, children and a home. Susan fails to meet it in poverty, and in wealth, encounters it that she can't afford. "I'm not a gift," said Sophie.

"Oh, Joe, why couldn't you go? When so many girls are just stuck to us?"

"Money," Sophie answered briefly.

Then she went on:

"Twenty-five for the ticket and ten for the chaperon, and a gown, of course, and slippers, and a wrap. Mother felt badly about it."

SOCIETY

A LAS for the San Francisco smart set! Across the bay will soon be echoing the cry of bitter resentment at the strictures passed upon it. For years the smart sets of the world have been held up for analysis, and the last analysis has been far from satisfactory to those who have dwelt within the pale of the so-called "smart sets." This time it is San Francisco's turn, and the sting of resentment will be strong since the great assignment comes from one who knows. Soon the San Francisco smart set will be ringing with it, for this same smart set is the target against which Kathleen Norris has directed the full force of a great philippine. Mrs. Norris is a Californian, born and reared across the bay her family among the best in many ways in the state. When the family fortune was swept away Mrs. Norris held at different times the position of "society editor" on two of the leading newspapers across the bay. She knows evidently whereof she writes, and the San Francisco smart set poses for fully one-third of her new book, "Saturday's Child." This will of course sweep up toward the head of the list in the line of success, since Mrs. Norris gained fame and incidentally fortune with the book called "Mother," and now considered a classic.

Of a young girl, spending some time in the heart of the smart set in San Francisco, Mrs. Norris writes:

"She had not that horror of drink that had once been hers. Everybody drank, before dinner, with dinner, after dinner. It was customary to have some of the men brighten under it, some overdo it, some remain quite sober in spite of it. Susan and Emily, like all the girls they knew, frequently ordered cocktails instead of afternoon tea, when, as it might happen, they were in the Palace or the new St. Francis. The cocktails were served in teacups, the waiter gravely passed sugar and cream with them, the little deception was immensely enjoyed by every one. Two in a cup, Martin! Emily would say, settling into her seat, and the waiter would look deferentially at Susan. The same, madam?"

"It was a different world from her old world, it used a different language, lived by another code. None of our old values held here; things we had always thought quite permissible were unforgivable sins; things at which Auntie would turn pale with horror were a quietly accepted part of every-day life. No story was too bad for the women to tell over their tea-cups."

"Susan good little women ostracized for the fact that their husbands did not appear at ease in evening dress, for their evident respect for their own butlers, or for their mere eagerness to get into society. On the other hand, she saw warmly accepted and admired the woman of very doubtful moral standards and the pretty young matron whose father had swindled a hundred thousand dollars out of the entire capital. Dishonesty of all kinds did not seem so terrible as it once had seemed. In this circle things were never called by their real names."

"The insane were beautifully cared for and safely out of sight, to disease no allusion was ever made, dishonesty was carried on in mysterious business avenues far from public inspection and public thought. All the married women Ella knew had 'crushes'—young men who lounged in every afternoon for tea and cigarettes and gossip, and filled chairs at dinner parties, and formed a background in theater box. Sometimes one or two matrons and their admirers, properly chaperoned, or in safe numbers, went off on motoring trips, and perhaps encountered, at the Del Monte or Santa Cruz hotels their own husbands, with the women that they particularly admired. Nothing was considered quite so pitiful as the wife who found this arrangement at all distressing. It's always all right," said Ella, broadly, to Susan.

ANOTHER NEW FORM.

Susan, the heroine of Mrs. Norris' story, is away on a honeymoon trip with her husband Bill.

"Bill, if I die and you marry, promise me, oh, promise that you won't bring her here!"

"No, darling, my second wife is going to choose Del Monte or Coronado!" William assured her.

"I'll bet she does, the cat!" Susan agreed gaily. "You know when Elsie arrived from Miss Emily Smith the following letter:

Rice married Jerry Phillips," she went on, in sudden recollection, "they went to Del Monte. They were both bridge fiends. Even when they were engaged every one who gave them dinners had to have cards afterwards. Well, it seems they went to Del Monte, and they moped about for a day or two, and, finally, Jerry found out that the Joe Carrs were at Santa Cruz—the Carrs play wonderful bridge. So he and Elsie went straight up there, and they played every afternoon and every night for the next two weeks—and all went to the Yosemite together, even playing on the train all the way!"

"What a damn fool class for any nation to carry!" Billy commented, mildly.

"Ah, well," Susan said, joyfully, "we'll fix them all!"

"And now of course every one in San Francisco will be wondering to what young married couple Mrs. Norris refers. For, of course, this sketch is taken from life. All the sketches are.

Mr. and Mrs. Norris are on their way to the coast; they are to spend part of the autumn here, and one wonders what will happen to Mrs.

Norris, who, as Kathleen Thompson, but Monday was the day they stopped taking people into Germany, so here we are still, and a good thing, too. We are comfortable, have good company and expect to be able to get passage on a steamer going north of Scotland, flying the Norske flag.

People here are frightfully panic-stricken, and are willing to take passage in the steerage or anywhere to get back to America.

Mrs. Easterbrook had a cabin secured on the Christiania Fjord, sailing next Wednesday, but when she was informed yesterday that some people who had taken the opposite cabin had also secured the lower berth in her cabin for a fourth member of their party she decided that rather than climb to the upper berth, or sleep on a shelf or a sofa, she would give up the cabin and wait untilly as the American ambassador advised her to wait.

We are glad now. It seems that the steamer, which ordinarily carries 700 passengers, has a booking already of 1140, and expects fifty or sixty more at Bergen.

This fjord at Christiania is all mained, and all vessels have to call to the various steps. One peculiarity of the dance is that the steps are nearly all taken on the heels, and the hands are invariably held so that the fore fingers are pointing out. This gives a very Chinese effect. In the second movement the partners come together very slowly, touch foreheads, move back, and land on their heels. It is a joy to hear that it is not at all a difficult dance to learn, in fact, much easier than the tango or the maxixe, and it is very suitable for ballroom dancing.

Another dance now rapidly gaining popularity is the Lulu-Fada, which is a courtship dance of the Brazilian Indians. A man who has recently come from Brazil saw it danced at the Castle house the other night, and he said they danced it exactly as he had seen it danced in Brazil.

There is one figure in which the against one another while the girl pushes the man back. In this she is supposed to be repelling his attempt to kiss her. In another moment they walk a few steps apart, clap their hands, come together again, and snap their fingers in each other's faces. This is naturally to show fact, it looks very pretty, the continuous snapping of hand and finger snapping having something of the same effect as the castanets in a Spanish dance.

Mr. Edward Greenway brought the Lulu-Fada from Paris and taught it to his friends at Tahoe. Of course he was not paid for it; he is not a professional, but he is exceedingly genial, which is, of course, the reason for a popularity which has never waned. Among those to whom Mr. Greenway taught the Lulu-Fada were Mrs. Frederick Kohn and her guests, the Misses Finnegan of Menlo, who are considered the best dancers in the Burlingame set. In fact, all the clever dancers at Burlingame are now experts in the Lulu-Fada.

One would like to see some of our own bright girls tripping in light fantastic measures to the music of the Ta-fao, one imagines now extremely well it might be given by such graceful dancers as the Misses Adele Scott, Pussy Creed, Dorothy and Phyllis Capwell, Barbara Bromwell, Alice Palmer, Lilla and Phyllis Lovell, Margaret Moore, Elizabeth Hogan, Jean Scapham, Dixie Everison, Bina and Margaret Mosley, Suzette Greenwood, Helen Goodall, Doris Bernemann and Etta Schrock.

And the wise ones of the older generation will encourage the dance. It makes for good cheer. We are told in the greatest book of all that "a merry heart maketh a cheerful countenance," and there is enough of joy in the world to be expressed in dancing and to make one happy and glad.

BY P. P. I. E. WOMEN.

It takes all sorts and conditions of life to make up world. A nation, like a man, "must march to the music that it hears," and while martial music echoes through the countries of Europe, there is, too, the infinitely sad note of the wail of women. Kingsley tells the story in his famous quotation:

For men must die and women must weep.

And the harbor bar be moaning!

But in our own country summer joys are over and gone. Autumn days are here, bringing the new activities of the social world.

And the announcements in regard to dancing everywhere attract attention.

The woman's board of the Panama-Pacific Exposition announces a big ball of all nations to be given as a dedicatory event in the big California building on the Exposition grounds.

It is expected that thousands will come from the many counties around the bay, and that the ball will be brilliant in the extreme.

The recent wedding of Miss Mabel Sadler, daughter of Mrs. Frank Sadler, to William Warren Ferrer Jr., at the Sadler residence in Berkeley, was a picturesque affair of last evening. The color scheme was unusual and effective. The decorations were in yellow and white, with blue and red, the colors corporate and golden glow to make a charming setting for the ceremony. The bride's attendants wore gowns of different colors and carried flowers to match their costumes. The bride wore a gown of white crepe mistletoe with two rows of yellow roses down the skirt.

The bride's maid of honor was Dorothy Philis, a bride of last year, and the bride's bridesmaids were pink taffeta and lace.

The marriage service was read by Rev. Raymond Brooks of the First Congregational church in Berkeley in the presence of seventy-five guests. Mr. and Mrs. Ferrer will make their home in Berkeley.

MISS BRADLEY ENGAGED.

Cards were sent out yesterday announcing the engagement of Miss Marion Bradley, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Marion Bradley, of East Oakland, to Hon. Bruce of East Oakland, and Roy Herbert Elliott, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Elliott of Fruitvale. The wedding will not take place until next spring.

Miss Bradley is one of the most talented of the young musicians of Oakland. She is organist of the First Presbyterian Church.

had so many friends across the bay.

But, then, nothing very serious ever happened to Gertrude Atherton, as she has said much worse things of the San Francisco smart set. She called it "stupid" for one thing. And she did not have to care, for she was a woman of much importance, and a favorite in the smart sets of the big cities abroad.

"To see ourselves as others see us... Well, the smart set across the bay will have that opportunity when it reads 'Saturday's Child.'

And that, of course, is not saying that everybody agrees with Mrs. Norris.

CLUBWOMAN SENDS

NEWS FROM EUROPE.

Among the best loved women around the bay is Mrs. Daniel Easterbrook, the popular president of the Home Club. Mrs. Easterbrook and her friend, Miss Emily Smith, went abroad last summer for an extended motor tour through Europe. During these war days very little has been heard from Mrs. Easterbrook and her many friends have been exceedingly anxious about her. Yesterday there arrived from Miss Emily Smith the following letter:

Grand Hotel, Christiania,
August 8, 1914.

My Dear "Suzette": We have often spoken of the cheerful invalid we left long, long ago in far-off Oakland. It seems longer ago, and Oakland farther off just now. We feel like prisoners of war, although Norway is undoubtedly the safest place in Europe at present.

We had planned, and had our tickets and sleepers reserved for Hamburg, to leave last Monday evening, a special pilot, and must only travel by day, as all lighthouses are darkened up the whole coast. News came yesterday, that a Norwegian ship was blown up by a mine off the Danish coast. So, for one, feel relieved to think we are not starting out just yet.

It would be bad enough to be so crowded at any time, but this crowd is made up largely of nervous, hysterical people. We are not in the least afraid, and neither of us have lost our heads. We were not expecting to leave before September 17, and have booked for passage on a steamer leaving September 4. So we will probably be home on time.

We are unable to read the Norwegian papers, but there is always one willing to translate for us. I haven't seen English print once since July 30. We have seen a man who heard there was one in town, dated August 2. Perhaps it is all the better for us—we are spared all the horrors. But yesterday some very awful things came to our ears—and on good authority. They happened when the Russians were driven out of Germany.

A great many Americans who were in Germany have lost their trunks. There are several here with only handbags.

At any rate, we are perfectly safe when the crowd thins out there.

Very sincerely yours,

EMILY A. SMITH.

That will indeed reassure the many friends of Mrs. Easterbrook and Miss Emily Smith, and when they do reach home safely, what a great-hearted welcome they will find waiting for them from us all!

NOON WEDDING.

The wedding of Miss Martha Peet and Robert L. Wing took place yesterday at noon at the home of the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Robert Wing, in Piedmont. The bride is a charming, clever Eastern girl, who has been connected with Miss Hanson's School for the past two years. Her mother, Mrs. A. G. Reed, accompanied by her brother, Mr. Edward Reed, was present at the wedding. The Wing residence was attractively decorated with greenery. Only relatives and a few close friends were present at the ceremony and weddinng breakfast.

Rev. Edward Lamb Parsons of Berkeley was the officiating clergymen. The bride was in a cloth tailor suit with a smart hat of black and white, and a corsage of orchids. There were no attendants.

GIRL DIES RIDING WITH MARRIED MAN

BOSTON, Aug. 29.—Annie Powers, a comely 19-year-old girl who worked on the Miss Telephone exchange till a few weeks ago, went for an early-morning ride to the Ferncliff Inn with Oscar J. Mansur. He was teaching her to drive.

Returning at Hawkes' Corner on the Newburyport turnpike, the car skidded, crashed over, pinned her on her face in the road, and threw Mansur into a field. Leaking gasoline tubes caught fire and the girl was burned to death beneath the hood.

Mansur fought like a maniac to save her. He himself would have escaped unhurt but for the desperate effort he made to drag the girl from beneath the car. As it was, he was terribly burned on both legs and on one side and at Maiden Hospital they have his name upon the dangerous list.

Mansur is a married man, a member of the Ferncliff Club, and the owner of three automobiles which he rents, driving one himself. He met Miss Powers several weeks ago when her fiance, John Keenan, a 21-year-old Boston law school student, hired him to take Miss Powers and Keenan for a drive.

CALLS FOR GIRL.

An informal dance was given Friday evening by Miss Edith Case, who entertained thirty of her young friends. The guests were Miss Ruth Clark, Miss Lee, Miss Nancy Goody, Miss Jane Miller, Miss Jane Price, Miss Bess Hyder, Miss Helen Poole, Miss Anna Glazier, Miss Ethel Farrel, Miss Alma Curnow, Miss Agnes Saul, Raymond and Anna Gallagher, Warren Smith, Ed. Val Lorenzo, Harry Maurice Smith, Harry Woodward, Ellis Connelly, Harold Glaeser, Herbert Orchison, Cyril Dabovich, Tom Gardner, Bud Gardner and Henry Kinsell.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED.

The engagement of Miss Ethel Harriet Kesseling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Kesseling of Alameda, was announced yesterday. The wedding will take place in September. Miss Kesseling is well known in Oakland, where she has frequently been the guest of relatives. Mr. Posey is building a residence in Piedmont Manor, where they will make their home after the wedding.

PLAN WEDDING.

The marriage of Miss Mildred Sarah Finkenstein and Julius Jack Heyman will take place Sunday, September 6, at 7 P.M. at the Knights of Pythias hall. The bridesmaids will be Miss Sarah Heyman and Miss Helen Finkenstein. The groom will be attended by Will Steinberg and Bob Finkenstein, Rabbi M. Friedlander will officiate.

VISITOR ENTERTAINS.

A. J. Baker of Seattle, who is visiting his former home in Oakland for the first time in several years, entertained a group of old friends at his residence a few days ago.

WEDDING IN THE EAST.

The marriage of Miss Anne Ryken and Philip Moholy, whose engagement was recently announced, will take place the middle of September. The honeymoon will be spent in Northern California, and later the young couple will establish their home in San Francisco, where Mr. Moholy was caught.

Almost at once Mansur revived. A little tongue of flame was growing at the rear of the car. Miss Powers after the first shock had begun a steady, shrill screaming.

Mansur shouted for help, ripped off his coat and vest and attacked the heavy car, tugging in vain at Miss Powers' body.

Miss Maude Hawkes, who lives nearby, was awakened by the shouts and screams, looked out and saw the sprouting flame. She awakened Lewis G. Hawkes.

They turned in a fire alarm. The car was now all afame and Mansur was running about, delirious from the pain of his burns.

On Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock the music history section of the Adelphi Club will hold an important business meeting at which the curator, Miss Gertrude Proll, will preside. Business concluded, the members will listen to announcements of current musical events and a program of vocal and piano numbers by Miss Florence Ringo and Miss Imogene Peay.

On Tuesday evening, September 1, a unique reception will be held at the Key Club for the purpose of becoming acquainted with the many new members.

The affair has been arranged by the book review section, and a request has been issued that those attending will appear representing books or characters

Oakland's Busy Clubwomen

With the close of vacation the women's clubs are launching into a season which promises to be divertingly strenuous and gay. After December a riot of entertaining for visitors from near, far and strange sections will engulf the strongest current of club energies and substances. But for the present, meetings are principally of a semi-social character.

An informal dance was given in honor of J. Francis Coakley by a number of his friends last Wednesday evening at his home in Grand Avenue. The affair was opened with a short program of the songs of honor. Among those who enjoyed the evening were Mr. and Mrs. James Coakley, Miss Theresa Dunleavy, Miss Ethel McVay, Miss Irene Lampert, Miss Alice McGrath, Miss Helen Sorrensen, Miss Lucy Cobb, Miss Kate McAllister, Miss Neila Wright, Miss Effie McClellan, Miss Gladys Wright, Miss Gaby Anderson, Miss Margaret Writechow, Miss Gertrude Hanly, Raymond Wheeler, Eckert Smith, James J. # Oakland at Play

CELEBRATE TOGETHER

Melrose and Allendale Athletes Contest in All Around Sport-

and Allendale playgrounds "got together" and celebrated Bantam Day at the Melrose playground on Saturday. Baseball, field-hockey, basketball and handball were the sports of the day. Baseball, the first event on the program, resulted in a victory for Allendale by the score of 15 to 15. The game was exciting from start to finish and was featured by the heavy hitting of "Tubby" Griffiths and Jim McFee for the winners and Vicenzo Puttino for the losers. While the leading stars were Vic Hansen and Donald Feely, the first baseman of the two teams. With the score 10 to 2 against them in the last of the eighth inning, Melrose, by a game spirit, helped the Santa Fe rally and scored seven runs to tie it. The Santa Fe's were the best of the bunch. The Allendale team, however, won the lead, driving nine runs across the plate.

But Jimmie Henniker was not equal to the occasion, and in the first of the ninth inning, mainly through the efforts of "Tubby" Griffiths, who tripled twice in the same inning, Allendale scored freely off his delivery, duplicating Melrose's stuns and also scoring nine runs in the one inning. In the last half of the final period of play, Melrose tried to regain the lead, but Tubby Griffiths replaced Henniker when Melrose had scored four runs and retired the side. The score:

Allendale	15	17	5
Batters — Henniker, Griffiths and Cooper; Feely and Martin; Kalunas

The second event was a field-hockey game which after 20 minutes of strenuous play finished with the score of 2 to 1 in favor of Melrose. Victor Rogers, James Fisch and Philo Ferris were the Melrose forwards that started, while Dick Brown at center-half and Vinton Dutcher at goal, starred in the "Tubbs" Griffiths, Howard Drake and Ding Bodie Jr. were Allendale's star forwards, while Don McFee at goal faced several difficult saves.

In the third event at the game of field-hockey, the Allendale players made a wonderful showing and almost beat their more experienced opponents by sheer speed and endurance. Time after time the Allendale forwards would rush the goal and the lead only to have a Melrose back on the goal keeper drive it out of danger.

The basketball game was fast and exciting, the final score being 15 to 15 in favor of Melrose. The speed of the Melrose forwards in the first half was the cause of the victory, as they rushed the Allendale team off its feet before it could get well started.

Allendale came back with a rush and went into the lead when, once more, Melrose made a brilliant rush and a beautiful field goal by Dick Brown finally decided the game. The line-ups were:

Melrose—James Fisch and Victor Rogers, forwards; Philo Ferris, center; Dick Brown and Vinton Dutcher, guards; Allendale—"Tubbs" Griffiths and Claude Henniker, forwards; Howard Drake, center; Melvin Hansen and Donald McFee.

The handball tournament resulted in a victory for Melrose, Albert Kalning defeating Leo Mack in three out of five games: 21-19, 18-21, 21-21, 21-17, 21-20. The two players are ten-year-olds and made many measures about four feet six inches in height. They are about as evenly matched as one could imagine a pair of youngsters to be.

Poplar Playground Will Observe Admission Day

Admission Day at Poplar playground, situated at Thirty-second and Peralta streets, will be observed by a program of games and races suited as far as possible to be engaged in by the older members of the community who are at work and unable to enjoy the advantages of the playground during the everyday hours of the grounds. The morning is to be occupied by a baseball game for junior working boys and the married and single men are to meet on the diamond in the afternoon.

John Marsh is leading the single men and works them out regularly. His line-up is as follows: Bohman, lf; Rogers, 2b; Thiel, 3b; J. Hanush, c, captain and manager; Charroux, r; A. Hanush, ss; Hanning, 2b; Kamula, rf; Zail, p; Viere, substitute.

Mr. Nelson, who captains the married men, is busy recruiting the best of the benefits.

In the afternoon there will be races and games for the younger boys, and a flag-raising ceremony at 1 o'clock.

MIDGETS CROSS BATS

Roy Johnson, Bushrod Park Midgets put a crimp on the baseball ambitions of the Santa Fe Juniors last Saturday, when they beat them to the tune of 10 to 7. Johnson pitched a no-hit game until the last of the ninth inning, when the Santa Fe's rallied and scored seven runs and five hits. The same teams play a return match this Saturday, and it is sure to be a hummer. The Santa Fe's put up a classy appearance in their new suits and they look to be a team of coming champions.

Interclass Basketball Is Inaugurated at Prescott

Interclass basketball was inaugurated in the Prescott School, when the eighth grade defeated the seventh grade by 23 to 10 in a game played Wednesday on Prescott playground. Spica and accuracy in basket throwing combined with close guarding won the victory for the upper class men. The losers were entitled to better than a shut-out, but lost it on their inaccuracy at the goals. Their passing was also erratic. The heaviest scoring was done by W. Cardona and Tracy, these men being responsible for seven and five field baskets, respectively.

"Piggy" Mederos, although far lighter in weight to his team-mates, was a tireless worker, up a fast game and several times figured in pretty passing bouts which resulted in goals. Passur at guard was ubiquitously aggressive, and nothing seemed to get past him. For the losers, Turner and Peters starred, showing a good fighting spirit that was stranger to the word "quit." The line-ups follow:

Seventh grade—Forwards, Landon and Turner, center, Peters, guards, Medo and Larson.

The schedule of the remaining games is as follows:

Fridays, August 28, Fifth and Sixth; Monday, August 31, Fifth and Seventh; Wednesday, September 2, Sixth and Eighth; Friday, September 5, Sixth and Eighth; Monday, September 8, Fifth and Eighth.

Garfield School Gives Performance for Benefit

A benefit performance for the purpose of raising funds with which to provide basketball suits for its team was the offering at the Garfield school Monday evening. The affair, which was under the direction of Miss Ruth Findlay and Stanley McFadden, supervisors of the Garfield playground, scored a decided success and a neat sum was raised for the object in view. The performance was given in the assembly room of the Garfield school.

Prescott Reopens With Fine Program of Events

Two big ball games and a program of dancing, games and races marked the reopening of the re-opening of Prescott playground last Saturday. The races varied in their scope from the conventional 50-yard dash to speed contests in the consumption of watermelons and pies, and both were witnessed with evident appreciation by a large crowd of young persons and old.

The morning game was played between the Prescott Midgets and the Century Club team, and the home team came out of a seven-inning encounter second best, the final score being 11 to 5 with the Century boys on the long end. The Prescott aggregation secured a three-run lead in the initial frame, but the Century lads evened matters up in the second and forged to the front with three more runs in the third. The home team could not score again until the seventh inning, where they got two more. Their opponents scored four runs in the same inning. Tony Scorzafava was very effective on the mound for the visitors, but the bats were baring the Prescott boys at his mercy throughout the game.

Brother "Mickie" appeared on the mound for the opposing team and did his share to uphold the baseball fame of the house of Scorzafava, although his work did not measure up to that of his brother, nor was his support as great.

The home team could not score again until the seventh inning, where they got two more. Their opponents scored four runs in the same inning. Tony Scorzafava was very effective on the mound for the visitors, but the bats were baring the Prescott boys at his mercy throughout the game.

Brother "Mickie" appeared on the mound for the opposing team and did his share to uphold the baseball fame of the house of Scorzafava, although his work did not measure up to that of his brother, nor was his support as great.

The afternoon game was played between the Prescott Junior team and Porter's Independents, was won by the Prescott boys by the score of 10 to 4. A remarkable one-handed catch of a hard hit right-fielder by Schaeffer opened the chapter of the afternoon. F. Cardona was a victim in the box for Prescott, striking out three men in a row in the last inning.

Lemos at shortstop and Martin at third were stellar performers for the acolytes, while Porter as catcher and Mead at third for the Independents did much to uphold the honor of the losing side. The line-ups follow:

Prescott—Ingram, ss; Starr, b; Ian, c; M. Scorzafava, p; Recelburg, 3b; Whitley, 2b; Fernandez, v; T. Mederos, rf; Pasquini, cf.

MOSSWOOD BASKETBALL TEAM DEFEATS LAURELS

Mosswood playground recently organized a 10-pound basketball team won their first game from the Laurel team of Piedmont by a score of 29 to 16. The Laurel team failed to score until the first half, but the Mosswood boys took a spurt in the second period of play and easily cinched the game. Hermele was the heaviest scorer of the contest, securing seven field goals and one penalty throw. Robertson and Harrington each accounted for six points by ringing the basket for three field goals. Doves of the Laurel scored the first six points and Mann was very effective on the foul throws, finding the basket with four penalty throws. The line-ups were:

Mosswood—Wahlberg and Acorn Campsites, Fielder's Gloves, Punching Bags, Skates, Flashlights, Jerseys, Boxing Gloves, .22 Rifles, Shotguns.

Laurels—Dove and Mann, forwards; Duncan, center; Travers and Bowes, backs.

LAUREL'S ENJOY PICNIC.

The Little Blue Birds of Park Boulevard playground went on a picnic to Diamond canyon on Saturday. This club includes little girls from 6 to 10 years of age and is in charge of Miss Shirling.

WATER FAMINE PINCHES.

The senior baseball teams of the Poplar and Mosswood playgrounds will meet in a final championship game at Mosswood park on Saturday. Owing to a misunderstanding between the managers of the opposing teams, the final game has been delayed for some time. All competing teams have been eliminated except the Poplar and Mosswood teams and the outcome of Saturday's game will decide the senior baseball championship of the Oakland playgrounds. The Poplar men are eager for the fray and feel confident that they have the superior team.

Mosswood Intermediate Wins Baseball Contest

The intermediate baseball team of the Poplar playground lost to a team of the same class from Mosswood by the score of 4-2 last Saturday. Both teams played good ball and the ninth inning showed a score of four up. Pitcher Shippe of Poplar, however, grew exasperated at his support in the tenth inning and threw down his glove with the bases full, allowing three runs to slip quietly over the home plate. Otherwise, Shippe pitched a good game, having overcome a lead of three runs allowed by O'Connell who opened the game for Poplar. The combination of fast ball and good sportsmanship characterized the work of the Mosswood team throughout the game. The teams lined up as follows:

Poplar Playground—O'Connell, Shippe, p; Sheppard, c; Copeland, 1b; Claudio, 2b; Silva, 3b; Anderson, ss; Catch, rt; Shippe, cf; Clarke, lf.

Reed, c; Hermle, 1b; Reardon, 2b; Sinclair, 3b; Shaw, ss; Tonsecco, rt; Robert, cf; McCheaney, lf.

POPLAR BASEBALL TEAM AWARDED CHAMPIONSHIP

The championship medals for the junior baseball championship of the Oakland playground department have been awarded to the members of the team representing the Poplar playground. Poplar won the championship of the playground west of Lake Merritt, and then, by defeating the Allendale team, holders of the east of the lake title, gave the Poplar team the championship of the city. The following men are to receive medals:

WIN MIDNIGHT GAME.

A game in the Mosswood Park Midnight baseball league resulted in a victory for the team representing the Ambrose Tailors over the aggregation piloted by Emmet Hogan. Nine to four was the final score and the following men held places on the competing teams:

Ambrose Tailors—Powers, Bauer, Pease, Baldwin, Turner, Bendelick, Kraft, Merleman, Starswick and Lewis.

Hogan's Prides—Williams, c; F. Hamby, c; W. Mitchel, 1b; Hogan, ss; H. Hamby, p; McElrath, 1b; Jones, ss; Martin, 3b; "Dutch" Rishel, D. Hones.

THE MILE HIGH CITY OF AMERICA

Castle of Montezuma and Colony of Cliff Dwellings Visited on Trip

(By PROF. J. C. GILSON, Scientist, Former County Superintendent of Schools and Principal of Longfellow Public School)

PRESCOTT, the county seat of Yavapai county, is pleasantly situated at an elevation of a little more than a mile above sea level and is denominated the Mile-High City, or Roof of America.

The climate is delightful and hence it lures many Arizonans from the hot zone during the summer and health-seekers from different parts of the United States at all times to share its salubrity and enjoy its beautiful scenery.

It has a population of 6000. Its public and high schools rank with the best in the United States. Yav-a-pai was the name given by the Apache Indians to all of Northern Arizona.

It literally means the mountain country, being derived from "vava," the hills, and "pai," a corruption of the Spanish noun "water."

From the earliest days this section has been renowned for the enormous wealth in minerals.

Fifty years ago the first adventurous whites stole into the mountains that were then the lair of the Apaches, the most savage Indians on the American continent.

Many of the seekers of gold never came back. A few returned from the rich placers so laden with gold that the cupidity of thousands was aroused. Following in the wake of these multitudes flocked to the treasure fields facing death at the hands of the murderous Apaches.

Yavapai county is a region of mountains and valleys. The chief industries are mining, agriculture and stock raising. It is rich in mineral veins of gold, silver and copper.

The Congress is one of the deepest gold mines in the United States and has produced more than $12,000,000 in gold.

Already there are 1650 patented mines in this county. The climatic conditions are specially favorable to mining, being neither too hot nor too cold.

The county as a whole is sparsely populated and there are good opportunities for men of energy and capital.

On our arrival at Prescott I at once repaired to the room of the Chamber of Commerce, where I met Mr. Malcolm Fraser, its secretary, with whom I had had correspondence.

I learned that he was formerly an Oakland boy and had received his education in its public schools. Moreover, that he was a pupil in the Lincoln School when I was the city superintendent.

Not only Prescott, but the entire state of Arizona owes him a deep debt of gratitude for his enthusiastic and untiring zeal in behalf of every movement conducive to the general welfare. His friends are legion. And well they may be, for he is the acme of courtesy and helpfulness to all. He is likewise a man of wonderful energy and rare executive ability; hence things go when he takes hold.

In the afternoon we took an auto ride over a part of the proposed Prescott - Phoenix State Highway. This road when finished will cost about $1,000,000.

VAST PANORAMIC VIEW.

The course of this road runs over the Bradshaw Mountains, veritably over the roof of America. It is one of the most beautiful of American mountain roads. It has many turns, each providing new vista of de-lightful scenery.

At the turn above Prescott we obtain a view of the city, Granite Mountains, the San Francisco Peaks, 85 miles distant, and a vast panoramic view of less conspicuous objects.

Leaving Prescott the next morning at 5 a.m. in an auto as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fraser, we set forth to visit some of the most interesting places.

Our itinerary led us through Verde Valley and to Camp Verde, 48 miles from Prescott.

Here we stopped for breakfast. Camp Verde was known in the early history of Arizona as Camp Sandy, of which Captain Charles Knobell wrote a portion of his novels, notably "The Colonel's Daughter."

Verde Valley, so called on account of its perennial greenness comprises about 50,000 acres, only 10,000 of which are under cultivation.

The valley is noted for its deciduous fruits. Its apples, pears, peaches and plums have taken first prizes wherever exhibited.

At the St. Louis World's Fair an orchard in this valley was awarded the gold medal for the best display of apples.

The farms lie along the Verde river, which furnishes about one-third of all irrigation waters used in the Salt River valley under the celebrated Roosevelt project.

The farmers of the Verde valley utilize private ditches, of which there are upward of 70.

We visited Montezuma's Castle and the colony of cliff dwellings on Beaver creek, three miles northwest of Camp Verde. This well preserved and wonderful village perched 110 feet above the bed of the creek is in one of the beetling limestone cliffs which abound in this picturesque region.

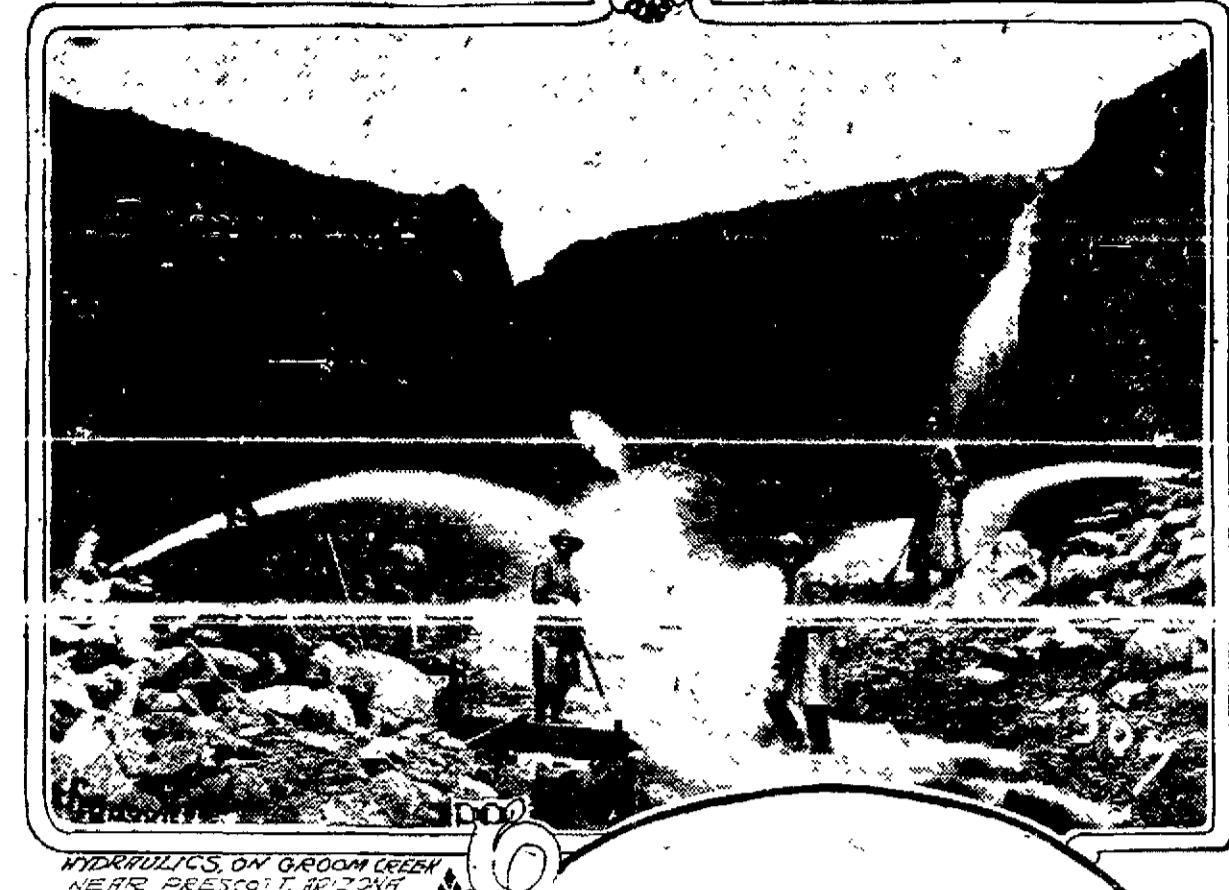

When the dwellings were established or how long inhabited is a matter of speculation. Ellis Meredith says these ruins were old when the Crusaders set forth for Jerusalem. A great many mummies of undersized adults have been found in the chambers of the cliffs surrounding the Montezuma Castle.

Scientists say that these former inhabitants of a prehistoric era were short in stature and the statement is borne out by the fact that the ceiling are low and the rooms small.

Testes of fabric found indicate that these people understood textile manufacture. Seeds of corn and other cereals have been discovered.

Montezuma's Castle, a cliff dwelling of magnificent proportions, is reached by a series of ladders fastened at the base of the cliff and at several places on the shelving rocks. We climbed up three of the ladders reaching three different rock projections, but were unable to enter the pre-historic habitation because some vandals had thrown down and broken the fourth ladder.

As a whole, the Castle is in a good state of preservation, owing to the fact that the United States Government has done a little mending and placed iron retaining rods to prevent the walls from falling.

MONTEZUMA'S CASTLE.

To give a better understanding of the Castle, I should state that the cliff on which it is built has a deep high and wide recess caused evidently by the disintegration of the softer parts of the rock; hence to make the dwelling it was only necessary to wall in the front and sides.

Stones from the bottom of the canyon were laboriously carried up to the proper shelf of the cliff and carefully laid in a hard mud cement, which has withstood the attacks of the elements for many centuries.

We next proceed to visit Montezuma's Well, a mile away. This hole in the earth is near the center of a small limestone mesa and the brink of the well being nearly on a level with the surface of the surrounding ground one comes across the well most unexpectedly.

The well and the land surrounding it are the property of a Mr. Back, who has had the area enclosed and charges a fee of 50 cents for each visitor.

A winding path leads down to the water, which is about 160 feet below the rim.

The well is fed by subterranean waters highly charged with lime. The water is of a dark green color and in its deepest part is 1500 feet.

The well is almost perfectly circular, 750 feet from rim to rim, and 600 feet in diameter across the water area.

The inside walls of the well are surrounded by cliff dwellings. There are also several caves penetrating the walls and running through the hill or butte mesa in which the well is located. One of these is over 300 feet long and contains a spring of living water.

A large head of water runs out of the side of the wall into Beaver Creek and provides water for irrigating some 400 acres of the adjacent land.

Prehistoric ditches whose bottoms and sides are solid limestone six inches in thickness can be traced for miles. The limestone in the water lined the ditches by constant flow until they became stone coated.

One of the largest of the ancient ditches is four feet deep and two feet wide.

The day being very warm, Mr.

Fraser and I concluded that we would like to take a swim in the well, but we had no bathing suits along. So to lessen our embarrassment we shoed the ladies of the party into

SHAPED LITERARY PERISH.

But Jeanie Deane, Caleb Pederesen, and a host of simple characters whom he had chosen from among the very poorest of his own folks, and who he has made immortal, rise up and challenge this estimate of his own achievement.

Edward Waverley is not, as a character, very romantic or heroic. He is, in fact, a plain man wedged into and tangled up in the most romantic episode in modern history. This English gentleman, however, moves along like the steam of the afternoon's sun through forest trees, among the tragic and pathetic of Prince Charlie and his company.

For this task he had at his command a first-hand knowledge of both Highlands and Lowlands, and from the earliest days an intimate acquaintance with all ranks of his countrymen, from the Scottish peer to the Scottish plowman. It is true that he fell by the way, but he seemed to find in Jane Austin's writing an outside touch which renders ordinary commonplace things and characters interesting, from the truth of the description and the sentiment."

WHAT SCOTT CLASSIC CENTURY DID

all were gone. If any honor remained?

The stern reality of the structure broke his strength and snuffed the last match that Scotland knew. After his death, however, his "situations were fully met," and he gave till the resurrection, a straight man, noble and true, without reproof of any person.

Love country was in reality very much Sir Walter's rebellion. Hence he could not write out of his heart's deepest fear, with reflecting passionately the life-story of his race. Though this is special to the author of his verse, it was also not true in regard to his novels.

He had the actual purpose of "writing" itself. The purpose of the whole was, of course, Maria Edgeworth, I felt," says he. "That something might be attempted for my own country of the same kind with that which she had so fortunately achieved for Ireland."

For this task he had at his command a first-hand knowledge of both Highlands and Lowlands, and from the earliest days an intimate acquaintance with all ranks of his countrymen, from the Scottish peer to the Scottish plowman. It is true that he fell by the way, but he seemed to find in Jane Austin's writing an outside touch which renders ordinary

There he made men see the great, simplesminded fidelity of the chief to his prince, and of the clergymen to his chief, in a way exceeding anything that the world knew. Then Scott no man better understood the heart-beat of chivalry, the irresistible call of the blood, and the result of the love out of which he wrote his immortal and epoch-making novel is that it remains a gallery of humanity, of inexhaustible living interest, a masterpiece of character embodiment.

The mystery of his achievement depends on the mass of work which he did in his own name, but, in the same year, including his edition of "Ælfric's Lives of Saints," in nineteen volumes, his "Encyclopædia Britannica," treatises on Cavalry and Dragoon, and Drama, his "History of Border Antiquities"; while, also, and to his duties in court, and to his miscellaneous briefs, at the same time, he kept an office door at Bedford, where amid a host of antiquaries, he studied the antiquities of his country.

He turned, therefore, to the prose novel. But as his himself suggests, he might in this venture have been "led into the literary opposition which he had already secured. After success was attained, however, he was soon in search of a new field of adventure.

He turned, however, to the prose novel.

GOSSIP FROM SAN FRANCISCO WEEKLIES

Poniatowski Scion Joins the Army

From Paris comes the news that the eldest son of the Poniatowskis has joined the French army, and has been sent to the front. Those who recall the day when "Beth" Sperry gave her hand to Prince Poniatowski find it difficult to visualize that she has a son old enough to answer to the call to arms, and to offer to go down to the death, if necessary, for his adopted France. When Prince Poniatowski first appeared in San Francisco about twenty-five years ago, he created something of a sensation in the smart set. In those days we were not much trained to a fondness for titled nobles as we are now. Moreover, it was understood at the outset that Poniatowski was in search of an American bride, and the soothsayers and prophets began to audit the accounts of our heiresses to see which one could Incidentally, highly colored stories of the Prince flourished in this imaginative soil. One story was to the effect that his title was a very battered affair at best, and could not be restored with any amount of good American money. Another was that his father ran a magnificent gambling house in Vienna and that what the Poniatowski family really needed was not money, but respectability, with which

One point society agreed on—and that was that he really was a very charming man, and even if his title was not so blantly worthwhile, as some of the fuzzer affairs reported from England, it was a very nice asset for so fascinating a man. Of course no one expected the heiress who married him to be happy. It was not done in the best literature of that day any more than in the best sellers of this.

When the announcement of "Beth" Sperry's engagement was made it created a large ripple of excitement. In the first place, she was not one of the heiresses on the matchmakers' lists—in fact she was not an heiress at all, and related to money in bulk only through the recent marriage of her sister to Will Crocker. She had family position that was as good as anything grown in California, and she was a very charming and amiable girl, and altogether the matchmakers found her as good an excuse as any for crocodile tears, which they wept all over the pictures they painted of her marital unhappiness. He would beat her, of course—the Poles are such masterful men! They were not so masterful. Well, then, he would beat her because the Poles were so temperamental! Having settled the form his exercise would take during married life, the kind friends of the family proceeded to divest them of even the meager comforts of life. They would suffer from cruel poverty after a patient but sorely-tried brother-in-law had tired of coming to the rescue. At last the divorce court Enter Princess "Beth" looking very sad, but pale and noble, and with that magnificent dignity that comes only to those who have worn a title.

What really happened was a genuine surprise to every one. The Prince looked around him, and evidently the sight of the T. E. M. did not repulse him. To be sure, that was many years ago and the T. E. M. was then so tired as he is now! But at any rate, the women complained just as much about husband's absorption in his business. Every one expected that the Prince would at least remain a perfect specimen of the European—a developed drawing-room man. Instead of that, he fell right into the rut of business and pulled the rut after him, and there he remained until the family went to Europe to live a few years ago. When he was not developing a scheme for electric power, or oil products, or a lumber company, or a tannery, or a salmon cannery, or a stock farm; he was willing to go through the motions of social affairs. In the course of years some of these schemes went through, and others were thrown into the discard of the imagination. Some of them made money for the Prince and his backers, and others were all to the other side of the ledger. At one time, just before the Poniatowskis went to Paris to live, it was rumored that Will Crocker had refused to put any more money of his into enterprises that were evolved by the busy business brain of the Prince.

The Poniatowskis live in very good style in Paris, so it must be admitted that some of the Prince's many ventures must have found the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. The Princess "Beth" is wrapped up in her sons, and the news that the eldest has gone to battle has stirred a personal thrill of pain to her friends here, who feel the barbarous cruelty of the war even more keenly when the toll that it exacts strikes a family known and loved out here—News Letter.

Women Golfists at Del Monte

The golf tournament at Del Monte is just around the corner, and the women who play a good game but do not work at it every minute of the time, are looking up their form and getting ready to exhibit their skill. Mrs. Fred McNear is one of those who has been putting in a great deal of time on the links, of late. It has always "peeped" Mrs. McNear, who excels in most everything that she does, that she has never been able to attain any real class as a golf player. Her friends encourage her with the reminder that she has never really gone at it very hard, and that next year she is doing more work. Mrs. Walter Martin and Mrs. Malcolm Whitman are two of the inspired young matrons who play golf so well that with the consistent practice that those who take golf as a religion put into it, they could easily become golfists to con-of practice, they are not to be despised. Miss Chesborough, Miss Alice Hager and the other young women who practice strenuously, are expected to take part in the tournament, which has entrants approaching the 250 mark.

A great many people, who realize that their game is not in the near championship class, like to enter a tournament of this sort. It is like taking an examination in school and testing out what way what one really can do under the circumstances. The fact that the tournament is so near has stimulated practice games, and the links hereabouts are crowded from morning until the fog swathes in impenetrable haze.

Such a great number of entrants for the tournament means, of course, that the hotel will be crowded with the friends and families of the combatants, and there is no doubt about the success of the meet for the psychology of a big crowd, a gay hotel filled with people always makes for a stimulating atmosphere. To be sure, those who take the games seriously will try to keep in training and avoid late hours, dancing, midnight eats and drinks, and the "rocky" feeling that is sure to show in the game. But fortunately for the gaiety of the state, there are not enough people who take the game so seriously that they give an air of severe, abstemious, training quarters to the place. Those who want to train do so, but the majority take a chance on the game, and the pleasure of life, and everyone is happy and satisfied—News Letter

Plenty of Press Agents Abroad

In these piping times of politics, the pernicious and abominable activity of the press agent annoys. He is the mosquito of politics, and he comes in swarms infesting every newspaper office in the land, adding his song to the pestiferous tribe of boosters whom we have always with us. As to these, the editor of the Chico Record makes his appeal to the people who flood his office with envelopes branded in heavy black type "news" to please cut down the allotment. The conspicuous announcement on the envelope only indicates that there is a package of free advertising within, which these publicists hope will get into the paper because the envelope was branded "news." For the consolation we express the hope that the Watsonville apple show is a grand success; that the Sebastopol apple show gets a liberal play; that Oakland's Industrial Commission does not run out of something to talk about at home; that the Panama-Pacific Exposition will be opened on time; that the Lincoln Highway will be built before the present over-worked project must pass on to the grave beyond over another road; that all of the theatrical managers will make real stars out of their present much-boasted prospects; and that the United States Department of Agriculture will spend more money at the National Plant Introduction Garden and less for printing and mailing their tons of reports of subjects of interest to us all—News Letter.

England's Great Soldier, Sir John French

The appointment of Sir John French to command of the British army in France was no surprise, I am told, to persons well-informed in military matters. Several years ago when General French was at the bottom of the full Generals' list he was appointed Inspector-General to the Forces, and the appointment caused a good deal of comment at the time as it was thought that friction would be the result since in all probability the several Commanders-In-Chief scattered over the Islands thought themselves competent to inspect the units under them. However, the great ability of General French was universally recognized, and it was predicted that he would command in the next war, notwithstanding the fact that it is unusual for a cavalryman to reach the top. Most of the British commanders, like Wellington, Hill Hardinge, Colic Campbell, Alrey, Sandhurst and Woolseley—have been infantrymen, whilst Napier, Roberts and Kitchener have belonged to the so-called scientific service. The Duke of Cambridge almost alone belonged to the cavalry branch. General French joined the cavalry in 1874 and served in the Sudan campaign. When the South African war broke out he was sent to command the cavalry division, but it was some time before he was able to fulfill that role. He found himself in Ladysmith without his division, and while there commanded the troops in the highly successful battle of Elasdale. Leaving Ladysmith just before the siege, he went to Cape Colony, and with a few troops succeeded brilliantly in keeping the Boers occupied. His great chance came when Lord Roberts began to move. He at last got hold of a cavalry division with which he reached Kimberley, and performed many brilliant services. Subsequently he held an independent command operating in Cape Colony, and never during the war was he guilty of any errors. He proved himself a man of iron nerve and composure. It is said of him that when things went wrong as they occasionally do in wartime, General French remained cool while others were tearing their hair. Of late years he has concentrated all his attention on war preparation.—Town Talk

Whipple recently discovered a horned toad in the possession of a crew of boys, purchased it from them, and decided to give it liberty in its natural element. On their way home at noon, Whipple, and the boys, placing the paper bag containing the toad on a bench, were sitting on a chair, remarking to the porter: "Don't let anybody sit on my lunch." But while Whipple was being "dolled up" by the barber and the porter, his toadship decided to go on an exploring expedition, and the paper bag moved slowly, with a peculiar scraping sound. Whipple winked at the barber as the porter's eyes turned slowly in the direction of the paper bag. Presently the crumpled up top of the bag began to open as Mr. Toad sought his shop. One fleeting glimpse of the huge and ferocious-looking toad was sufficient for the porter. Even Whipple's plea to have him come back and help catch the escaped animal did not slacken his speed. The porter had not returned to the city, according to last accounts.—News Letter

Do Loud Laughs Bespeak Mind?

The Grove Play is as dead as the Dodo, and the Bohemians long ago in these columns that the Grove Play had been overtaken. The boundary line between the Sublime and the Ridiculous should always be watched with the utmost care by the playwrights and ordinary poets, who aspire to write their names in blaze of glory amid the stars.

A foul fiend, armed with the awful club of ridicule lies in wait for people who encourage her with the reminder that she has never really gone at it very hard, and that next year she is doing more work.

Not that I wish for one moment to compare the gifted dramatic and musicals of the finest Bohemian Club on Earth to any kind of a bug. Heaven forbid! I merely wish, by homely metaphor, to emphasize the fact that we should never make ourselves laughing-stocks for the multitude.

Carmel, the Strange City of the Pacific

What a community is Carmel! Is there a stranger place in the United States? Life there is compact of comedy and tragedy. Events go to extremes there. They are sometimes ridiculous, sometimes terrible. One day Carmel makes us smile. Another day it transfixes us with horror.

It gives us pause, does this colony of artists, dilettanti and poseurs. One wonders uneasily how much accident is to blame for what happens there, and to what extent the Carmelites themselves plant the seeds of their troubles. Wickedness rubs elbows with good all over this sad world, and the deadly sins are forever crowding the virtues; but the mixture of good and evil seems quintessentially concentrated at Carmel. Does Carmel need the ministrations of an exorcist? What is the matter with the place?

Smooth Workings of Publicity Mill

The fact that the London Daily "Mail" and the Sydney, Australia, "Mail" have carried big pictorial layouts of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, during the last fortnight, rather goes to show that our great Exposition is getting a splendid Publicity Exploitation.

No exposition in the whole world's history has received such a "round-the-world" attention from newspapers, magazines and journals of all sorts and character as the one at Harbor View.

George Hough Perry, director of exploitation, when asked for an outline of work planned and results accomplished, said:

"Naturally, the great work at the beginning was to establish an organization, the operation of which would prove automatic. As soon as the organization was perfected, the first piece of work done was the circularization of 15,000 news-with a population of 1000 and over. The circular recited that the Panama-Pacific International Exposition was a national enterprise in which the entire public was interested; that the particular newspaper receiving the circular would receive the best copy that could be written in regard to the Exposition, and it was requested that this copy be treated entirely on its editorial policy. No promises of paid advertising to follow were made."

Along with the circular was sent a card, which when returned was placed on file at the Exposition's news bureau's records. Out of the 15,000 cards sent out 11,000 were returned.

The responses showed only about 20 editors who said that they would not accept any of the matter sent them for publication. A few of these letters were marked: "Waste Basket Feed Not Wanted."

It is estimated that about 2,500,000 words have been clicked off on the typewriters in the publicity bureau. This copy has been sent all over the country.

This is an extraordinary record and can only be understood when the character of the Exposition is taken into account.

The press and the public have come to believe in the Exposition as a real national event and has not treated the publicity matter furnished as press-agency stuff.

"There are fifty-two men and women employed in the publicity bureau of the Exposition," said Mr. Perry. "Twenty-one thousand publications are checked in their checking department. The mail bags that contain these various periodicals and newspapers represent a greater volume than goes into any organization, publicity or advertising, in this country.

"There are twelve regular writers kept busy every day, and a corps of special writers who deal only with special subjects. The regular men are on salaries, the special men paid according to the particular story they are commissioned to write.

HOLD YOUR HANDS GRACEFULLY

Sprawl your hands out over your knees and you'll make them look big and ugly.

Stand with your arms hanging limp, lax and expressionless with palms of hands turned outward and you will look idiotic.

Stand with your fists clenched or with motionless hands vitrified with grim determination as if you were hanging to a life line and you'll look stiff and awkward.

Constantly fumble with your beads, keep clasping and unclasping your purse and engage in idle drumming with your fingers upon the nearest object and you advertise lack of poise and breeding.

Fidget with your hair, or mouth, or any part of your face and you make your audience most uncomfortable.

Stand with your arms akimbo and vulgarity and coarseness is the effect produced.

Stand with one hand folded across the other on one side and you'll look the part of the "slinker slouch."

Tight clutch and you'll look matronly.

Study your hand gestures before a mirror and see how absurd you make yourself look when your hands have no control or response.

Study how to gracefully give and take a book, a flower, a glass of water, or a cup of tea.

AN UGLY POSITION OF THE HANDS AND ONE FREQUENTLY SEEN

(Copyright: 1914: By Lillian Russell.)

FEW women know what to do with their hands. When long skirts were worn holding up the skirt solved the problem, for one hand at least, but now that skirts are short a woman's hands hang heavily upon her. We have no pocket to put them in nor have the majority of us been taught from childhood how to hold our hands. The result is various ugly and unbecoming ways of placing the hands. In the orient women are taught from infancy to avoid ungraceful gestures with the hands. Graceful gestures of the hands is of as great importance there as a graceful carriage. Study the photograph on this page and profit thereby.

Gracefulness, however, is not the only charm your hands must possess. They must show care and cleanliness. Dirty nails or rough, red skin would take every last particle of grace out of a graceful gesture. If your hands are given daily care they will not become red and rough. Many people give their hands careless treatment. After washing your hands be sure to rinse and dry them thoroughly. Hands that are half dried will become rough and red, especially when one goes into the open air. Many people think nothing of putting their hands into hot water with strong soap or strong cleaning powder.

Protect your hands as much as possible. When doing housework protect your hands with gloves. Rubber gloves should be worn when the hands are in water, and loose fitting kid or cloth gloves when doing other work. If your hands become stained, rub them with lemon juice or alcohol to remove the stains. Dry mustard rubbed on your hands will remove disagreeable odors.

At night before retiring your hands should be given as careful treatment as the face and neck. Scrub them good with a brush and pure soap and warm water.

If your hands are rough, rub a good cold cream, olive oil, or almond oil on them, then put on a loose fitting pair of kid or cloth gloves. This will soften your hands and keep them from becoming dry and chapped.

A splendid hand whitening formula to use on the hands after washing is fifteen grains of powdered borax, fifteen grains of common table salt, one-half dram of spirits of ammonia, one gram of oil of orange, two ounces of glycerin, and six ounces of alcohol.

Any woman can care for her own nails who has ten minutes to spare upon them daily and a half an hour once a week. For daily care of the hands, I use a water and ten drops of peroxide of hydrogen. I wet my orange wood stick, which has been wrapped about the foot with absorbent cotton, and with it clean my nails and gently push back the skin from them. Every day a little polish, either with the buffer or with the gommé of my hand, does the rest. Dip the orange wood stick into the solution of green soap and clean under the nail, being careful not to push the inner skin away from the nail or in any way to bruise the nail itself.

Never use a nail substance to clean the nail; it not only thickens them but it corrugates the under side and makes them more susceptible to stain.

The instruments needed for the weekly manicure are a good, slender nail file, two pairs of scissors, both curved, but one much finer than the other emery boards, orange wood sticks, a cuticle knife and cleaner combined in one, a chamois buffer, a small bottle of peroxide, a small bottle of green soap diluted with water, and a few drops of perfume and a small package of absorbent cotton.

First file the nails, bearing in mind that the almond shape is to be preferred, but at the same time to follow as near as possible the outline of the tips of the fingers. After the nails have been filed thoroughly and shaped, place in a bowl of warm soapy water. It will be found that the water can be made more soapy by using a tablespoon of green soap to a bowl of water. Add a few drops of perfume to the water. Let the hands soak in the water for about seven minutes. Remove, and with an orange wood stick which has wrapped around it a small piece of absorbent cotton that has been dipped in the green soap solution, gently push the cuticle from each nail so as to show the crescent, the much to be desired beauty spot, on each nail. You may not be able to do this at first, as the greatest care must be used in pushing down the cuticle, for if jagged, broken, or torn, hangnails will be caused. If there are already torn spots in the cuticle surrounding the nail, cut them off as closely as possible with the thin scissors and touch the spot with a drop of peroxide of hydrogen, being careful not to make the fingers bleed nor to bruise them so that they will feel sore. Now take the emery board and trim off from each nail the rough edges left by the file. If the finger looks rough use a pumice stone to smooth it.

Next touch the surface of each nail with nail rouge, using as little as possible. The rouge is used not so much to give color as to act as a body to hold the polishing powder. Apply a touch of polishing powder to each nail, also put a liberal supply of the powder on the chamois buffer. Rub each nail briskly up and down and across at least 100 times. Care must be taken not to treat the nail roughly, for if you use it in any way the white spots will form. After all the nails have been polished carefully, dip them in warm, soapy water and let them soak for a few minutes.

Wipe dry. Put a small quantity of the polishing powder in the palm of your hand and rub the nails thoroughly. With it this gives the celebrated hand polish, of which the French women are so fond. The hand again is dipped in the warm water and every particle of the rouge and powder scrubbed from the fingernails and the cuticle. The nails are again rubbed briskly across the palms of the hands and the manicuring finished. The whole process should not take longer than twenty minutes. A complete manicuring should be given once a week and the nails given a light polishing, about five minutes, before retiring each night.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

MRS. D. L.: Usually those whose skin is the most delicate are those who freckle most easily when exposed to the air, wind, and sun. Such should protect their faces with veils, for it is no easy task to remove freckles. If the freckles are not deep they may yield to plenty of fresh air, nourishing foods, avoid all trying work, sleep all you can, and don't worry. It isn't necessary to follow a strict diet, but drink milk instead of tea or coffee. If you care for it I shall be glad to send you a dietary for gaining flesh upon receipt of a stamped, addressed envelope.

ANSIOTIC: In young people adenoids often cause the adenoids to develop. Other troubles such as headache, disturbed sleep, metallic voice, and early decay of the teeth may be caused by adenoids. In order to brush these troubles the adenoids must be removed. I would advise you to consult your physician immediately, as adenoids are injurious to the health of the child.

2000 WOMEN IN APPEAL FOR PEACE

Silent Host Parades in Protest Against War Slaughter

Clad in Black as They March to Beats of Muffled Drums

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Silently, to the measured beat of muffled drums, a great army of peace moved down Fifth avenue this afternoon. Upwards of 2000 women, black-clad, without banners or the blaring of bands, marched in a procession of mourning in protest against the slaughter of human beings in man-made war.

Never before has New York witnessed such a spectacle as was presented in this procession, comprised mostly of women of middle age, the mothers of such men as are now sacrificing their lives upon European battlefields. There were scores, bent in gray under the weight of years, who patiently trudged in the wake of the banner of peace, registering their silent protest against the slaughter of lives given to the world by the women of other nations.

There have been processions of women in New York of greater numbers, but none more impressive. More than 100,000 persons silent reverently watched the marchers as they moved down the broad avenue from Fifty-ninth street to Union Square. The throngs lining the sidewalk and racking the windows of the skyscrapers were unusual for New York. There was practical no cheering or applause as the silent host marched by.

SCENE IS IMPENDING.

Tears welled up in the eyes of many men unconsciously removed their hats in the presence of the army of peace. The faces of the thousands of onlookers were a study. The sight of aged women, probably taking years from their lives by the exertion of the long march, moved the crowds first to sympathy and then to the realization of what the demonstration really meant.

Is it patriotism for women willingly to offer up the sons they have given to the world to slaughter upon the battlefield?"

That is the question the women who paraded today have left to be answered.

There was no meeting at the conclusion of the parade and no speeches: merely the silent parade of processions.

Tired and worn, the older women holding up only by iron will and determined belief in the cause for which they marched, were cared for by the volunteers at their brother ranks at Union Square. At the close of the procession Mrs. Henry Villard, chairman of the peace committee, silver-haired, but vigorous in her work for peace, declared she was most impressed by the attitude of complete sympathy in the crowds along the line of march.

ONLY PEBBLE IN WATERS.

"We have merely thrown a pebble into the great waters," said Mrs. Villard. "But there will be made many ripples from it, and we hope eventually all women will be united so that they will not send their sons and husbands out to slaughter."

"My heart was touched by the almost reverential and sympathetic attitude of the vast throngs. Some women have grown to accept all that husbands say as fate. They lead them to believe that sending their husbands and sons out to be slaughtered in war is patriotism. But we want to start a new patriotism, and make all women realize that it is a crime to offer upon the altar of war the lives they have brought into the world."

There was no distinction in nationality, race or color in the procession of peace. Rich and poor marched side by side. There were representatives of the women of every nation now engaged in the terrific conflict.

American Ship Prize; Indemnity Demanded

SHANGHAI, Aug. 29.—William Katz of Shanghai, owner of the American steamer Hanmet, which was seized as a prize of war by a British torpedo boat, has appealed to the American consul, W. R. Park, for indemnification. The steamer was bound from this port for Tsing Tau to remove non-combatants and the owner declares carried no contraband. He explains that she was manned by Germans for the reason that the channel of Tsing Tau was mined and the former British crew was not permitted to sail her. A precautionary inspection made by the British authorities at Shanghai before the Hanmet sailed resulted in her captain receiving a certificate stating that she carried no cargo.

Author Escapes From Execution of Spy

LONDON, Aug. 29.—That Richard Harding Davis, novelist and war correspondent, barely escaped execution at the hands of German authorities while they debated whether or not he should be shot. Davis was said to be under the strictest surveillance, even after the Germans released him from imprisonment.

PARIS FEARS SIEGE

HOME AND HOMES ARE ORDERED LEVELED

German Zeppelin Taken by Russians While Dropping Bombs

PARIS, Aug. 29.—As a part of the preparations to withstand a siege of Paris, the war office tonight ordered all inhabitants of homes in the sweep of the guns of the outer circle of defending forts to level their homes by September 3. It was explained that the authorities did not desire to have any cover remain for the enemy if the German troops should succeed in advancing to the capital.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 29.—A German Zeppelin, which bombarded the railway station of Malavia, in Russian Poland, was brought down five miles from the town and the crew of eight captured. It was announced here tonight.

The Zeppelin carried two quick-firing guns and a great quantity of explosives. It maneuvered over the station and dropped several bombs. Upon the withdrawal of the airship the Russians immediately set out in pursuit and five miles from Malavia brought the Zeppelin down.

NO ENGLISH MINES LID.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—So England has not laid a single mine in the North sea. Official announcement to this effect was made tonight by the bureau. The statement said:

"In view of the damage to neutral shipping so far noted, the admiralty announces that while reserving retaliatory rights, which it will not hesitate to use at the proper time, England has not laid a single mine in the North sea up to the present time."

PARIS, Aug. 29.—Two German aeroplanes hovered over the fortress of Belfort today and attempted to destroy the dirigible hangars there, where the big French dirigibles are stored. The bombs fell harmlessly on the Champ de Mars, making great holes in the ground, but doing no actual damage. The Germans fled.

The German aeroplane was driven away by a British biplane which followed it in the air to pursue them.

Success of Allies Depends on Russia

LONDON, Aug. 29.—The military correspondent of the Times in his account of the war today says:

"There is a great difference between the tasks of the allies in the western and eastern theater of war. In the west our task is stone-walling; that of the Russians is steam-rolling."

"The situation in the west is such that only a stroke of good fortune could give us a smashing victory and enable us to annihilate the foe. It is our business to keep our wicket up while Russia makes the runs. We must fight back if need be to the Atlantic rope, without allowing ourselves to be knocked out."

"Germany must have an aggressive victory to win and it must be our endeavor to foil her in that object."

"The Russians have a most brilliant role in this war. Russia must reach Berlin within a couple of months. If at the end of that time our claws are still fast in the German armies in the west and if Serbia still has her teeth in Austria's back, then the strategic and political object of the war will be achieved."

OFFENSIVE MOVEMENT IS HALTED.

It is stated at the war office that the general offensive movement in East Prussia has been halted. The reinforcements, consisting of the second army of the Landsturm, has reached the first line of fortifications beyond the Oder and are being hurried to reinforce the active army corps which has been bearing the brunt of the fighting. The orders received from the Kaiser at the front that the Russians must be checked are being carried out to the letter.

While all information regarding military movements is refused, it is frankly stated that important developments are taking place in the east. It is understood that the Austrian general staff, which had been made responsible for the checking of the Russian invasion, will now be aided by several of the best German officers, who know every inch of the ground in the east.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 29.—Along a battle front resembling a huge fan, extending from the valley of the Dniester far into Northeastern Prussia, the Russian army is tonight fighting a combined force of Austrians and Germans. The three Austrian army corps, defeated in the preliminary fighting along the banks of the Bug and Lud river, with their centers between Zlocow and Tampol, have been heavily reinforced. They are now co-operating with the German forces driven back from Allenstein. The advantage is declared to be with the Russians, who are steadily pressing the Austrian line back on Lemberg.

200,000 RUSSIANS IN RETREAT IN PRUSSIA

NEW NEUTRALITY LAWS BEING SUGGESTED

BERLIN, via The Hague, Aug. 29.—The German armies operating against the Russians who have invaded East Prussia have now assumed the offensive and have driven the Russian forces out of the southeastern part of that province.

The defeated Russian army, comprising upwards of 200,000 infantry and artillery, with heavy cavalry supports, was trapped by a German army that had taken position along the line from Schoben lake to the Russian frontier near Friedrichshof. The German infantry, heavily entrenched on the hills overlooking the marshes, were well supplied with artillery when German Uhlans and mounted infantry, who made a long detour to the north of the battle ground, were able to strike the Russians on the flank when they were exceedingly hard pressed. The Germans immediately began a general charge and the Russians were completely routed and driven back on their secondary supports along the River Narew, well inside of the Russian frontier. The war office reports that the Germans are now pursuing their advantages, aided by supporting Austrian troops who have now reached the seas.

today and were completely annihilated.

BULLETIN

LONDON, Aug. 30 (Sunday).—The London Standard's Geneva correspondent wires that his advices from Rome, Milan and Turin indicate that Italy is arming to join with the triple entente.

"Troops are passing incessantly," says one dispatch from Novara, "coming up from Liguria and Piedmont, their destination being Undine. The French frontier has been entirely vacated."

Other London newspapers comment on vague reports from the Balkans that the nations in that section are preparing to join the war.

BULLETIN

ROME, Aug. 29.—A Berlin dispatch received here tonight locates the army under command of Crown Prince Frederick Wilhelm near the Muese, and advancing. It states that the crown prince of Bavaria won a victory in his first general engagement, routing a force of French near Nancy. It is stated Austria is being assisted by German marines, who unable to return to Germany, have enlisted with their ally.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—The Central News late this afternoon issued a dispatch from its Boulogne correspondent saying that the French seaport there had been evacuated by the allies. The war bureau said it had no information confirming this report.

The allied armies are being pressed to the limit all along the northern French border tonight. The German assault continues.

While details are withheld, it is admitted that everything points to a general attempted enveloping movement directed from the northwest, with a new battle front established across the southern part of the departments of Pas-de-Calais, Nord, Ardenne and the Meuse and the northwestern portion of Muese-et-Moselle.

The German offensive armies, heavily supported by reserves, have been realigned. Regiments depleted have had their ranks filled. Additional supporting artillery has been brought from Aix-la-Chapelle and every indication tonight pointed to the commencement of another mass attack designed to overwhelm the allies' defense and split the defending armies into two or more forces.

BRITISH TROOPS HURRIED TO THE FRONT.

The war office admits the seriousness of the situation, but it declares it is far from hopeless. Additional British troops have been sent to the front to fill the gaps already torn in the English columns.

The British expeditionary army has again been separated. The infantry, operating in two separate corps, has been given the place of honor on the defended front. More troops are coming and Lord Roberts, the commander-in-chief of all British overseas forces, expressed the hope this afternoon that the "hundreds of thousands of British soldiers who might be needed in this titanic struggle will be forthcoming before wanted."

PRESSURE GREAT ON FRENCH LINES.

PARIS, Aug. 29.—Rested after a slight respite from active fighting, the great battle for possession of the secondary lines of French defenses has been renewed at a number of points, and general fighting seems about to commence. The French lines have held so far at the central danger point, but the pressure is very great.

Additional German artillery is now reported in action. The German armies of the Lower Moselle and Metz have poured through the gap at Stenay, and are now assaulting the French line along the river Meuse from Verdun to Sedan.

The German armies of the Meuse and the Upper Moselle are driving at the lines from Sedan west almost to the coast. Train service to Boulogne has ceased and it is believed determined effort to take that seaport is contemplated by Germans operating through Belgium into the department of Pas-de-Calais. Another great German army, comprising three corps of German infantry and artillery and two corps of Austrians, has crossed the Rhine and is moving through Upper Alsace with the evident intention of attacking Belfort.

REINFORCEMENTS RUSHED TO FRONT.

Fresh reinforcements are being hurried to every danger point. Despite official denials, it is again suggested that an army of 200,000 has been sent to the front to hold the line of defense and establish a new line of defenses to which the allies can fall back should the pressure become too great.

The Algerian troops have been practically annihilated. The war office admits that this detachment, trapped and surrounded

TEN WARSHIPS ARE REPORTED SUNK

SURVIVOR TELLS OF GREAT FIGHT OFF HELIGOLAND

LONDON, Aug. 29.—One of the wounded in the battle off Heligoland, in which two German cruisers and two German destroyers were sunk, told of the fight tonight in the naval hospital at Harwich. The battle followed the locating of the German scouting columns in the Bight of Heligoland.

For several days there had been indications that the Germans were contemplating a raid on the battle fleet. The destroyers had been located in the distance and their air scouts had been reported far off, flying at a height which made their aeroplanes seem like small birds.

Although the official report of the admiralty says that only two cruisers of the enemy were actually sunk, one set afire and lost in the mist in a sinking condition, and two German destroyers sent to the bottom, the wounded who reached Harwich declare that the official estimates are far too low.

TEN WARSHIPS SENT TO BOTTOM.

They say that a number of the German destroyers were left in a sinking condition and some declare that as a result of the long fight, not fewer than ten German warships, chiefly destroyers, were sent to the bottom. One placed the figures as high as thirteen.

Rear-Admiral Beatty, after a conference with the admiral, decided to attempt to beat the Germans to the assault. The destroyers were signaled into position to reconnoiter with the battle cruisers to steam behind with their guns in readiness for work. The story of the actual movement then continues:

ORDERS GIVEN TO STEAM AHEAD.

"The orders to steam were given long before daylight on Friday morning. The weather was ideal. A strong mist covered the sea and this fact, it later developed, had lulled the enemy to sleep, as they were not dreaming that any British admiral would risk his fighting units in the neighborhood of a strongly-fortified land position under such weather conditions.

"The crew were ordered to quarters before leaving the first fleet. Then (here the censor has eliminated all details of the warships engaged), steamed out through the mist. A submarine was sent ahead and reported that the German light cruiser squadron with its destroyers, was at (here again the censor eliminated the location.)

"The destroyers opened on the enemy and tried to launch torpedoes. The Germans were taken by surprise and while their men were being piped to quarters the big guns of the battle cruisers began to bark.

CRUISER AND DESTROYER ARE HIT.

"The fire of the enemy was high and the destroyers were for the most part unscathed in the early stages of the fight. The cruiser Amethyst, which, with protected cruisers, was aiding in the assault, was hit several times, as was the destroyer Laertes, but they were the only ones damaged.

"The cruiser Manz was caught between two of the British cruisers and literally pounded to pieces. One broadside simply cleared her decks and shell passed directly through her vitals. As she went under the British destroyers closed and rescued many of the wounded from the water.

FIGHTING CONTINUES FOR HOURS.

"For more than four hours the fighting continued and then, as the mist was lifting and it was now broad daylight, the rear-admiral commanding gave the signal to withdraw and the squadron steamed back to the main fleet. The German and British wounded were transferred to destroyers and sent to Harwich, and the German prisoners who were not wounded were sent to the naval prison."

The net result of the engagement was the certain sinking of two of the German light cruisers; the probable loss of another and the sinking of two destroyers. But the chief result in the minds of the British commanders is the knowledge that the British gunners in actual battle take just as cool aim as they ever do in practice at sea.

A dispatch to the Reuter Telegram Company from St. Petersburg says that six officers of the German light cruiser Magdeburg and fifty-six sailors who survived the destruction of the ship by the Russian fleet arrived at the Russian capital today.

WOMEN PROTEST GREAT SLAUGHTER

March in Silent Parade Over Streets of New York in Appeal for Peace.

EVERY CREAM AND COLOR

Marching in the ranks was a division of negro women. Many women from other cities participated. There was a division of refugees from Europe who had arrived here from the war zone in the last few days. Miss Eleanor Garrison of Boston, a grand daughter of William Lloyd Garrison, arrived on a steamer this morning and immediately arranged to march in the parade this afternoon.

In the first division was Mrs. E. A. Shores of Seattle, Wash., chairman of the executive committee of the Women's Suffrage association.

Mrs. Rose Berger of New York marched the entire distance, pushing a go-cart from which her infant son, Irving McCabe Berger, cooed and cried at intervals at the procession moved on.

An escort of mounted police headed the procession. Then came Miss Portia Willa, the grand marshal, and Miss Alice Carpenter, bearing the peace banner. The only inscription was the single word, "Peace," in large letters. In the center of the banner, upon a circular field of blue, was a big white dove. Miss Rose Young and Mrs. Florence Woolston held the streamers to the banner. Then came Mrs. Henry Villard and in the parade committee of 100 were such well-known women as Mrs. Elmer Black, Miss Mary Shaw, Mrs. James Lee Laidlaw, Mrs. John Winter Franklin and Miss Lillian Walls.

AGED WOMEN IN RANKS

The younger women were the marshals and the prime movers in the demonstration, but it was the women of advanced years, their faces lined with care and suffering, who swelled the ranks at the last moment. Just before the parade started an aged woman stepped from the crowd at Fifty-eighth street and eagerly addressed Miss Young.

"Can't I join the parade?" she asked.

"I want to do my part in carrying the white flag, the flag of peace to the world. My boys"—But the rest was lost as Miss Young placed her arm about the shoulder of the aged woman and led her to a place in the lines of the first division.

The vast crowds were banked along the sidewalks on both sides of Fifth avenue. Extra police were called to duty.

A vast majority of the women were marching dressed in black. Some were in deepest mourning, wearing heavy black veils. Others were clad in white, with bands of black crepe about their heads. The drum corps were from various toy sword divisions of the city. Thus they moved on to the beat of muffled drums or through the heart of the metropolis or through the New York library. It steps black with humanity, on through miles of solid procession, praying to the same God to whom the rulers of Europe call for power in war, may grant them peace.

WAR NEWS IN BRIEF

LONDON, Aug. 29, 8 p. m.—Lieutenant Deppel of the Belgian infantry, who was in command of the cyclist section at Namur, in a report to the official bureau, says that the fortress of Namur was completely evacuated by the Belgians at 5 o'clock the afternoon of August 23.

LONDON, Aug. 29, 8:15 p. m.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Antwerp says that the Belgian government declares officially that several of the forts at Liege are still resisting.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—A Berliner's dispatch from Athens says 600 German officers and sailors, with a vast quantity of ammunition, traversed Bulgaria Friday on board a special train, their destination being Constantinople. The correspondent infers that Turkey has made known her sympathy with Germany and the Kaiser is sending aid.

of the sinking of a trawler thirty miles off the Tyne was made by the Admiralty today. The report stated: "On about August 26 a trawler was sunk by a mine thirty miles off the river Tyne. The statement that the mine struck by the vessel was laid by the British is false. The mines off the Tyne are being laid, not by warships, but by a fleet of German trawlers."

SHELL AND SABRE OF BRITONS MOW ENEMY

LONDON, Aug. 29.—Sergeant Loftus, writing to his brother in England of the experiences of the British in the battle of Mons, says:

"It came unexpectedly at a time when we had given up hope of seeing any Germans. Just after reveille our cavalry pickets fell back, reporting the approach of the enemy in force.

"We lay in trenches as our artillery opened on them in fire style and they returned the compliment.

"They were a long time in finding the range.

"After about half an hour their infantry came into view. They were in solid squares, standing out sharply against the skyline. You could not help hitting them.

"We lay in our trenches without a sound and they crept nearer and nearer. Then our officers gave the word, a sheet of flame flickered along the trenches and a storm of bullets tore through the advancing forces.

"They stopped to stagger like drunken men hit between the eyes and then made a run at us. Half way across the open another bullet tore through their ranks.

"By this time our artillery began dropping shells among them and then they broke into open formation.

rushing like mad toward the trenches. On our left the Germans fell back in confusion and lay down wherever cover was available. We gave them no rest and soon they were again in flight.

"Then came more shelling of our trenches and another rush across the open in our front. This time they were strongly supported by cavalry which suffered terribly, but came up to our lines.

"We received them in the good old way, the front ranks with the bayonet and the rear ranks keeping up an incessant fire and after a hard tussle they retired hastily. Just as they thought themselves safe our mounted men swooped down on them, cutting right and left.

"This sort of thing went on through the whole day without bringing the Germans any nearer to shifting the sky.

"After the last attack we lay down to sleep in our clothes, but before sunrise we were told to abandon our position. Nobody knew why, but we obeyed without a murmur.

"The enemy's cavalry, evidently misunderstanding our action, came down on us again in force, but our men behaved very well and the Germans gave it up as a bad job."

AMERICANS FOUND MAROONED IN CITY

No Word Is Received From Ghent as to Condition of U. S. Citizens.

LONDON, Aug. 29, 1:45 p. m.—The American embassy up to the present time has been unable to get into communication with certain Americans marooned in Ghent, Belgium, who are in need of money.

News of the plight of these travelers reached London through the State Department at Washington, which received its information from the American consulate at Ghent, who was in telegraph to the American consul at Antwerp.

In London they met the Harry East Millers and Mrs. C. C. Cray. The former remained in London. Mrs. Crowell and Mrs. Samuels sailed from Liverpool August 8 on the Teutonic and were nine days in crossing to Montreal. They had earlier engaged passage from London, but the change in sailing on account of hostilities between the powers necessitated their going to Liverpool and sailing from the Mersey.

The Teutonic went several hundred miles out of her course to the St. Lawrence and among the teahouses. The captain explained to the passengers that he had seen the searchlights of war vessels playing through the sky and that he did not intend to take any chance.

VICTORY NOT CONFIRMED

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador to the United States, announced today that he had received no confirmation from his government of the destruction of German cruisers in the North Sea by the British fleet, but he assumed the newspaper accounts were correct.

"I do not account it in any sense a great naval battle," he said. "It seems that the entire British fleet attacked Paris until they crossed the border to the United States, the journey was anything but dull."

SEE RIOTING IN STREETS OF PARIS

Oakland Women Return to Tell of Thrilling Scenes in War Zone.

Mrs. Clarence Crowell, who, with her mother, Mrs. Frederick S. Samuels, has returned from a four-months tour in Europe, has a story of exciting adventure such as usually fall to the lot of Americans who venture abroad.

"I am glad that I am safely home. America is good enough for me hereafter," was her way of expressing an opinion of the marital discord that at present exists among the sovereign families across the Atlantic.

Before leaving Paris July 31, the day war was declared, Mrs. Crowell and her party witnessed the street rioting between the military and the Socialists. Many shots were fired, and for a time those in the vicinity were in trepidation as to their safety. As was not the case with a large number of other travelers in France, Mrs. Crowell and her mother were enabled to get to Calais and cross the channel to Dover without much inconvenience. Also when they arrived in London their baggage was with them. Later boats had difficulty in dodging warships in the channel and many tourists were disappointed in losing their baggage, being forced to wait in London for its arrival.

In London they met the Harry East Millers and Mrs. C. C. Cray. The former remained in London. Mrs. Crowell and Mrs. Samuels sailed from Liverpool August 8 on the Teutonic and were nine days in crossing to Montreal. They had earlier engaged passage from London, but the change in sailing on account of hostilities between the powers necessitated their going to Liverpool and sailing from the Mersey.

The Teutonic went several hundred miles out of her course to the St. Lawrence and among the teahouses. The captain explained to the passengers that he had seen the searchlights of war vessels playing through the sky and that he did not intend to take any chance.

The Canadian Pacific Railway is now in the hands of the military, as was evidenced by the party as they traveled toward Vancouver. Every bridge and trestle is heavily guarded by principal troops, and before crossing a bridge the trains must stop for orders from the commandant. This experience was a feature of the train trip across the continent, and altogether, from the time the party left Paris until they crossed the border to the United States, the journey was anything but dull.

The Teutonic was a retreat of the German troops, priests of Louvain gave the people ammunition and civilians began to shoot at unsuspecting German troops from windows in different parts of the town and wounded many. A fight lasting 24 hours took place between the German soldiers and the people of the town. Parts of the city are burning and civilians met carrying arms were killed.

A manifesto of the chief of the general staff speaks of bestial cruelty on the wounded and makes the civil authorities of the town responsible for the protection and for providing the people with arms.

The leaders of the German army, the dispatch continues, protest against news spread by the enemies about the cruelty of German warfare.

"German troops sometimes had to take severe measures when provoked by the people making treacherous attacks upon them or committing atrocities against the wounded," the dispatch reads.

"The responsibility for this method of warfare falls entirely upon the civil authorities of occupied territory, who give arms to civilians and stir them up to take part in the war.

"The German troops never harmed people or private property without cause. The German soldier is no incendiary nor pillager, but fights only against the army of the enemy. The news published in foreign papers about German soldiers persecuting non-combatants are mean lies, showing lack of morality on the part of the authors."

ENGLISH REJOINDER.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—The Official Information Bureau in a statement regarding the destruction of the Belgian town of Louvain by the Germans and the German announcement that the inhabitants had fired on their troops, says:

"The assumption of the German commander was, under the circumstances, so wide of probability that it can only be supposed that in the desire to conceal the facts, the first idea which occurred to him was seized upon as an excuse for an act without parallel in the history of civilized peoples.

"Louvain has been utterly destroyed by the emperor's commanders in a moment of passion to cover the blunder of their own men.

"In destroying the ancient town of Louvain, the German troops committed a crime for which there can be no atonement and humanity suffered a loss which can never be repaired."

OPERA IS DELAYED.

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—The Chicago grand opera company will not be mobilized this year. Bernard Ulrich, business manager, announced tonight that all of the principals are abroad and cannot get back in time for rehearsals, and that the men engaged for the chorus shouldered rifles when the Italian army was mobilized.

ISSUE CONVINCING FINANCE REPORT

Pacific Gas and Electric Company's Figures Show Fine Earnings Increase.

The Pacific Gas and Electric Company has issued a financial report which appears to bear convincing testimony to the fact that the company's earnings are beginning to reflect the millions of dollars of new money invested recently not only in new hydroelectric developments, notably that on the South Yuba and Bear rivers, but also in the enlargement and expansion of the company's service facilities in every part of the vast territory covered by its operations.

During the past three years the company has expended upward of $24,000,000 in new construction work is now beginning to bear fruit in the form of increased earnings. This increase, of course, plays its part in insuring the safety of the company's securities, particularly the new first preferred stock recently offered to the company's consumers. This stock has been accorded a preferential lien on earnings ahead of approximately $12,000,000 of other stock issued by the company. All over Northern Central California consumers of Pacific services are responding to the company's offer, and the results so far have been to more than double the number of the company's stockholders. The financial report referred to contains the following comparative statement of earnings, which should be of unusual interest under the circumstances:

INDIANS IN INSANE WARD; MENTALLY C. K.

REDDING, Aug. 29.—Chief Alexander of the Wintun is in disgrace. He is in the insane ward of the County Jail and his wife is kept prisoner with him. Neither is insane, but both are under arrest for assault with a deadly weapon. Inasmuch as there is no woman's ward in the County Jail Chief Alexander and his wife are held behind the iron bars of the insane ward.

The wife, graver offender of the two, is charged with using an ax upon Willis Philpott and William Elmore. The affray occurred on Dick Spann's fruit farm near Anderson.

Sherman Montgomery, it is alleged, sold Chief Alexander and his wife the whisky that caused them to quarrel with William Philpott. Philpott killed Alexander, and then Mrs. Alexander came to his defense, first with a club and then with an ax. Elmore was cut in the hand when he tried to separate the belligerents.

IS GIRLIEST SHOW ON EARTH WOMAN REIGNS AT CIRCUS

Woman has come into her own with the circus. She rules supreme under the great white canvas pavilions of the Barnum & Bailey Greatest Show on Earth, whose magic kingdom will establish itself here on next Friday, September 4.

The Girlish Show on Earth, come one, has passed here. It, where skill, strength, courage, and nerve are the prime qualifications, the women of the world of sand dust and spangles is proving this season that her brother can learn something by watching her.

In almost every varied number, below and afoot, on the Barnum & Bailey program, the gentler sex predominates. From the opening scene of the colossal romantic spectacle, "The Wizard Prince of Arabia," which discloses a chorus and ballet of nearly half a thousand girls, through the exploits down to the thundering hippodrome races which conclude the performance, feminine charm predominates.

There are six hundred women in all with the Barnum & Bailey circus. They are of all ages, all varieties of endeavor. Many of them are well-known performers whose names are familiar in the program in big black or red letters. Others you will meet in the dressing rooms and many more you will not see at all, because they are the needlewomen employed in the wardrobe department. But first, last and always, they are of the circus. No matter how important or insignificant a part they play in the stupendous production, they round out their days and their nights with the circus. It is their means of livelihood and the scene of their social diversions, nine months in the year.

The circus woman is about the busiest member of her sex, but her prostration knows her not. Her profession keeps her in the open and forces her to lead a regular, abstentious life. Nerves and dissipations mean danger and death to the performer, man or woman, and circus women are singularly long-lived.

WOMAN FACES CHARGE OF FORGERY

Members of Gang Sought for in Nation-Wide Search.

In custody of Captain of Detectives of Portland, Mrs. Mora Pierce Helm, known as "June the Blonde," and Ernest Carpenter, members of the forger gang, of which George Hammond, who shot C. O. Murray, a Pinkerton detective, was leader, passed through Oakland yesterday en route to Portland to face grand in traveling suits of fashionable cut and appeared to be in good spirits, despite the serious charge which has been lodged against them.

Carpenter was clad in a gray suit of pronounced English cut, and although handcuffed to Captain Baty, assumed a jaunty air and chatted animatedly with his fair companion during the trip across the bay. He appeared to take his predicament philosophically.

Mrs. Helm, who had been charged with the indignity of shackles, was in custody of Detective Winn, of the Los Angeles headquarters, who will accompany the party to Portland. She was costumed in the latest mode and wore a striking black hat which hid her wealth of golden hair and shaded the upper portion of her face from the too attentive gaze of the curious.

While Mrs. Helm was starting on her way north, her mother, Mrs. Mary Pierce of Coronado, widow of Adjutant General W. N. Pierce, was in Portland pleading with the district attorney for mercy for her daughter. Mrs. Pierce claimed that her daughter was forced under the threat of death to aid Hammond in carrying out his plans of forgery.

DAUGHTER WAS HOUNDED

Mrs. Pierce told a story of the hounding of her daughter at the hands of Hammond and of the daughter's horror at being involved in the shooting of detective.

The Portland district attorney made no promise to Mrs. Pierce, who said it was the second time she had come to the aid of her daughter.

Detective Winn said that Mrs. Helm appeared to be in the best of spirits and thanked the Los Angeles officers for the courtesy extended to her during her time of confinement in the city jail.

"I am happy," said Mrs. Helm, before entering the automobile which was to hurry her to the railroad station in Los Angeles, "because I am going to face the law. It is so good to be out in the open air again. Everyone has been so good to me."

Yes, and there is one thing like that has made me happy. That is the forgiveness of my husband. He is a man and I am so glad that he will come back to me. All of this has been a lesson to me. I know now that love is not all that I thought it was and that the love of an honest, honorable man is one of the most valuable things in the world."

Carpenter, the bright steel links of the shackles contrasting grimly with his neat gray suit, laughed and joked with the officers, but refused to say anything regarding the charges he was to face.

As the police automobile whirled away from the Los Angeles police station "June the Blonde," one of the most interesting woman characters who has ever been in custody of the police of that city, waved a last farewell.

Mrs. Helm surrendered to the Riverside police after she had escaped with Hammond following the shooting of Detective Murray. Police in all parts of the United States are searching for Hammond. Carpenter was arrested by the Los Angeles police and it was upon his information that "June the Blonde" and her companion were located in that city.

Grover Chamberlain, a chauffeur, was arraigned yesterday in Judge Samuels' court on the charge of exceeding the speed limit. He had been arrested at Eleventh and Broadway by Patrolman Emigh.

COLONNADED COURT.

The Pompeian plan of two main divisions is carried out here. There is the large colonnaded court or "Peristyle," and the hall, or "Atrium," each with the smaller rooms. "Cubicle," adjoining.

On the east side of the hall are private dining-rooms and the orchestra stage, with proscenium arch flanked on either side with fluted columns supporting a richly decorated entablature and frieze. Also at the south end of the hall are comedy and club rooms.

Surrounding the main court are large fluted columns, supporting the main roof and pergola beams, and over all, a glass ceiling, softly blended in tone, the divisions of which are artistically decorated. This glass ceiling also extends over the large hall, or "Atrium," above referred to. The colonnaded and trellised pergolas are faithfully reproduced even to the beam terminals which are exact reproductions of the three well-known terra cotta masks from the fassades of the "Atrium" and dating back to the time of Augustus, which are now in the museum of Pompeii.

POMPEIAN IDEAS.

In this so-called commercial age many of us are prone to accept as true the oft-heard statement that Americans are so engrossed with business that they have no time for ideals. It is only when we look about us with open mind, or hear the story of some unique artistic accomplishment, that we realize how much sentiment there is underlying the nation's entire business structure. For a prime example, it is only necessary to consider the department store field. How many of the money that is spent, the unprofitable accommodations that are maintained, by the country's great merchandisers in order to make their stores "institutions of true public service—places of charm and uplift?" Some of the notable idealists of the day are merchants, and to prove this we need go no further than San Francisco.

If you will, a store management upon whom the architectural beauties of ancient Pompeii, the romantic Italian villas and gardens, make a deep impression.

Imagine the desire of these men in connection with the perfection of store service and surroundings, determined to have as a feature a drinking place where men, women and children might gather in an atmosphere of ancient Rome and enjoy the delights of the table.

ITALIAN RENAISSANCE.

Simply the pursuit of an ideal—an ideal that has been fully realized in the beautiful "Pompeian Court" restaurant in the Roof Garden of Hale's modern store building in San Francisco. Visitors from far and near are sure to be impressed with this unique dining place in a city world-famous for the number and variety of its restaurants. It is a bit of Pompeii in the heart of a modern metropolis."

MRS. WILSON'S DYING WISH FULFILLED

Washington's Alleys Will Be Purged of Filth and Disease Menace.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Almost the last words of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, whispered but a short space before she died, embodied a request that the alleys of Washington, those plague spots of disease which for more than fifty years have menaced the city's health, might be purged of their filth. In response to that dying request, Congress is about to pass a law that will do away with those lurking the Senate passed an anti-contamination bill immediately the dying request of the President's wife became known. In modified form the measure is to go before the House, and it is expected that it will be called on the calendar for passage in the near future. This will crystallize into far-reaching the last wish of one of the few beloved and most charming of the mistresses who have graced the White House.

The Senate's action will be taken into the city's byways and shown the cozy, dingy alleys that will have lost the places of unsightly, uncleanly hovels and tenements, and will be told the story of how it remained for the dying wish of one whose life was replete with good deeds to accomplish that which the machinery of a government had failed to accomplish in over half a century.

WILL BE TRANSFORMED.

It is proposed to eradicate the alleys in their entirety, or rather to transform them into well-paved streets, flanked on either side with workingmen's homes fashioned somewhat after the fashion of the English workmen's cottages. There are to be parks, and playgrounds where the children and their parents can enjoy themselves amid the beauties of nature and drink deep the pure, wholesome air cooled by the damp ozone of the Potomac. Well lighted, well kept, bright thoroughfares will have taken the place of unlighted, unwatered and unpaved alleys which annually gave forth their inevitable spawn of crime and disease.

For more than fifty years Congress has concerned itself with regard to legislation to combat the malignant boudoir system of Washington. For a like space of time vice, disease, crime, and ignorance have been at work in alienating populations. In the last twenty-five years the government has succeeded in making clean and slightly but two of the many vice spots. Now, however, it appears certain that the entire elimination of these unwholesome influences during the life of Mrs. Wilson is at hand.

The alley's distinct; a Washington project, as far as its being inhabited is concerned. Washington is laid out in broad squares. On four sides of the squares are pretty decent houses in every case. Through the squares run alleys which were originally intended for the butcher, the baker, the ashman, the tinsmith, milkman, etc. However, when the Civil War broke out thousands of negroes flocked to Washington and scheming real estate men began building little shacks within the squares for the housing of the negroes.

The shacks fronted on the alleys. Some of those Civil War shacks are still there.

Mrs. WILSON'S FAVORITE EXHIBIT.

Mrs. Wilson had a favorite exhibit of this sort in what is known as Goat alley. There is no running water, there is scarcely any light. In the house, as there is in the yards, there are laundrys there for fifty years and the successive owners have reaped fortunes in rent. The alley has been inhabited chiefly by uncomplaining washwomen who carried home the wash of clean white folks, who would have turned ill had they seen where these linen was being washed.

When Mrs. Wilson became interested she had been a resident of the city but a few months; and she first heard the story of the alley homes at an afternoon meeting of the women's welfare department of the National Civic Federation. Mrs. Wilson believed in action. There had been several years of afternoon tea sociological work and it had not amounted to much in a practical way. Mrs. Wilson ordered her chauffeur to take her to Goat alley.

TO DEDICATE HOSPITAL WILL CARE FOR BABES

The Baby Hospital of Alameda county will be formally dedicated Wednesday afternoon, September 16, when a body of philanthropic women who constitute the council board of the institution, will act as hostesses of the day. The building will be open for inspection, and the decorative exercises are scheduled for 3 o'clock. Rev. E. L. Parsons, rector of St. Mark's Church, Berkeley, will give the dedicatory address. The order of the exercises have not as yet been announced.

Through the indefatigable efforts of a coterie of charitable folk of Alameda county, the hospital site was purchased. The hospital will be sustained by volunteer subscriptions and it will be maintained for babies between the ages of one and five years of age.

The growth of the institution may be traced to a meeting in Town and Gown Hall in Berkeley, September 4, 1912. At that meeting it was voted to organize a baby hospital association. At the second meeting held a week later at the First Congregational Church of Oakland, an organization was effected and by-laws adopted.

Immediately after the election of a board of managers a campaign was inaugurated to raise funds for the purchase of the hospital site.

After careful consideration, the McElrath property, covering one and a third acres, including the buildings located at Fifty-first and Davis streets was finally selected.

The property agreed upon was $12,500 and in December 1912, the association made its first payment of $650, raised by gifts, subscriptions and entertainments.

On June 1, 1913 the social service department upon which the hospital is based, effected an affiliation with the association of College Alumnae, taking over the home care of the babies of Alameda county, for whom the organization secured certified milk.

Shortly after the property was purchased, William Knowles of the city and James Klingensmith, who has were playing marbles at the entrance to Goat alley when the White House car stopped there with Mrs. Wilson and several women friends. They scampered up the cobble-stoned canyon, yelling the tidings as they went. However, Goat alley was more or less used to having finely dressed "white ladies" come picking their way through the dirt and filth, asking questions in stilted voices, leaving quarters and dollars, and then never returning.

But this "white lady" did come back. She came day after day, after day. Sometimes with the big White House insignia, sometimes in friend's electric automobile, sometimes she brought a procession of cars, with Senators, Representatives, ministers and business men of the city.

Mrs. Wilson would call men at the Capitol and simply force them to go with her through Goat alley and Tin Can alley, Bear's Gap, Louise alley, Pig alley and all the other foul, hot and filthy alleys of the city. She took Oscar Underwood and Representative A. Mitchell Palmer together on one trip and the leader of the House Democrats pledged himself after the trip to work for the elimination of the things he saw. He has not forgotten the pledge.

been an enthusiastic worker in the hospital cause, prepared the plans for the reconstruction of the old McElrath home, which has been converted into a comfortable baby hospital. F. F. Allen was the general contractor and the sub-contractors were Harry J. McRae, C. R. Webb, R. S. Hanson, John Thompson and E. M. Coffin.

Little folks of all sizes and ages have started a birthday club, which co-operates with the association.

SOCIETIES AID MOVE

Support is received by the Baby Hospital from the various branch societies, which have been established for the purpose of designing clothes for the babies and also to prepare articles to be sold at the Halloween fair to be held in the roof garden of the Pacific Building, Sixteenth and Jefferson streets, October 29, 30 and 31.

The branches resemble similar groups connected with the General Hospital in Rochester, which are known as "twigs" and they have raised large sums for the parent organization. Eleven groups and their leaders are as follows:

Olive Branch, Mrs. W. A. Shockley; Hill Branch, Mrs. William Eddie; Oak Branch, Mrs. Guy L. Bailey; Holly Branch, Mrs. Bruce Cornwall; Elm Branch, Mrs. L. Scott; Manzanita Branch, Mrs. W. L. Seabury; Blooming Branch, Miss Ethel Wrangler; Laurel Branch, Mrs. Ronald Ransome; The Pine Needles, Mrs. C. A. Smith; Topmost Branch, Mrs. Samuel B. Welch; Birch Branch, Miss Maria Friedrichs.

During the past fourteen months the free clinic has been in operation but the babies have not as yet been admitted to the hospital. Miss Bertha Wright is in charge and her work has been commended by the association. The clinic has proved a refuge for many sick babies, who have been relieved of much suffering. Many babies are waiting for the doors of the hospital to open. They will be cared for by graduate nurses and the leading physicians of Alameda county, to whom gratis give their services. In the hospital there are two large wards, a sun room for the convalescents, individual surgical apartments, private rooms and all the equipment for successful work. The rooms and the medical care will be free. There is a provision which states that a patient cannot pay more than $2.50 per day for a private room and that amount must be given voluntarily. If the sufferer desires to pay the $1 he may do so, but no fees are required.

The hospital is opened for the poor babies who cannot receive at the hospital elsewhere.

OFFICERS WELL KNOWN

To direct the time and energy to the cause of the stricken babies will be the mission of the corps of officers, who have spared no effort in planning the hospital, which will be open to alleviate the suffering of the helpless babies of Alameda county.

The officers of the new hospital association are as follows:

Board of Directors: J. F. Carlson, president; E. K. Taylor, vice-president; Wm. R. Thorsen, treasurer; A. Elston, secretary and legal adviser; A. T. Ellis, J. W. Phillips, Warren Olney Jr., J. R. Knowland, Rev. Edward L. Parsons.

SOIL IS SCARCE ARTICLE IN NEW YORK

Reporter Goes Days Before Discovering Dirt for Flower Pot.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Having heard repeatedly of the "dirty East Side," one might think it would be easy enough to find in New York enough dirt to pot a few plants. It can be done but it's no easy task. Just start out in quest of some real, unloved, earthy dirt to pack about the roots of a plant and you'll find New York City as devoid of the right kind as the European war zone is of peace advocates. To succeed is not the ingenuity of a Columbus or a Peary.

This little island of Manhattan has a backbone and a body of solid rock. There may be a covering at some points that resembles dirt, but it will soon be found that this powdery stuff is not the kind in which plants will grow. An imaginative space writer on one of the big New York dailies recently put it to his for something to write about. His city editor had an inspiration.

"Go out on the highways and byways," said the editor, "and see if you can dig up enough dirt—the real, loamy article—to pot some plants. I don't believe it can be done. At any rate go forth on your quest. When you succeed come back and tell us of your success in our columns."

The reporter thought he'd have a cinch. He called for dirt and for three days scratched about on the surface of New York's rocky backbone, without even finding what he wanted. He next tried to cart away a small section of Central Park, and would have been arrested had he not shown his reporter's credentials to an astounded policeman who caught him in the act of carting away two peanut bags full of earth. The reporter had to dump the dirt back where he got it.

BECOMES DESPERATE.

On the fourth day the space writer became desperate. He waited until nightfall and then set out toward the end of Manhattan with a suit case. Along about 10 o'clock he located a lot, hidden by a fringe of trees out beyond 242nd street. It was there he finally got some real dirt.

The hunt for Mother Earth in New York developed the fact that no one ever gets earth for their window plants without paying for it. The space writer who secured that suitcase full of dirt at so much time and no little expense in carriage is willing to sell it—dirt cheap.

WAR NEWS SMOTHERS POLITICS.

Yes, they had three political conventions in New York state about two weeks ago. Haven't you heard about them? It isn't to be wondered at. The complete smothering of the divisions of the Republicans, Democrats and Progressives when leaders of those parties met within a week of each other at Saratoga and Utica, only goes to show the complete dominance of the war news these days.

Ordinarily papers all over the country would have printed at least the salient points in the platforms of the two parties here, because New York is always considered more or less of a keynote state and the platforms of the parties here are somewhat regarded as models for other states.

The politicians are having a desperately hard time trying to break into print now, with the war on. It is really a serious problem to campaign managers. They expect the voting public to keep in touch with affairs through the daily press, but when the daily press doesn't drop much attention to the matter it is hard to keep interest going in the political race.

And all this despite the fact that the New York political situation this year is in many respects the most muddled, the most interesting and the most important in several decades. The Empire State will have a primary law for the first time this fall. It will have a constitutional convention somewhat later, where New York's old time constitution is to be rehabilitated. The Progressives will mix in things, and when T. Roosevelt mixes in on a political scrap, it is bound to be a fair sized little mix-up.

SCARCITY OF TOYS.

Santa Claus' pack will be shy of automatic toys this Christmas. Wholesalers and distributors here have only a small stock of toy novelties on hand. A vast majority of all toys come from Austria and Germany, mostly from the Nuremberg section. Those countries are cut off by war. One shipload has come in since hostilities opened. Usually by this time of the year a score or more caravans have been received.

Austria furnishes most of the "wind-up" toys—the dancing men, the automatic mouse, the engine and the boats and busses and things.

A very great many dolls also come from Emperor Franz Joseph's land. Germany furnishes the wooden toys, the steins, the hand boxes, dolls, Noah's arks, and a number of ingenious mechanical contrivances, together with valentines, color books and specialties. A large number of Christmas tree ornaments, festive as they are, come all the way from Lower Germany. An ocean "Snowball" manufacturer will have their chance this Christmas to satisfy the children.

FLAME IS BURNED.

DUNLAP, Aug. 29.—A forest fire occurred below Hume, on the river Sunday afternoon. It was caused by one of the Hunt-Bennet Lumber Company's sawyers胡子 burning up.

The fire also burned up about ten sections of the flume, then spread to the brush burning over some woods five acres before it was finally put under control. The company sent thirty-five men to aid District Ranger Clingen and his men in putting out the fire.

LUMBER MAN ESCAPES DEATH.

He almost was killed when a log fell on him while he was falling the round logs at his mill here.

He remained unconscious for several hours and fell into a critical condition.

TO STIR OAKLAND

European Studios Closed, the Noted Director Will Open School Here.

That the European war, besides changing the geographical and trade conditions of the world, will mark the dawn of a new era in American fine arts is the belief of many musicians, artists and impresarios. The thousands of American students who have been visiting the studios of Berlin, Paris, London and Vienna are already en route home. Many have already arrived. Within the next month the country will be filled as never before with ambitious young Americans eager to pursue their professions and compelled by force of circumstances to seek their inspiration and their practice under strictly American influences. It is easy to see how such conditions are bound to develop for the American and distinctly American school of both art and music from which in turn we may expect the world-renowned artists of tomorrow.

Inspirational California will more than likely benefit very largely by this sudden influx of young artists. It is estimated in musical and art circles that the past week has seen over 200 Californians return from European studios as a direct result of the appalling conditions abroad.

One and all say that Europe for years to come will be unable to fill her accustomed role of hand maiden to the muse. Her distress and misery will be too great for aught else save practical industry and relief measures.

TO OPEN BRANCH HERE.

In this connection, artistic circles of the east bay cities were interested this week in the news that Fred Steindorff and Will F. Rochester, founders of the American School of Opera, have quietly made all arrangements to open a branch institution in the center of Oakland. Associated with them in the enterprise will be Fred Carlyle, the well known university coach and theatrical promoter. A newly added department of drama will be under the direction of Carlyle and Will Rochester.

The understanding is that Steindorff and his associates have already leased Stark, Kinnear, Foote and Castro streets and plan a formal opening September 1st, being ready for enrollment a week previous.

The American School of Opera has its headquarters in the German House of San Francisco and made an instantaneous hit, producing two operas which were given exceptional praise by critics generally.

STEINDORFF'S FINE RECORD.

Steindorff has been a leader in things musical for 20 years, having conducted for such stars as Melba, Tetrazzini, Alice Nielsen and countless celebrities.

Steindorff and the old Tivoli formed an irresistible combination for years. He is at present the choragus for the University of California.

Will Rochester is another veteran of the Tivoli. In later years he filled the position of dramatic director for two of the country's largest dramatic academies and then returned to the stage as general stage director of the Alice Nielsen troupe.

The east bay cities will probably give a hand and his associates a warm welcome, for the rumor has spread that Steindorff director has in mind a regular opera club and a debut to the auditorium.

TURTLE COMES ASHORE, LAYS EGGS IN YARD

VENICE, AUG. 29.—Nice little turtle this.

Fresh from an ocean voyage and evidently determined to lower the high cost of living, the turtle ambled into the yard of Percival de Cramer, on the ocean front, Venice, early today.

And, setting a fine example to the hens of the bay district, she laid five eggs forthwith.

The eggs are about the size of those of a bantam hen. Professor Barnhart of the Venice aquarium believed that the turtle is a rare specimen of the smaller sea species and is seldom seen in Southern California waters.

The turtle seems well satisfied with its new home and shows no intention of leaving.

MURDERER UNKNOWN.

VISALIA, Aug. 29.—The identity of the man who murdered in cold blood Arnett Stevens and then committed suicide, is shrouded in mystery.

Several San Joaquin people were summoned here in an effort to identify the man, who was supposed to be Gregory, but none of them knew him.

Two girls from the cannery were interviewed and were somewhat hesitant, while giving in their testimony, but none of the three acknowledged to having ever seen the man. No motive for the crime has been established. Finger prints and Bertillon measurements were taken of the dead man, with a view to finding whether he is a former convict, it was ruled.

CANVAS FL R CARS

RIVERBANK, Aug. 29.—Two men will be delegated from the Santa Fe division here this week to Stockton to oversee the putting into commission of twenty-five flat cars that will be used in transporting the new railroad bridge across the Santa Fe to the West Winery of Stockton. These cars will have a boxcar two foot high built on them so they will then be lined with canvas that will retain the juice of the grape. Heretofore in shipping grapes in bulk a very large amount of the juice was in this manner lost, but with the new arrangement

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 29.—The contests for the nominations for Governor and United States Senator so strenuously waged in the present campaign came into complete obscurity so far as the tender-loin element and the sporting fraternity was concerned. It was the battle between Jas. Coffroth, promoter, and Frank Daroux for the members of county committee in the Thirty-second and Thirty-third Districts that they were concerned with, and their interest had no chance to lag. These two former pals staged a fight, the like of which has seldom been seen outside of Tammany Hall, and a good story could be told of the skirmishing.

The thing that surprised the town was Daroux's defeat. He was beaten for the first time in twenty years. Coffroth worsted him in the combat and won his money, and the way he put over the trick at the eleventh hour is the one story they have been telling in the cafes all week.

Who was responsible for the scheme in the Coffroth bailiwick, I do not profess to know, but that it was a good one may be attested by the results. It was nothing more or less than the circulating throughout the districts by the Coffroth adherents of a card bearing the names of the opposition delegates and suggesting that they be voted for. This would have been all right, and Daroux would have received some free advertising, had not the card borne the added suggestion, "Vote for Prohibition," "California Dry—1915." The whole was signed by the "Anti-Liquor League," a mythical organization, and fictitious names were used for the officers, whose signatures were duly affixed.

When the residents of the Latin quarter to whom wine and claret is in many instances considered a necessity, got one look at this card they made up their minds that here were some names to be put on the black list, and they went to the polls frowning at the very thought of Abraham Cohen, Leon Denney and Frank Dougherty, although two of those gentlemen are in the saloon business and would be the last men in the world to advocate prohibition. This was Coffroth's trump card and it was played last Saturday night. It was too late for Daroux to retaliate, and as he was convinced he had his opponent beaten by a big margin, he did little worrying.

With Coffroth in the contest were Jerome Bassett and Johnny Crowley, the latter heading the ticket. Ranged alongside of Daroux were Eddie Graney and some of his friends. All day Tuesday the watchers of both kept up a constant vigil at the polls. Daroux was the more active in this regard. He even challenged the vote of a peroxide beauty known familiarly in the night life as "Frisco Hazel." This was more than Coffroth could stand, and from that time on the election booth on Ellis and Taylor streets was the scene of a wonderful endurance test. For thirteen hours Daroux and Coffroth stood almost side by side and watched the counting of the ballots. Their supporters were no less anxious. Crowley offered to bet Graney $500 that Coffroth would win and was taken on the jump. This was before the count had progressed very far. Coffroth overheard the wager, noted Daroux's interest in it, and promptly took the gambler on for a like sum. Then he turned to his henchman.

"Crowley, I wish you would call off your bet with Graney," he said. "I don't want him to lose his money."

"I'll take Crowley's bet on with you. Let's make it a thousand," interrupted Daroux.

"You're on," fired Coffroth, and Wednesday he collected his coin.

Knowland's Victory

A remarkable showing made by Hon. Joseph R. Knowland in the contest for the Republican nomination for United States Senator has been the talk of the town. His opponent, Samuel M. Shortridge, a distinguished Republican, made a tour of the entire State, speaking in every city and hamlet. While the silver-tongued orator was hammering away in the country, Knowland and his organizers were working tooth and nail in San Francisco. The vote in this city shows that Shortridge had a majority of about 1000 over Knowland, while in Alameda County, which is Knowland's home, the latter received a majority over Shortridge of nearly 20,000.

It is conceded by all candidates that Knowland made the most consistent canvass of the State of anyone running for office. He has a splendid personality, makes a vigorous speech, and besides, he has a magnificent record of seventeen years in the public service, seven in the State Legislature, and ten in the House of Representatives. It is conceded that Knowland did not make a single tactical mistake during his entire campaign. His organization throughout the State was complete in every detail. It is said that Joe Knowland has more personal friends than any candidate in the State. His splendid showing at the primaries places him in a magnificent position for the final test on November 3d. The wise ones who know politics are contending that Knowland will beat his nearest rival at the November election by at least 150,000 votes. Already in this city Knowland's friends are offering to bet 2 to 1 that he will be elected United States Senator.

By the way, a number of Knowland's friends cleaned up large sums of money in the betting on the primary election. They were able to get Shortridge money, even up, and as a result they took every dollar that they could find in the State that had been offered on Shortridge. The day before election not a dollar of Shortridge money could be found in either Oakland or San Francisco. There can be no question but what the magnificent showing made by Knowland at the primaries indicates that he will be elected to the United States Senate by a tremendous majority.

Much in a Name

Luck figures in politics sometimes to as great an extent as either popularity or ability. Often it takes only a name to annex a big vote and not infrequently a man almost unknown, by a fortunate chance, is swept into office. I have in mind the case of Frank T. Deasy, who ran a good race and was nominated for Justice of the Peace. Young Deasy is a lawyer who has been admitted to practice only a few short months, and yet he received a larger vote than Judge Barnett, who has served several terms on the bench. The reason seems plain. His identity was confused with that of Judge Daniel C. Deasy, who has been a police magistrate for six years, and who is now running for the Superior Bench.

A similar incident occurred four years ago. James G. Conlan, then an assistant district attorney, was nominated for Justice of the Peace. He might have been elected, anyway, but the overwhelming vote he received was attributed to the fact that the citizens believed they were casting their ballot for Charles T. Conlan, for many years a police judge, who died soon after his election in 1910.

McNab Inactive

Gavin McNab did not take a very active part in the late campaign. Always a staunch Democrat, McNab has recently been keeping himself somewhat in the background, although supporting one or the other of the Bourbon selections. This year he was ranged behind Sydney Van Wyck, the San Francisco lawyer, who was badly outdistanced in the fight, and on election night he spent several hours watching the returns as they were flashed on the screen at Third and Market streets. Isidore Jacobs, who was prominently in the forefront at the time of the graft prosecution, was with McNab, and they talked of the days before direct primaries were thought of when the political leader was in the heyday of his glory.

McNab was much interested in the contest of 1894 which saw James Budd elected governor, and he took part in the famous convention held at the old Baldwin Hotel, soon after destroyed by fire, at which Budd's nomination was rammed through. The details caused much gossip at the time, but were soon forgotten when the Democrats came out victorious.

When the convention was called to order the committee on rules and order of business decided that the lesser nominations should be made first, and that with them disposed of, the convention should proceed to the selection of a candidate for governor. There was a dark and sinister plot behind this scheme of things, but it did not become apparent immediately. The friends of Jim Budd and Bernard Murphy of San Jose, both of whom aspired to gubernatorial honors, were about evenly divided.

In the course of the routine of the nominations, the name of J. M. Murphy of Del Norte county was brought forward for Supreme Justice. He seemed a good candidate and was duly chosen. Soon afterward the hour arrived for nominating a man for governor. Murphy's adherents were to the forefront immediately. They demanded to be heard.

Loud and long they argued, and Budd's backers admitted the truth of their claims, but they pointed out it would never do to have two Murphys running for such high offices on the ticket, and as they had already selected Murphy of Del Norte for Supreme Justice they could not very well go back of it.

There was some balking, but the Budd faction won out, and it was strategy that did it with Gavin McNab on the side of the strategists.

Freedom and Finance

Only the strenuous oration of the young man himself and the interference of Superior Judge Graham prevented John D. Spreckels Jr., millionaire grandson of the late Claus Spreckels, from being branded legally and in the court records as the stingiest man on earth. It happened during the delightfully friendly divorce proceedings which were on the docket for last Saturday morning. The accusing testimony had been given and corroborated. His honor was signing the papers. Suddenly Spreckels was called to the bench.

"Is this all the money you are going to allow your three little children?" questioned the court.

"How much is it?" Spreckels asked.

"Ten dollars a month," said Judge Graham.

"That's only nominal, your honor, the property settlements have been made out of court," interrupted one of the lawyers.

But I do not think it right for these records to show such an insignificant amount when the defendant is a wealthy man," responded the court.

"I had no idea that the amount was so small," declared Spreckels. "It must be increased."

"Make it fifty," suggested the attorney.

"Say a hundred," said Spreckels, and Judge Graham agreeing signed the decree.

This bit of by-play had been done in an undertone and was not even heard by Mrs. Spreckels, who also missed an exchange between her double-witted hubby, and her great aunt and corroborating witness, Mrs. Orndorf.

The latter was joshing with Spreckels about her witness fee, which must be paid by the defendant when judgment is given against him, and warned him not to make faces at her, saying she was nervous enough. He promised willingly and when the old lady greeted him again as she was about to leave the courtroom, he pressed a $20 gold piece into her hand.

ten times the amount due.

By the terms of the decree Mrs. Spreckels is given the custody of the three children. She accused her husband chiefly of staying away from home and keeping bad hours and otherwise treating her cruelly. He filed a general denial of her accusations on December 24th, and asked that she be refused a divorce, but made no effort to combat her testimony in court. Indeed at the last there was no chance of a reconciliation, although every effort was made to bring one about. Strange to say Judge Graham did not try his skill at mending broken hearts with this couple, and the beautiful Mrs. Jack Spreckels is free.

Army Recruits Increase

The tales of valor and the stories of the triumph of arms which are sifted through the censored dispatches vouchsafed us by the warring European nations have stirred up American patriotism to a surprising extent. A group of army officers were remarking on this fact one day this week at the St. Francis Hotel. It has excited the wonderment of military authorities all over the country, but is nowhere more evident than right here in San Francisco. The patriotic trend of the public mind was first noticed, one of the officers tells me, by the reports from the recruiting service here, where the number of men who have offered themselves for duty in the United States army has increased four-fold.

This city has always been one of the government's best recruiting centers, and Lieutenant-Colonel J. H. Gardner and his corps of assistants have never been forced to bewail the lack of applicants for admission to the ranks of Uncle Sam's fighting forces. San Francisco has, in fact, been third in importance, being exceeded in the number of men recruited only by New York and Chicago, in the order named. The remarkable part of the present situation, however, lies in the fact that comparatively little increase has been chronicled by the eastern offices. Within the last two weeks this city has passed Chicago and now takes second rank to New York in the number of men who have rallied to the colors since hostilities were declared in Europe. Indeed if the ratio of increase continues, my informant says he would not be surprised to see the metropolis outdistanced and San Francisco step into first place.

He explains the situation by saying that while we are three thousand miles farther from the seat of war than New York, still by reason of the visit to our shores of cruisers of the various nations and the thrill that accompanies a knowledge of their near proximity at sea, the spirit of patriotism has been instilled more potently into our veins.

When East Meets West

It has remained for Malcolm Whitman of Boston, who stole away the heart of our very own Jennie Crocker, to criticize our ultra-Bohemianism. To put the matter plainly and bluntly, he objects to our "climbers." Accustomed as he is to the conservative and closed society of Boston, he cannot quite understand the inclusive Western idea which dares fly in the face of the goddess of convention, and admits the "Rabble" to some of the dancants. So, we are told that he is to tie himself home and California is to see but little of him in the future.

And this reminds me that the "climbers" are increasing all the time. Money seems to be the necessary requisite for scaling the social heights, but it must be reinforced in most instances with quite a bit of persistence on the part of the feminine contingent of the seeker for admission within the ranks of the "400." I have in mind, however, a case where a scheming mother with much nerve and little cash managed to bridge the gap leading to the San Francisco smart set. By dint of much squeezing the family pocket book and considerable scrimping and saving elsewhere, she succeeded a few years ago in placing her daughters on the social pedestal, where one of them was seen and admired by a rich and most eligible young Oakland bachelor, who really belonged in exclusive circles. The marriage was a big event, and the fond mamma thought she was on easy street, as son-in-law boasted a goodly bank roll. Now I learn that things have turned out unhappily and a divorce suit brought by the young wife is pending. She has accused him of all sorts of cruelties, and as yet he has not answered, but a close friend says it is a case of too much mother-in-law.

No sacrifice had been too great for this mother to make to reach the goal of her ambition, an entrance for her girls into the realms of the social elect, but when the fish landed in her net, he refused to stay caught. It is expected that he will file a cross complaint and will not sit tamely by and allow his wife to take half of his property and a lion's share of his income by way of alimony.

"Dick" Tully's Future

I saw Richard Walton Tully coming out of a downtown theater the other night. He was accompanied by a very beautiful young woman, and I wonder whether we might expect another romance as soon as the divorce decree granted last week in Los Angeles is made final. Tully is a very likable fellow and his fiancee, Lillian Gates, a teacher and charming woman. Had fame never come to these two, and had they lived an ordinary quiet existence, I make no doubt they would both be still hugging the same fireside. It was the interference of relatives on Tully's side of the house that started the trouble some years ago.

They patched up their differences the first time. The reconciliation took place right here in San Francisco, but was not destined to last long. When they separated recently in New York it was agreed that

It was rumored some time back that Tully was to wed Mrs. Anita Baldwin McClaughery, daughter of the late "Lucky" Baldwin, but this has been denied. Mrs. McClaughery wrote the music for his most recent success, "Omar the Tent Maker," but it is said that they were never more than good friends.

Tully first gained fame in his college days by writing a sketch which was put on at the University of California called "The Freshman." It was later presented by stock companies all over the country and made a hit everywhere. His next big effort was "Juaniita of San Juan," but this was not well received until it appeared with a new coat put on by David Belasco and entitled "The Rose of the Rancho." Tully and Belasco reaped a fortune out of the piece in its revamped form. "The Bird of Paradise" and "Omar the Tent Maker" have been Tully's other achievements, and have earned for him a deserved fame.

Tully's marriage followed a romance begun when he and Miss Gates were students at the University of California. Miss Gates is herself an able authoress and playwright. Her "Poor Little Rich Girl" and "Cupid the Cow-Punch" are widely known, and while her recent play, "We Are Seven," was not crowned with success in New York, it will earn her many a royalty from the stock companies the country over.

Can Firemen Strike?

The rank and file of the San Francisco Fire Department have formed an organization for offense and defense. This action was taken secretly in direct defiance of the powers that be, and by way of a rebuke for Chief Thomas R. Murphy, who his subordinates say has been forgetting the men in his anxiety to increase the efficiency of his particular arm of the city government.

The first attempt of the firemen to organize met with a stern rebuke from the commissioners. It was pointed out to them that they were civil service employees and had no right to attempt, by concentrating their forces, to dictate to their superiors. In order, therefore, to obey the letter, if not the spirit of the law, the men invited about ten outsiders to join with them and formed the David Scannell Club, taking for their title the name of a much revered chief of the older days. Then they came forward the other night and demanded their rights, consisting this time of more time off and a little less rigorous discipline.

This does not mean that Murphy has not been an efficient head for the department. Never before has the fire fighting force been in better condition, but his subordinates are contending that he is a hard disciplinarian and is more alive to improving the service than to lessening the labors of the men. It was rumored a while back that Mayor Rolph was after Murphy's scalp. This was at the time Fire Commissioner Hammer resigned after refusing to take the mayor's program on the question of promoting battalion chiefs. Murphy was a little fearful of the result himself, but it is now understood that he is to be kept in his berth despite the fact that Commissioner Brandenstein, one of his sympathizers, has quit because he is "out of sympathy with the administration."

May Publish Here

Ben S. Allen, until recently on the staff of the Associated Press in London, who has just received his orders to return to duty immediately, came to California two months ago with the intention of buying a daily newspaper. Allen left England on a six months' leave, but had practically made up his mind not to return, when the war broke out. Since then he has been hoping for instructions that would take him nearer to the scene of hostilities.

Allen has the ambition to become a publisher, and he is backed financially by his wife's uncle. The latter, a London millionaire, is willing to back Allen to an unlimited extent, such is his confidence in the judgment of the young newspaper man. Allen is anxious to get hold of a newspaper property in this region, and was looking over the ground when hostilities started on the other side of the Atlantic. It is probable that even had he not desired to act as war correspondent he would have had to wait until things financial cleared up a bit in England before making a plunge here. Allen's wife, formerly Miss Victoria French, who will remain here during his absence in Europe, is well known in Oakland, where she attended Mills College.

Judge Weller Ill

Judge Charles L. Weller has been very ill at his Pacific avenue home for several days. A consultation of physicians has been held, and it is hoped that he will pull through. Judge Weller is the only jurist in California he recalled, and although his friends have stood loyally by him, he has never been quite himself since the day he was forced to give up his bench and step down in favor of Judge Wiley F. Crist. His recall at the hands of the electorate broke Judge Weller's heart. His offense, the releasing of a young woman's assailant on small bail, had been committed by every other police magistrate on more than one occasion. It happened, however, that several women had interested themselves in the disappearance of the defendant was followed by public clamor for the scalp of the w

28 SUNDAY MORNING.

SUN TRACED LINE OF BURIED CITY

Professor Voyle Writes of Discovering Evidence of An Ancient Community.

BENKELEY, Aug. 29.—That a highly intelligent race of people, apparently sun-worshippers, once occupied the site where Berkeley now stands; that they built here a great city after their custom, and that by means of physical means of research, has traced the boundaries of this ancient site is the claim Professor Joseph Voyle of this city sets forth in a statement he has laid before Professor T. T. Waterman of the University of California department of anthropology.

The statement is made to Professor Waterman because of the latter's interest in the site as the site of a former Indian village. Various excavations on the campus, and especially along Strawberry creek, have resulted so uniformly in the discovery of Indian skeletons, skulls and relics that Professor Waterman recently stated this interesting new com's Professor Voyle with the statement that his own investigations brought him before the present time to this conclusion. He makes the following claims:

"The four corners of the city were at the spots now marked approximately by the Hearst hall, the main entrance of the Hearst Greek theater, the mining building and Harmon gymnasium. The baseball field was bounded by the line of the sun when it was at its further north and south in the west in summer and winter."

It is determined by him by the use of a compass, while the Indians, it is said, were guided by the stars.

Professor Voyle was formerly president of the local society for psychical research which was a branch of the national organization. His letter to Professor Waterman is as follows:

"I friend called my attention to an article in the OAKLAND TRIBUNE by which I see that you and others are interested in the evidence of an ancient people having occupied this region, and that this aroused interest in the discovery I made that highly intelligent people had placed in the ground radioactive marks, on their surveyors lines, thus marking the boundaries of large square which was subdivided into smaller squares, marked in similar manner by buried stones, indicators that are now today so strong in their radioactivity that they are easily found by proper instruments, properly used."

The Campanile is near the center of that divided area. Corner near the Hearst hall, number two is near the main entrance of the Hearst Greek theater, number three is west of the Hearst mining college, and number four is near the gymnasium.

LINES ARE BROKEN.

"The lines that were then clear, are now broken by the new buildings. The northern one was broken in digging for the foundation of the mining college, under which it passes."

"The base lines are not north and south, why are they broken in these directions?" That was an interesting item which I studied out on the basis that the marks were placed by the Indians, whose customs was similar to ancient Egyptian methods, by burning radioactive material, of selected qualities, in which I had been instructed, so I thought that the direction of the base line there was probably south of theirs, which was the direction of the setting sun, as it was greatest northern or southern declination."

"I was president of the Society for Psychical Research, we had classes for special studies; one was the use of the psychical compass, or so-called divining rod, which I think was the Egyptian form." The forked stick was so familiar to the ancient Egyptians that they used it as one of their hieroglyphic writing signs or letters. Some can use it, others cannot, it's according to the degree of the person, and the psychic force in the person's hands, which is very strong in some persons, but very weak in other persons, who therefore cannot use it."

"At that time, the sun's greatest northern declination, about Sept. 21, came on Sunday. We made an appointment to test the direction of the line on that day, at sunset."

"I chose a line that had the longest clear view in that direction, (on which West had his house built)."

"The members of the class, with their instruments found the line, and, when the sun was near the horizon, they stood in a row on that line. Then, when the sun was nearer the horizon than its own diameter, I caused them to stand one step back from the line, and I took hold of my arm, and see if it was on the line when the sun touched the horizon."

"I held up my arm, and its shadow was exactly along that line."

"This suggests that the purpose of that sun-worshiping was for the assembly of sun-worshippers at the time of its passage across the Golden Gate, twice each year, on its passage northwards and southwards."

"The setting sun, at such times, can be seen at the top of the eastern horizon. Each evening after it is a little farther in, and so it continues until it passes to and beyond the other side."

"During that crossing, the sun are often magnificent, beautifully illumined scenes, according to the atmospheric conditions; it may be clear, or the clouds obscure the Pacific horizon, the water reflects the sunlight like a mirror, the sun making a central line of gorgeous golden and glorious beauty, straight through the Golden Gate and across the bay."

SUN WORSHIPPERS.

"If a cloud is above the sun, there are changes in the light, the fog, the scene is arranged in an atmospheric way, the golden glorious beauty, unsurpassed anywhere in the whole world!"

"From the campus site there was a scene of charming, excellent, variable beauty that sun-worshippers could hardly approach, and consider that went to a treasure site of temples and observation, which site is now on the campus of the University of the State of California, with its highly elevated Campanile near the center of that prehistoric site, the sun's rays, the golden light, which by a brilliant golden yellow light, may be a safe night guide for vessels passing in and out of the Golden Gate."

DEDICATION IS ARRANGED PRELATE WILL OFFICIATE

St. MARK'S CATHOLIC CHURCH AT RICHMOND WHICH WILL BE DEDICATED TODAY.

RICHMOND, Aug. 29.—The members of St. Mark's parish are arranging an elaborate program for Sunday, September 6, when the newly completed church edifice will be dedicated by Archbishop Patrick Riordan.

The old building was practically destroyed by fire on May 21, but work was at once begun on the new.

Professor Voyle was formerly president of the local society for psychical research which was a branch of the national organization. His letter to Professor Waterman is as follows:

"A friend called my attention to an article in the OAKLAND TRIBUNE by which I see that you and others are interested in the evidence of an ancient people having occupied this region, and that this aroused interest in the discovery I made that highly intelligent people had placed in the ground radioactive marks, on their surveyors lines, thus marking the boundaries of large square which was subdivided into smaller squares, marked in similar manner by buried stones, indicators that are now today so strong in their radioactivity that they are easily found by proper instruments, properly used."

The Campanne is near the center of that divided area. Corner near the Hearst hall, number two is near the main entrance of the Hearst Greek theater, number three is west of the Hearst mining college, and number four is near the gymnasium.

LINES ARE BROKEN.

"The lines that were then clear, are now broken by the new buildings. The northern one was broken in digging for the foundation of the mining college, under which it passes."

"The base lines are not north and south, why are they broken in these directions?" That was an interesting item which I studied out on the basis that the marks were placed by the Indians, whose customs was similar to ancient Egyptian methods, by burning radioactive material, of selected qualities, in which I had been instructed, so I thought that the direction of the base line there was probably south of theirs, which was the direction of the setting sun, as it was greatest northern or southern declination."

"I was president of the Society for Psychical Research, we had classes for special studies; one was the use of the psychical compass, or so-called divining rod, which I think was the Egyptian form." The forked stick was so familiar to the ancient Egyptians that they used it as one of their hieroglyphic writing signs or letters. Some can use it, others cannot, it's according to the degree of the person, and the psychic force in the person's hands, which is very strong in some persons, but very weak in other persons, who therefore cannot use it."

"At that time, the sun's greatest northern declination, about Sept. 21, came on Sunday. We made an appointment to test the direction of the line on that day, at sunset."

"I chose a line that had the longest clear view in that direction, (on which West had his house built)."

The members of the class, with their instruments found the line, and, when the sun was near the horizon, they stood in a row on that line. Then, when the sun was nearer the horizon than its own diameter, I caused them to stand one step back from the line, and I took hold of my arm, and see if it was on the line when the sun touched the horizon."

I held up my arm, and its shadow was exactly along that line."

This suggests that the purpose of that sun-worshiping was for the assembly of sun-worshippers at the time of its passage across the Golden Gate, twice each year, on its passage northwards and southwards."

The setting sun, at such times, can be seen at the top of the eastern horizon. Each evening after it is a little farther in, and so it continues until it passes to and beyond the other side."

During that crossing, the sun are often magnificent, beautifully illumined scenes, according to the atmospheric conditions; it may be clear, or the clouds obscure the Pacific horizon, the water reflects the sunlight like a mirror, the sun making a central line of gorgeous golden and glorious beauty, straight through the Golden Gate and across the bay."

SUN WORSHIPPERS.

"From the campus site there are changes in the light, the fog, the scene is arranged in an atmospheric way, the golden glorious beauty, unsurpassed anywhere in the whole world!"

"From the campus site there was a scene of charming, excellent, variable beauty that sun-worshippers could hardly approach, and consider that went to a treasure site of temples and observation, which site is now on the campus of the University of the State of California, with its highly elevated Campanile near the center of that prehistoric site, the sun's rays, the golden light, which by a brilliant golden yellow light, may be a safe night guide for vessels passing in and out of the Golden Gate."

PROGRESS OF GREAT WAR ACROSS ATLANTIC.

They are still hammering away at each other across the water, and while we who live in peaceful America are wending our several ways this morning to the accompaniment of church bells, the great guns and small arms of the engaging armies are sounding the death knell of thousands of bright young men who have looked upon their last sunrise. War knows no God, no Sabbath, no religion, no mercy, no humanity, no tenderness. For this insatiable beast with the endless thirst for blood there is no rest as long as victims are in sight and his course will be pursued until one side or the other is almost annihilated.

The Kaiser appears to be pressing toward Paris, the German objective, while the armies of the allies are disputing every foot of ground with his hundreds of battalions. The British and Belgians appear to have been enduring the brunt of the battle, if the news of the censored dispatches may be considered reliable, and it doubtless is. But it is still a long way to the French capital and before the eagles of Germany fly from the staffs which now display the tri-color there will have to be a lot of fighting done.

Meanwhile the Czar is pressing his advantages on the east to pay some attention to that side of the conflict. Like an army of ants the Slavs are marching by millions to overwhelm the Germans, and it looks as if they are bound to succeed, because the Czar's armies of today are not the same as those which grappled with Japan; they have been reorganized and brought to a point near perfection. The commissariat is in perfect order and with ample supplies it looks as if Nicholas might cause more havoc in the realms of his royal relative than the latter credited him with being able to accomplish.

It is noted also that Great Britain has, after a long silence, put her navy in commission and proposes wiping out the Germans in the North Sea. Yesterday's victory, while not an overwhelming one, was at the same time of importance. It destroyed a section of the first line of Germany's defense on water, and a series of repetitions will expose the north coast to attacks from sea, which in spite of the superb fortifications, will cause great harm.

The end is not yet by any means. While the onslaught has been grand in its magnificence and the German hordes have displayed great bravery in rushing to certain death in order to win by sheer force of numbers, Briton and Gaul have met attack with attack and have opposed the advance with a persistence and stubbornness that indicates that whatever measure of success that will be achieved will be paid for dearly.

Poor little Belgium, however, has suffered most. Her crops have been destroyed, her cities are being laid waste, her places of beauty are desolated, her sons lie by thousands on the bloody fields, where they fought to preserve their neutrality, and the women and children are weeping for the sleepers who will never awake, for the sound of the voices forever stilled. For what?

The Germans having overcome all opposition to the invasion of France and the allied armies having successfully resisted it, we have at last found a solution of the problem of an irresistible force encountering an immovable body.

RICH VIANDS SERVED IN PALATIAL HALLS.

Some days ago a Washington dispatch announced the finding in an unused closet near the senate chamber of a lunch, evidently deposited there by Senator Coke of Texas twenty-one years ago. Said lunch was declared to be in a "good state of preservation," although the correspondent made no attempt to describe it in its Texan simplicity.

This incident prompts the Houston Chronicle to arise in its place and view with pride the simplicity of other days, when statesmen carried their dried beef sandwiches and apple pie with them, and to deplore these decadent times when "senators eat their luncheon in the marble restaurant, where the richest viands, prepared by professional chefs, are to be obtained."

The simplicity of the olden days may have been correctly described by the Houston Chronicle, but as to this "richest viands" business, it is manifest that the writer in the Texas journal alluded to gets his information anent restaurant menus at long distance, or that conditions have materially changed within a year or two.

One has to be more or less personal in relating incidents, but without venturing to speak in the first person it may be related that a certain individual, not a thousand miles from the desk whereon this is written had occasion for a brief period of two or three months to eat luncheon in this "marble restaurant" mentioned.

There isn't a restaurant of the first-class in Oakland, or in Houston for that matter, that cannot give the senate cafe all the cards, big and little casino and three aces and fail to win. While it is true the feeding place is in a magnificent structure, the food served is no better than it is down at Dietz's on New Jersey avenue, where a fellow can get an oyster pie for a dime.

It is recalled on one occasion that during the hour when these "richest viands" were being served, that tall, lengthy and somewhat robust Smoot of Utah, had for his noonday feed a plate of pork and beans, with bread and butter and milk—Smoot is a Mormon and doesn't drink coffee—for thirty-five cents; Sutherland, his colleague, handed himself two codfish cakes and some potatoes at about the same price; Burton of Ohio was rambling between a piece of apple pie on his left and a hunk of cheese on the right, with a glass of lacteal fluid, while J. H. Lewis was enveloped in a napkin as large as a bed sheet, dipping up sustenance from a bowl of bread and milk big enough to stop a cow.

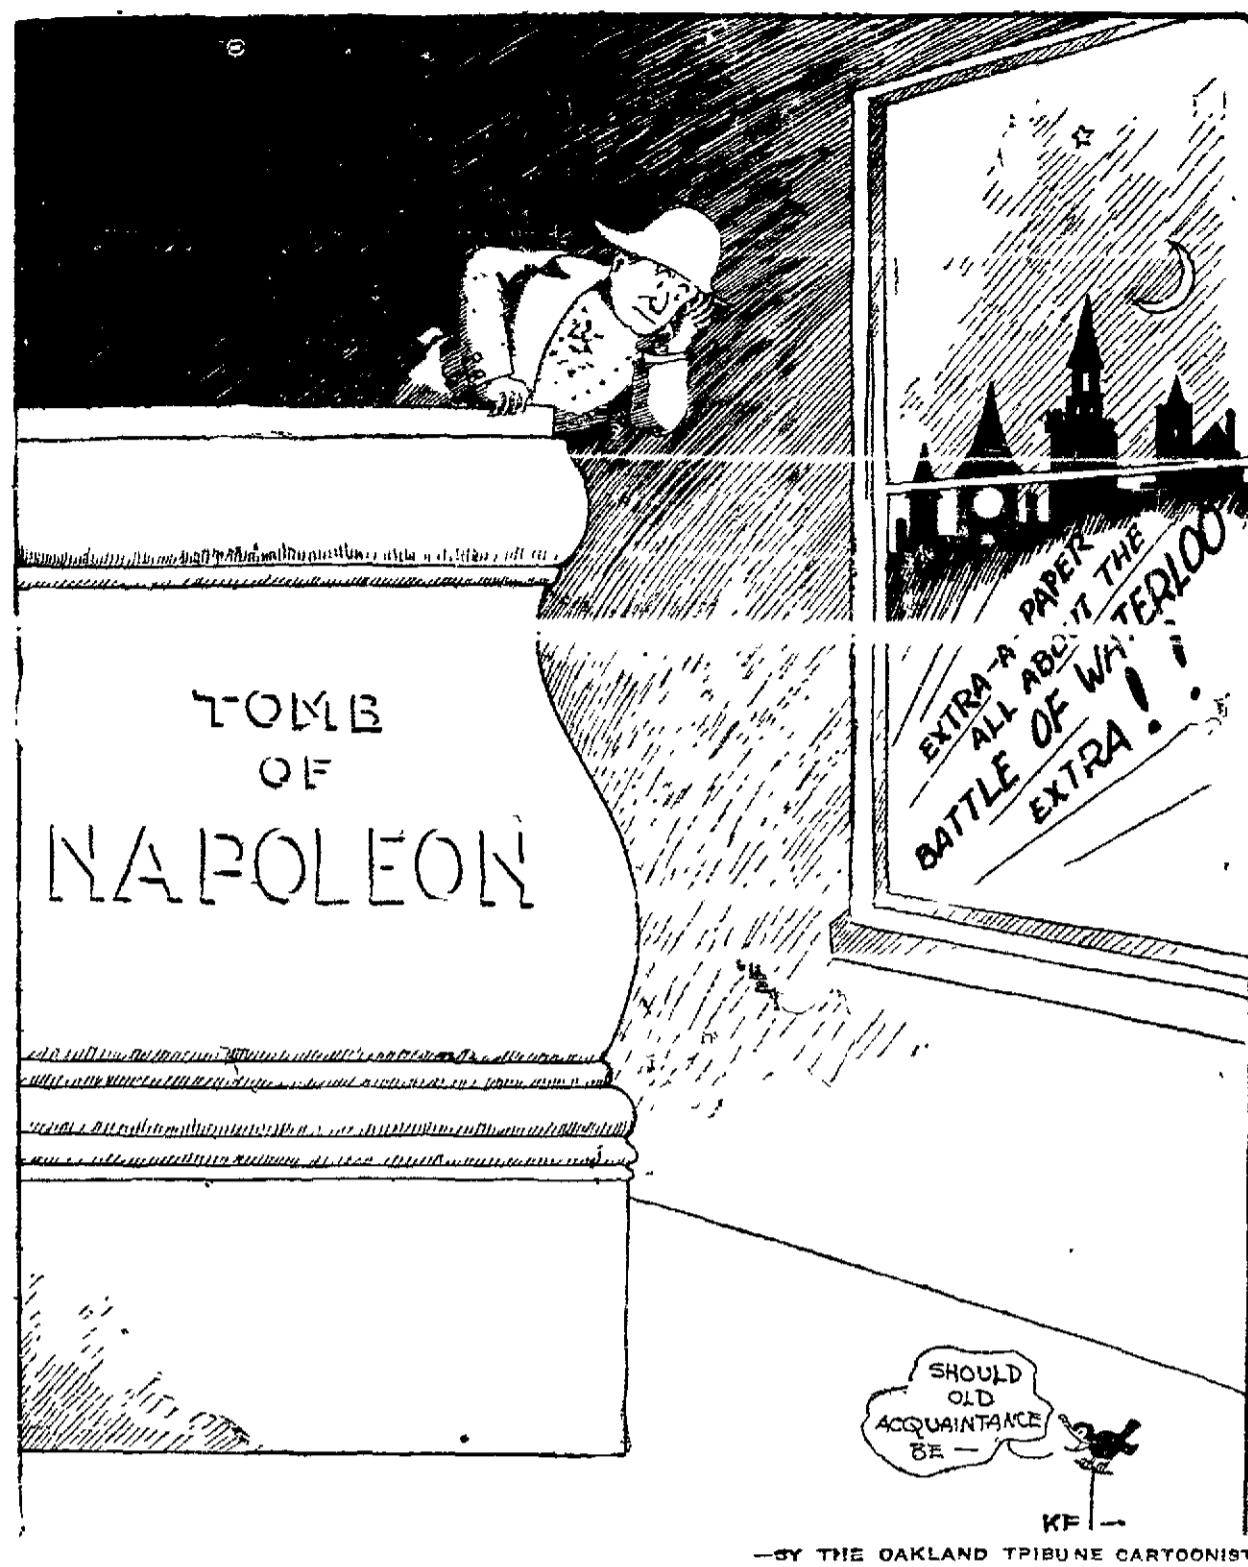

Various other statesmen were messing around with two soft-boiled eggs or ham and, and the entire cost of their combined meals wouldn't have totaled as much as it costs to take a Houston girl on a joy ride and the "eats" following.

There is a certain glamor in alluding to the old-timers who "lived" their own lunches and lived the simple life while making the laws. It sounds good whenever a modern statesman is caught eating fried oysters to remind his constituents that said statesman's father baked his potatoes in the ashes of the fireplace, but as a matter of cold fact leaders of thought and action in this country are not the extravagant individuals they are pictured, and there is just as much simplicity in their manner of living as there was in the days when George Washington used to file bills with the treasury department for liquid refreshments for himself and "gin slings" for his negro servant, or when Daniel Webster and Henry Clay occasionally took a shot at the high spots.

Senator Coke may have been all right in carrying his lunch of bread and butter, sour pickles and fried turnovers and washing his food down with a glass of water, but the modern senator who passes himself some bacon and hen fruit cooked by a descendant of the old slaves, is just as thrifty and gets a darned sight more satisfaction out of life.

Addison R. Fenwick, formerly managing editor of The Call, San Francisco, has established himself in Tacoma with a bright weekly paper entitled "What's Doing," devoted to society, politics, comment, clubs, drama, finance, golf, fashions, music, tennis, and the like. The initial number of which has been received. "What's Doing" is bright in every department and reflects the ability of Fenwick, who is a newspaper man from way back in the centuries, although he looks as young as he used to be. As printed on good paper, its illustrations are excellent, its quips and quirks full of pep, its news features well arranged and last, but by no means least, its advertising patronage is what the people of Oyster Bay would describe as "bully."

WHAT'S THAT?

—BY THE OAKLAND TRIBUNE CARTOONIST

AMENDMENTS NEXT; PLEASE RUSH THEM.

Secretary of State Jordan is a busy man; so is State Printer Richardson. Both offices are working under pressure most of the time as a result of the peculiar system of legislation adopted in California. Realizing this, THE TRIBUNE is impelled, however, to earnestly suggest to both officials the urgent necessity of getting the various constitutional amendments, initiative and referendum propositions and joint resolutions upon which the electorate will pass at the general election, ready for distribution as soon as possible. This suggestion is made not in a spirit of unkindness, but for the sole purpose of getting the various propositions in the homes of the voters at the earliest possible moment, that an opportunity for study may be afforded.

It is comparatively easy for the elector to determine his or her choice of candidates for office, but when it comes to passing laws and amending the constitution, that is different. THE TRIBUNE has in its office a list of the propositions to be voted upon, arranged in the briefest manner and form. As they will appear on the ballot the first is for the calling of a convention to revise the constitution. That will carry, as it should. The Constitution of California needs revision, for as at present constituted it resembles one of the patch-work quilts of our grandmother more than anything else and at the rate amendments are being submitted and adopted by a careless and indifferent body politic, if great care is not exercised it will not be long ere we shall have one section affirming, the other negativating, and endless confusion in our litigation.

The second proposition is the prohibitory amendment, the third the universal eight-hour law, the fourth the so-called "red-light" measure and the fifth the investment companies act. This paper assumes that so far as the prohibitory amendment is concerned, most of the voters of the State have made up their minds as to how they will vote, and that the same applies to the eight-hour law and the "red-light" measure. But as to proposition five, the "investment companies act," how many persons in this State have even a slight understanding of its provisions?

This act was passed by the last Legislature and submitted to the electors by referendum. As it will appear on the ballot under its title, it will read as follows:

Investment Companies Act—Submitted to electors by referendum. Creates state corporation department. Authorizes governor to appoint commissioner of corporations who shall employ necessary deputies, fix their compensation, have control over investment companies and investment brokers and power of examination thereof as in State banks; prohibits issuance of securities before investigation by commissioner, regulates issuance and sale thereof, etc., etc., etc.

Now what man or woman confronted with that proposition and having heard arguments neither for or against, is qualified to exercise an opinion? While it is true this measure received considerable publicity at the time it was passed by the Legislature, how many of the electors recall those arguments or remember what was urged on behalf or against it, with the exception of the men directly interested in its passage or defeat?

It should be recalled that this is only one of the many; there are a dozen or more changes in fundamental law that demand careful study and thought. Not all the voters are going to take the time necessary to intelligently inform themselves on any of these propositions, outside the four leading ones. They will be willing to let the rest go by default. A few will study the entire list and vote according to their convictions, but the great mass of men and women are too busy trying to earn a livelihood to be interested in matters of legislation. But for the benefit of those who will devote time and attention to these matters this paper urges a prompt circulation of the acts, amendments and resolutions, together with the arguments pro and con to the end that the thinking class may be enabled to form conclusions accordingly.

Defeated by Benjamin K. Knight, Superior Judge Lucas F. Smith of Santa Cruz county, is said to have an eye on the post-office at the county seat, an acquaintance with the Vice-President being a strong point to success. It takes more than a primary election to keep your Uncle Lucas away from the pie counter.

"THE LOVE OF GOD!"

Text—God is love—I John 4, 8

Love is the oldest thing in the world. It was in the Garden of Eden. Noah was not a stranger to the sentiment, and love and romance shows in the life and work of Queen Esther, in Rebecca waiting for her lover at the well and even that holy sentiment is used to build the four walls of a home for the lowly Nazarene. Love is the newest thing in the world. Last night lovers tarried together whispering words of endearment, and this morning the husband kissed his wife good-bye as he left for his work. Love is the most common thing in the world. Everybody knows about it. It is the first thing the baby sees as it is ushered into the world, when the mother smiles down upon it. And conditions are created when some loving hand does not close down the eyelids that have been kissed by death. So common is love that an old bachelor two thousand years ago, wrote a classic on the subject upsetting all of our calculations, for we would assign such a task to a mother with her baby in her arms. The writer began his classic with these words: "Though I speak with the tongues of men and of clares that 'love never fails,' and contrasts it with the multitude of things that do fail us, closing with the remarkable statement that even faith and hope are but the hand-maids of love.

GOD IS LOVE

To me it is remarkable that God has used this thing that is so old and yet so new and common with which to acquaint us with himself. God is love. That is his character, his nature, and it colors all that he does to, with and for us in time and eternity. It is not only well to know this, but it is well to keep it constantly in mind.

Sometimes trouble in sable garments stalks abroad knocks at our doors, entices out home and carries off that which we hold dear. Immediately we say, "It's a judgment from heaven." The tempter whispers that an injustice has been done. Often to our grief through loss of a treasure there is added a sense of the divine chastisement. Let us not be misled. Trouble is not the sign of God's ill will. One of the characteristics of true love is that it at times is stern. The sternness of love is but little understood by the average mortal. Yet we know, when we stop to think that a father who fails to correct his child because it will hurt is after all not a good father, and his love is weak. Spain spares the rod, spoils her children, becomes a second-rate power. The Grecian mother sent her son out with his shield. He was expected to return with honor or dead on his shield. So the nation became great.

DIVINE FIRE.

Not otherwise does the Heavenly Father deal with his children. We are fashioning a character. There is a great deal of dress in the best of us. When under the divine fire the dross is brought out we will reflect the image of our Maker the refiner. Often, quite unconsciously, we do homage to this principle. We see a face that reminds us of everything that is good, and we say, "What would I not give to be like that?" Everything has its price. And when we learn the long road and the weary climb there may be some who will say,

"Nearer my God, to Thee, Nearer to Thee
Even though it be a cross
That raiseth me."

But most people will not welcome the cross. Yet the cross is the final proof of the love of God.

And spiritual beauty is a flower that seems to flourish most frequently just under its shadow.

DIVINE INSTINCT

But the best proof of the love of God is found in His gifts. Love must give and the lover who crowds tokens of affection on the object of his devotion is but following out the divine instinct. Of wealthy lords we expect rich gifts and of the greatest lovers the greatest gifts. So of God our great our rich Lover we expect a large gift, and we are not disappointed.

Sometimes in an emergency one man a friend, will die for another. We never question such evidences of devotion. But only once in all history has a man died for his enemies. That man was the One who came as God's gift to a sorrowing world. So the death of Jesus Christ on the cross suffering for the world, losing His life to save it is an appeal to the royal instinct in our nature for should a friend give his son to die for me, he is evermore my friend and nothing shall divide us nor even death itself. Likewise we reason, because God withheld not His own Son but freely delivered Him up for us all even while we were yet sinners, we are sure that God is love.

GOOD ROADS BILL LIKELY TO PASS

Measure Would Benefit Entire Country; Permits States to Borrow.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—The benefits of the entire country. If the good roads bill just favorably reported by the Senate postoffice and post roads committee should be passed, will be invaluable. Chances for its passage are said to be extremely good, for there is a widespread demand for it, which comes from all quarters, from the national treasury, it will not be opposed by those who are safeguarding the treasury in the fear of a deficit.

The bill merely permits the various states, if they should desire to take advantage of it, to borrow money at the same low rate that the national government can obtain. In effect, it loans the credit of the national government in the money market to the states through the purchasing guarantee of the bonds.

In order to insure that no state restraining, and that the government may not be strained to the breaking point a limitation is placed upon the amount each state can issue. The aggregate of all must not exceed $500,000,000. Each state's share of this big total is determined by taking an average of four items, or averaging the amounts it would receive if the money was divided according to the following ratios: Area, population, number of roads and total assessed property value.

With the amount to which a state is entitled determined, the remainder is very simple, and very satisfactory to states which desire to improve their roads, but do not wish to pay too much interest and sinking funds for the money with which to make the improvements.

JUDGE ASSERTS WORTH OF MOTHER OF ELEVEN

DENVER, Aug. 29.—Rejecting the assertion of the attorneys for John H. Williams that a woman advanced in years and who had borne her husband eleven children was not worth as much money as a young woman, Judge Butler of the district court overruled Williams' motion for a trial of the suit brought against him by John H. Hartman, a Grand county rancher, and entered judgment for $5000 against Williams.

Hartman had sued Williams for damages for alienating his wife's affections. Hartman had contended that he and his wife had lived happily and reared a family of eleven children until Williams had come to the ranch as a hired man. Soon after Williams' arrival Mrs. Hartman and the young man became quite friendly, with the result that the family was broken up.

It was after a jury had awarded Hartman $8000 that Williams, through his attorney, set up the claim that the verdict was excessive and should be set aside, because Mrs. Hartman was fairly advanced in years and the mother of eleven children. Judge Butler held that the age and the fact that Mrs. Hartman had given birth to eleven children had nothing to do with the case.

Was Large Club Will Reorganize

MISS DORIS HADLEY.

The well-known Saturday Night Club, for many years one of Oakland's most popular dancing cotillions, is to be reorganized under the name of the "Oakland Assembly."

The Saturday Night Club was one of the most successful cotillions ever held in this city, having enjoyed its two seasons a year for the past eleven years. During all this time it was controlled by practically the same executive committee, with new additions from time to time, as members were called away or married, it being one of the rules of the organization that no married couple could belong.

The new executive committee is composed of Al A. Childs, Earl L. McCargar, Homer T. Miller, Otto L. Gathen and several others. The work of reorganization is well under way and much enthusiasm is being shown by the old members. The personnel of the new club will remain much the same as in former years, and all are awaiting the issuing of invitations and the selection of dates for the coming season. The dances will be held in Ebell Hall, the former home of the club. Prominent among those who will take a prominent part in the coming series is Miss Doris Hadley.

ARRANGE FOR HARVEST FESTIVAL AT MT. DIABLO

Arrangements are being perfected for the big Labor Day harvest festival and carnival to be held September 5, 6 and 7 at Mt. Diablo Park, near Danville, Contra Costa county, under the auspices of the Mt. Diablo Park Club.

The program of amusement and entertainment will include vaudeville every evening in the open air amphitheater, an old fashioned barn dance nightly in the mammoth barn of the famous Seth Cook ranch. Amateur athletic field sports and games: trotting, running and pacing races on the circular mile track and a daily rodeo and wild west exhibition.

The first battalion of the Fifth Regiment, N. G. C., accompanied by their uniformed brass band, will go into their annual encampment there at that time and will entertain with maneuvers, including guard mounts and a dress parade.

On Sunday there will be a concert by the Berkeley Glee Club, assisted by Miss Esther Mundell, soprano soloist. This concert has been arranged under the direction of Miss Margaret Bradley of this city.

The Oakland, Antioch and Eastern railroad will run special trains to the festival.

RESCUES HIS WIFE: SUICIDE PLAN FAILS

VENICE, Aug. 29.—Because he could not bear to see his wife following him into the ocean and was forced to back and save her, Cole Hubert, former motion picture actor, attempted suicide by drowning at Venice, according to reports to the Venice police.

Eyewitnesses, in reporting to the police, said that Hubert had entertained friends at the Oceanic Hotel until a late hour. Returning home, he met his wife. She upbraided him.

They talked over their troubles a half hour on the beach. According to persons who saw the drama, Hubert suddenly sprang up, discarded coat, hat and cane, and ran into the surf. His wife, screaming, followed. A huge wave overwhelmed her. Hubert turned back to save her.

A half hundred persons, who heard Mrs. Hubert's screams, hurried to the scene.

Hubert meanwhile had rescued his wife and left her on the beach, safe but unconscious. Then, eyewitnesses say, he ran back into the ocean to continue his suicidal attempt.

Thomas Fliege, 1218 West Eighth street, Los Angeles, started to carry Mrs. Hubert home, with others helping.

CITY "WAR" OVER

The war is over. This is the war between J. W. Donnel, proprietor, and the city government. Donnel anticipated without conditions and laid the city a war indemnity of $25. Also he paid his license for two quarters, the back quarter and one in advance besides promising to observe the law in the future. The indemnity of $25 was assessed this morning by Judge Torrey, before whom, after a sensational trial in which his attorney spent one night jail for contumaciousness, he was found guilty by a jury of conducting his business without a license.

WATER-FRONT DEVELOPMENT IS RUSHING

NEW DRIVE WILL BRING CROWDS

Thousands to Traverse Scenic Roadway During 1915

Up to the present time Oakland has had a remarkably small proportion of the tourist travel.

Now at last, thanks to Highland Drive, slope residence section, a distinct tourist movement toward Oakland is perceptible.

Two of the big tourist sightseeing companies of San Francisco have begun systematically bringing visitors to this side of the bay, this in addition to the trolley traffic conducted by the Traction Company.

As a result the scenic beauties of the east shore of San Francisco bay are becoming daily more widely known.

The San Francisco tourist agencies are now bringing parties to the Harbor route, ferry to the foot of Broadway, and thence out Broadway and Telegraph avenue to the university grounds. Here they are shown the Greek Theater, the beautiful buildings of this, the second largest university in the United States, and the stately beauty of the Sather Campanile, now nearing completion.

From the university grounds they are taken through the beautiful park of Piedmont avenue of Berkeley to Claremont court, and thence past the show places of Claremont, particularly the Hart mansion and the hill-crowning residence of Henry Taylor, the millionaire lumberman. From Claremont the tourists are systematically conveyed along College avenue and Broadway to Piedmont, where they visit Piedmont Park and Havens' Art Gallery.

The beautiful mansions of Piedmont, such as those of Edison Adams, Mrs. A. A. Moore, Wallace Alexander, W. H. Creed and A. H. Breed, never fail to elicit enthusiastic comment from the tourist crowds. Panning at the crest of the hill at the upper end of Mandana boulevard, the tourists are permitted to survey the magnificent panoramas presented by Lake Merritt, the city, the bay, and distant mountain ranges. From this point they are taken down Mandana boulevard, past the marble white boat-landing on Lake Merritt, given a view of the marina, and then are taken through the charming curved roads of Lakeside Park.

It is understood that tourist agencies who are selling tickets on the installment plan in the East for the exposition trip, include in these tickets not only transportation, but also hotel accommodations, side trips, and are making contracts with local sight-seers companies to take tens of thousands of people over Highland drive through Oakland, Piedmont and Berkeley in 1915.

Contracts have been signed whereby a thousand business men and their families of Cincinnati will be taken over Highland drive. Another contract with a Canadian tourist agency is said to provide for 10,000 trips. Each one of the Canadian visitors will arrive with a coupon good for a trip over Highland drive. The agent of the Canadian tourist company is reported to have predicted, when here recently, that hundreds of Canadians, after viewing the beauty of the hill-slope residence parks of Oakland, Piedmont and Berkeley would return to take up their residence on the east shore of the bay. "Highland drive is one of the most beautiful scenic boulevards of its sort that I have ever seen," he said. "We have nothing approaching it in our country, and I confidently expect that we shall lose some of our wealthier Canadians when they see the attractions that you have here."

BIG DEAL IS MADE

One of the biggest real estate deals consummated in many months has just been closed in Oakland between E. N. Tapscott, the big real estate operator, and the Prudential Land and Bonding company of San Francisco. The amount of the sale will run close to $300,000.

The Prudential Land and Bonding company is a San Francisco corporation, of which the directors are Hon. Theodore A. Bell, former congressman; L. B. Edwards, of Edwards, Brewster & Glover, and F. B. Robinson, of the F. E. Robinson Co. and Assemblyman Arthur L. Shannon. E. Ragsdale is the sales manager for the corporation.

The property which changed hands in the transaction is the unsold portion of Toler Heights, located on the Foothill boulevard and Ninetieth avenue car line, one block from the Southern Pacific electric interurban line.

Toler Heights is referred to as "The Piedmont of East Oakland" because of its commanding view and charming surroundings. Some of the wealthiest families of Oakland, and one of San Francisco's wealthiest bankers have their villa homes in the foothills adjoining Toler Heights. The Sequoyah Country Club is building a handsome club house to cost about $35,000 and when completed will be the center of Oakland's exclusive social set.

Tapscott, who is recognized as one of the big real estate operators of California has never forced the sale of homesites in Toler Heights—he knew that the property would enhance in value to him faster by letting it take its own course until 1915, but the offers made by the Prudential were so inviting that after many weeks of consultation the deal was finally closed.

The Prudential Land and Bonding company is to build the new theater and office building, according to P. Fuller & Co., one of the largest distributors of paints, oils and glass in the West, who have a deal pending with a group of Oakland bankers, including J. F. Carlson, president of the Central Savings Bank. According to the present arrangements, the building is to be erected on the site formerly occupied by the First Presbyterian Church, at Fourteenth and Webster streets.

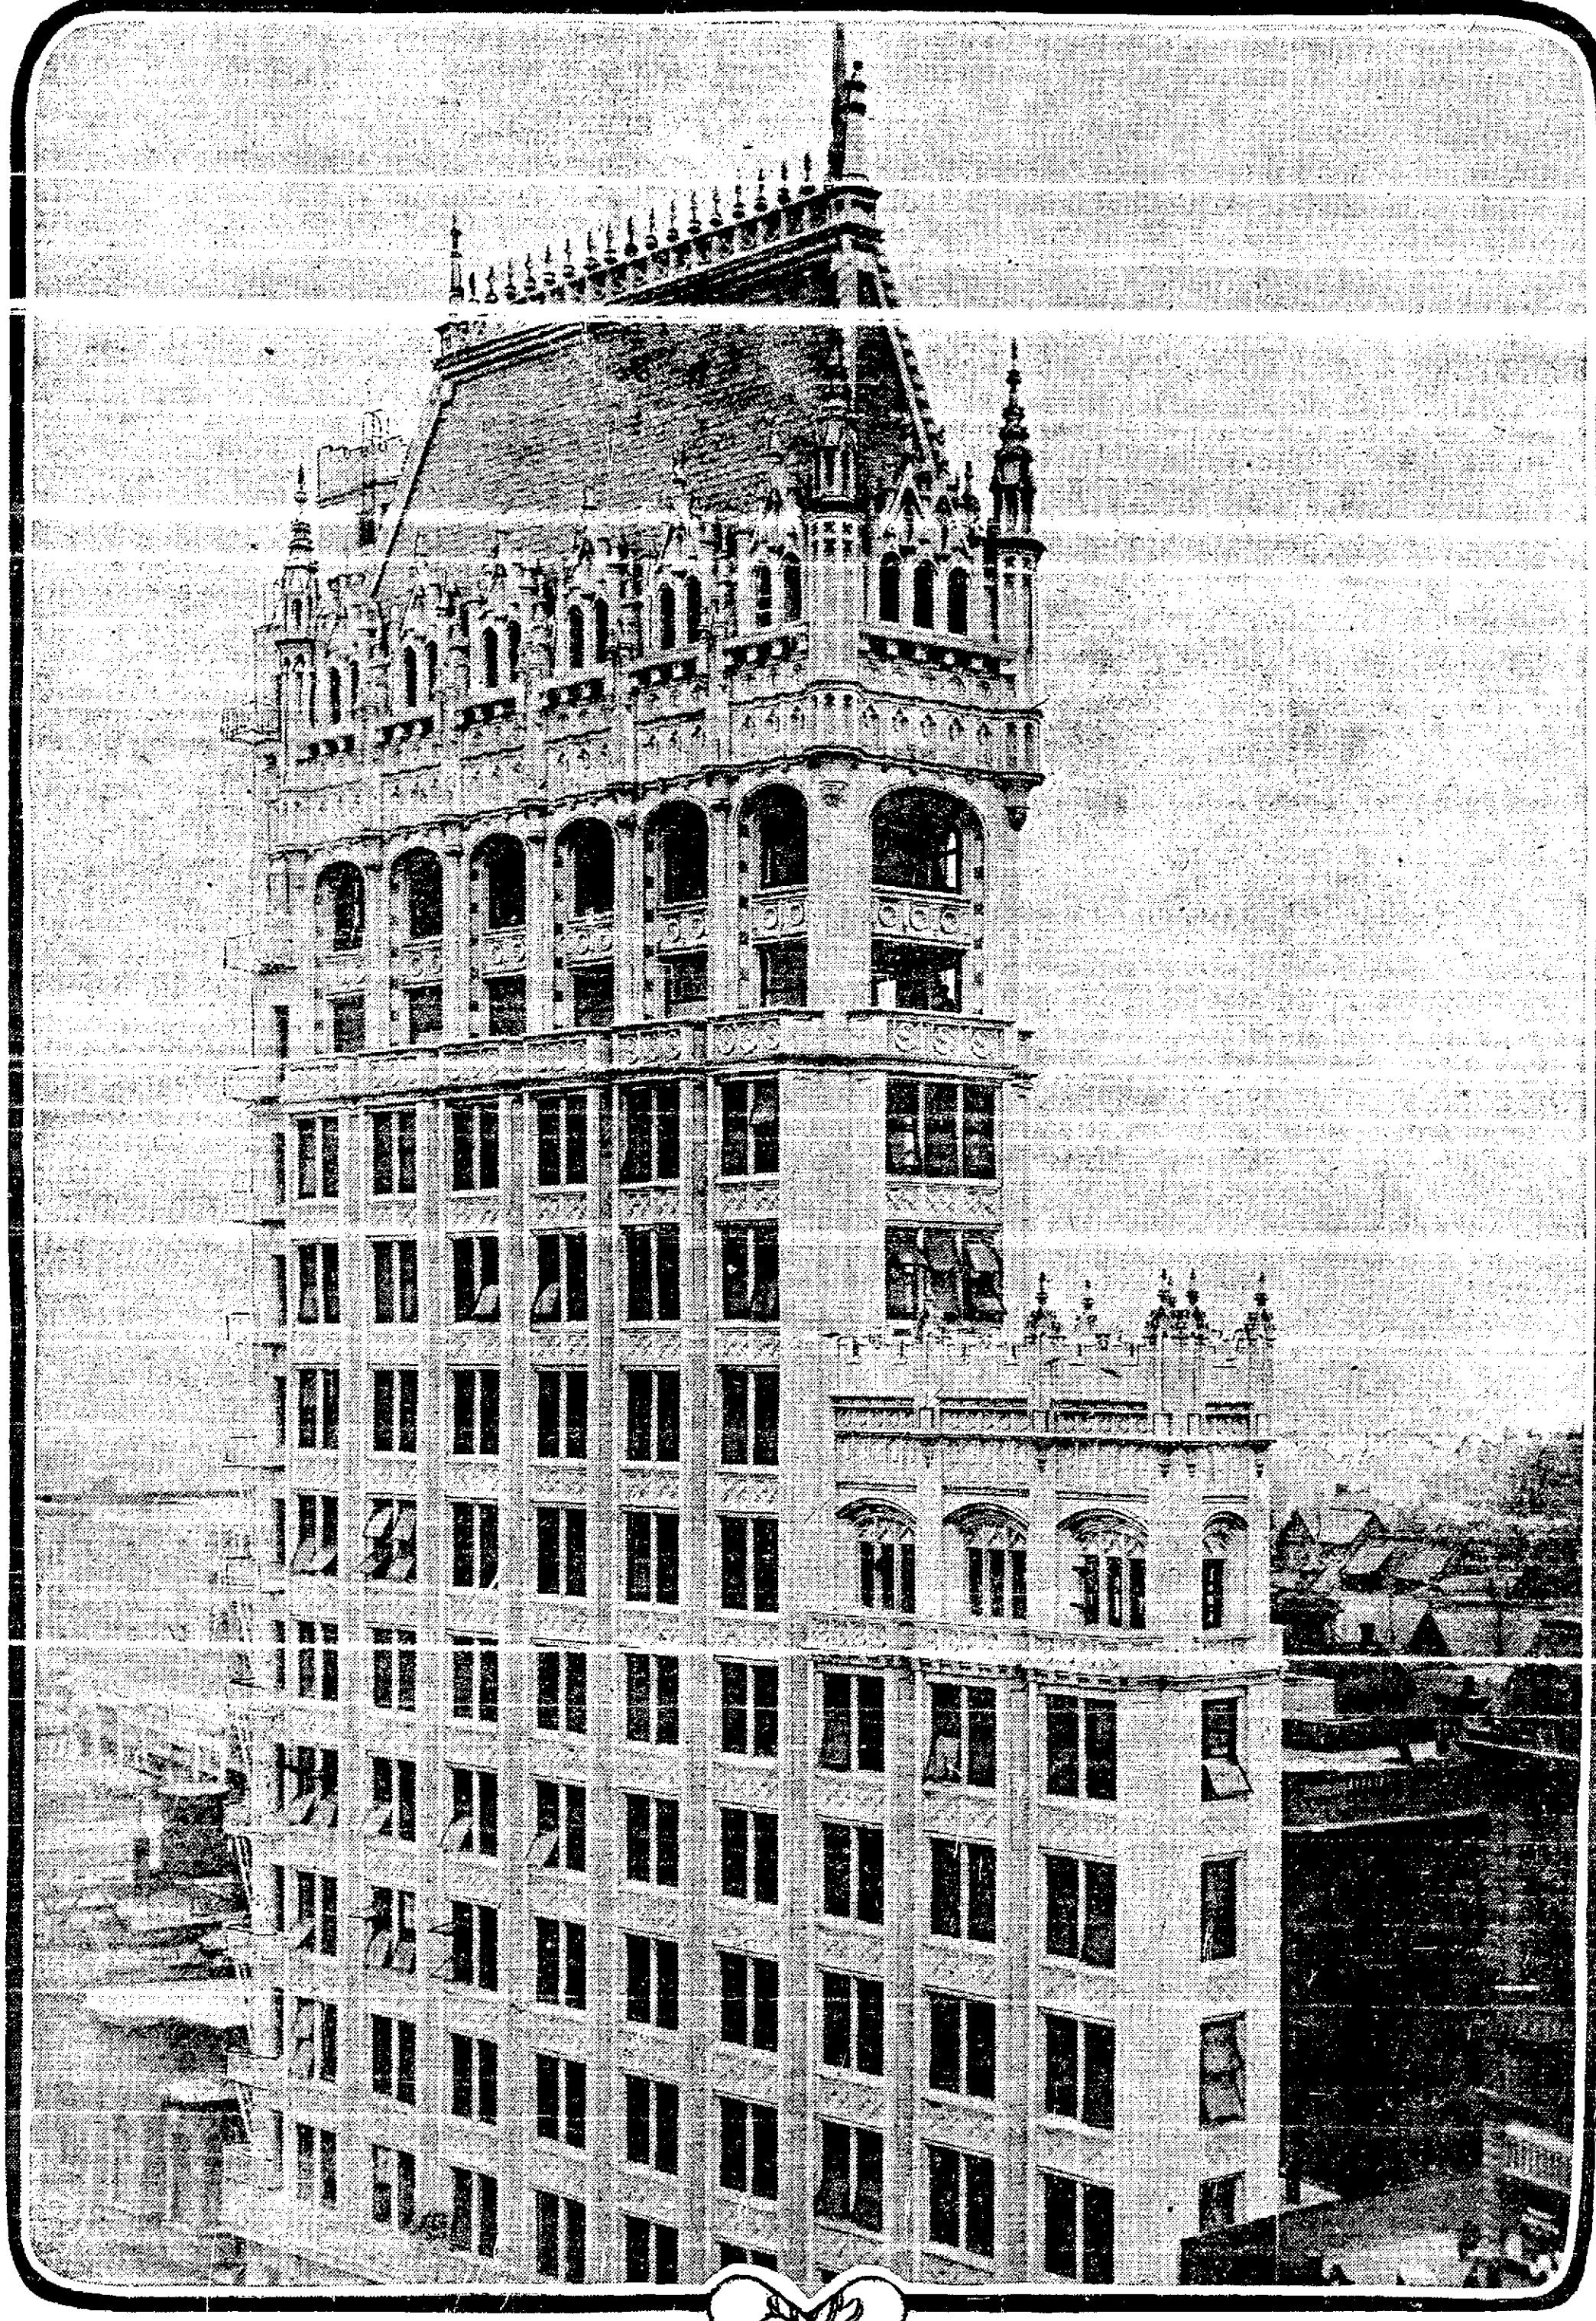

Toler Heights is immediately adjacent to the Western Pacific terminal, and is connected by full spur and switch track facilities. It is probable that an additional $10,000 will be spent in installing the theater and office building, with full ventilating and heating systems and adjoining the tower. The entrance, which is to occupy the corner of the building, is to be artistic and impressive, while modern stores are to be placed on either side of the entrance.

The construction is to be begun immediately on the completion of the plans, and every measure will be taken to have the structure near completion by the opening of the exposition.

Experts declare that the formation of

New Federal Realty Building, Which Has Completed the "Oakland Canyon," As Its Lines of Tall Buildings Are Called. The Structure Is, Architecturally One of the Most Elaborate in the City.

NEW BUILDING AND THEATER IS PLANNED

Is Harbor Busy? Yes! Watch Drawbridges, and Count Vessels

"The drawbridge is the gauge to the harbor's business."

So declare the bridge tenders at the Webster street bridge, and they have ample proof this week of shipping activities on the contrary. Last week and this week every bridge tender was worked to the full limit, and one man declares that twenty minutes was the longest rest he had from his machinery. In two days of this week 57 large and medium vessels passed the bridge, in some cases even halting street car traffic and deranging time schedules.

The site is immediately adjacent to the Western Pacific terminal, and is connected by full spur and switch track facilities.

The theater is to be one of the largest and most complete in the West, with full ventilating and heating systems and adjoining the tower. The entrance, which is to occupy the corner of the building, is to be artistic and impressive, while modern stores are to be placed on either side of the entrance.

The construction is to be begun immediately on the completion of the plans, and every measure will be taken to have the structure near completion by the opening of the exposition.

Experts declare that the formation of the "canyon" view, and that it also assures a solid and lasting foundation which will make it one of the finest highways in the state.

Not only will the new road prove a boon to the autoists of Oakland and Alameda county, but it will be the means of bringing thousands of tourists from the south to Oakland who have previously gone by other routes.

Experts declare that the formation of

'CANYON' NOW COMPLETE; MAY BE ON CITY SEAL

Oakland's "Canyon" has been completed, according to realty men. The view of the tall buildings from Fifteenth street south on Broadway has for some time past been known by that name, the view suggesting two steep cliffs of a gorge. The one empty space in it was the gore of Telegraph avenue and Broadway, where the Federal Realty Building now rises.

The structure, erected by the Federal Realty Company, A. J. Snyder, Oakland architect, and W. C. Johnson, engineer, is to be the most ornate in the city, a remarkable addition to the city's architecture.

According to the city planning experts, as soon as the apartment houses in the lake district and about the action near the business section, and it is for this reason that traffic arrangements and street design should be settled now. It is interesting to note, according to commercial organization leaders, that the prediction is already well on its way toward fulfillment.

Several other new buildings have also risen since the Federal building was started. This structure is one of the most ornate in the city, a remarkable addition to the city's architecture.

WOMAN OCCUPIES PULPIT.
GLOUCESTER, N. J., Aug. 29.—While the women of the air will be the war horses of the future, Capt. Brutus, an automatic United States Navy machine gun service, predicted that their machines will do little damage. They will be used almost solely for reconnaissance work, he said today. Their chief service will be in the fact that they can scout the ocean for mines or bombs and not penetrate them. "But," he said, "they will be particularly destructive. Their chief effectiveness in the big war in Europe will be to create consternation in groups of hidden soldiers. The death rate among an air force will be among the highest."

TRAIN KILLS THREE CHILDREN.
GLASSBORO, N. J., Aug. 29.—Mrs. Parker, Park of Spokane, Wash., has accepted a call to speak at the Parked church here when they attempted to drive across the tracks of the West Jersey & Eastern railroad.

Harry Homon, 15 years old, was driving his sister Harriet, 11, and Harriet Latkin, 8, to town, and failed to observe the approaching train.

HARBOR WILL SEE BIG BOOM

Details of Increase in Activity Shown by Manager

Rapid progress in the work of W. W. Keith, the new city harbor manager, as reported unofficially in his first informal reports, bespeaks, according to realty and financial experts, one of the most important developments in the history of the city, and furthermore, show better than any previous indication, the high regard in which this city's opportunities are held by the men whose business is the world's commerce.

"My first tables of tonnage, in reports dealing with freight shipped to Oakland since I took the office," declared Keith "will, I believe, prove a surprise to the community. It certainly did to me. Oakland is recognized by the shipper as one of the greatest markets in the state, and the demand for harbor space to bring in goods is greater than I realized, even in several years of work in traffic matters and in commercial organizations. While acting for the Commercial Club in number of matters, and while having the opportunity to call myself of the facts gathered by the Harbor Development Committee of that body, I realized all that Oakland's harbor was in the future to be a great market place, and I realized that a great demand would exist and a great influx of shipping would come. I did not, however, realize how soon in the future until I took charge of this office and learned of the remarkable tonnage figures which I will shortly make public. I cannot at the present time, because I have not yet tabulated them, and I would hesitate to estimate on such a matter, for only the accurate figure is of value to the business man."

Along with the discovery of Oakland's tonnage as an indication of the present big water front business has come also indication of one of the biggest demands for harbor sites for factories that has ever been seen in Oakland. The tendency of investors to choose reality for investment purposes has much to do with this and the fact that an actual development of the waterfront is seen and an actual demand by factory men is now known to exist has made such investors anxious to secure, if possible, suitable harbor sites as the best means of speculation. The remainder of the demand—and by no means the smallest part—is from the factory men themselves. Weekly news is coming of more factories locating in the city, some large and others small.

MANY INQUIRIES.

"I have a file of letters of inquiry on my desk," declared Keith, "many of them from big factory men who mean business. The assurance of the city council that streets will be arranged to care for any tenant on city water front property has proved an important factor in my work, removing the last possible hindrance to the location of factories or warehouses on this land. I believe that the program of harbor administration as laid out by the city government is to exceed all expectations, and I believe that this period of progress that will mean the building of one of the greatest of water fronts is on hand now."

Another indication of the activity on the water front came this week with the demand for the opening of Twelfth avenue to the estuary, that merchants and shippers must have a roadway to the estuary ships. Heretofore small supplies have been taken out to ships from this point in boats, and little there save the different packing fleets in care of watchmen. A new activity, however, has come, according to the property men and merchants at this point, and the shippers are clamoring for communication with East Oakland through this point. The proximity of the railroad tracks is another factor in the matter and several plans for factories are under way, contingent on proper street accommodations at this point or some other in its neighborhood. The council has placed the matter for two weeks in the hands of citizens' committees and interested property holders for a settlement of what the street shall be and how it shall be placed. The building of the street to the bulkhead lines will mean a fit, say engineer, and will give work to a large force of men while the improvement is being completed.

In the meantime one of the most important works the city's harbor department is engaged in is in connection with the bringing of several big steamship lines into Oakland. These arrangements are still only partially made. The Harbor Manager Keith declares that a short time will probably see the matter ready for announcement. The coming of these lines will mean several warehouses, and probably one factory in the neighborhood. City property will be utilized for these at least in part, it is estimated.

QUAY WALL WORK.
This week saw more available space on the quay wall, where gradually the city dredger and workmen are improving the space to be used for berthing ships. The principal difficulty encountered is in the removal of old piles, which have to be "grubbed" up. This has, according to Commissioner Harry S. Anderson, delayed work considerably.

Reports from City Wharfinger M. J. Masterson indicate an improved condition in shipping over the municipal wharf. The city's receipts will this month, according to present indications, total considerably more than last.

"This is simply another indication of increased activity on the harbor," declared Masterson. "It is not a large matter in itself—more of a straw to show how the wind is blowing; and as such is useful."

AIRMEN AS SCOUTS.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—While the women of the air will be the war horses of the future, Capt. Brutus, an automatic United States Navy machine gun service, predicted that their machines will do little damage. They will be used almost solely for reconnaissance work, he said today. Their chief service will be in the fact that they can scout the ocean for mines or bombs and not penetrate them. "But," he said, "they will be particularly destructive. Their chief effectiveness in the big war in Europe will be to create consternation in groups of hidden soldiers. The death rate among an air force will be among the highest."

PLAN PARADE ON PROPOSED ROAD

NEW MILLIONAIRES' ROW DRIVE HOMES WONDERFUL

VIEW OF SEVERAL OF THE NOTED RESIDENCES ALONG THE HIGHLAND DRIVE, WHICH IT IS DECLARED, HAS MORE VALUABLE HOMES THAN ANY OTHER ROADWAY IN CALIFORNIA.

Highland drive, Oakland's scenic roadway through Oakland, Piedmont, and on to the University of California, is California's newest "Millionaire's row." According to realty experts it has more valuable residences fronting it and near it than any other roadway of the same kind in California. The roadway, which is connected by great cement pillars, is made by connecting certain streets into a continuous chain from the Hotel Oakland to Northbrae.

ARGUES IN SUPPORT OF 'OAKLAND AMENDMENT'

W. E. Gibson Answers Criticism of Plan, as Recently Issued by Its Opponents

Pointing out that San Francisco and Los Angeles have abandoned the first constitutional amendment proposition, under which Oakland's integrity would have been jeopardized, for the so-called "Oakland amendment," which will permit San Francisco to expand down the peninsula and will permit the extensions desired by Los Angeles, W. E. Gibson, former president of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce, has issued an answer to arguments against the "Oakland amendment" as recently issued by opponents to the plans, and has also issued an answer to the old "San Francisco amendment."

The Oakland amendment, placed on the ballot after heroic work by Oakland boosters in gaining signatures, is now haled by both San Francisco and Los Angeles as their choice, and the compromise has been practically assured. Gibson's criticism against the "San Francisco amendment" is as follows:

"The so-called San Francisco amendment of section 8½ of article XI of the Constitution of the State of California should be defeated, because:

"Since filing the initiative petition with the Secretary of State, the Supervisors of San Francisco county have passed resolutions rejecting or abandoning their amendment and supporting what is now known as the "Oakland amendment," practically as originally proposed by the representatives of Los Angeles. The city of Los Angeles through its City Council and commercial organizations have also concurred in the Oakland amendment as a substitute, which is submitted to the voters of the State for their approval.

"Both San Francisco and Los Angeles have joined in support of the Oakland amendment because it is fair and just to all sections of the State, as it permits Los Angeles to form a consolidated city and county government and enables San Francisco to expand down the peninsula, which is manifestly just and logical. It also permits other cities having a population of 50,000 or more to form combined city and county governments.

ABANDONED BY SAN FRANCISCO.

"The fact that San Francisco has abandoned the amendment proposed jointly by that city and Los Angeles, and has agreed to support the Oakland substitute, leaves little to be said in argument against the original amendment. The Oakland substitute amendment was shaped to meet the conditions applicable to all three of the cities and at the same time to allow San Francisco all that it claimed to want, the right to extend down the peninsula by taking in territory that was originally a part of the city and county organized, which territory, with portions from Santa Cruz county, became a part of the cisco bay for the purpose of annexing the choicest portions of the counties on the east and on the north. It permits San Francisco to expand down the peninsula, along logical and natural lines, and where such expansion is apparently desired, but it prevents any such expansion across the natural barrier of San Francisco bay, an expansion which, if permitted, would in time make San Francisco in California what New York city is in New York State, the dominant factor in the political and official life of the entire State.

"The proposed amendment should be adopted because it permits the normal and beneficial formation and expansion of combined city and county governments, and prevents the abnormal and detrimental expansion of such governments.

CITIES AS ONE.

"After careful investigation the Chamber of Commerce and the public officials of Los Angeles and of San Francisco have abandoned their support of the so-called 175,000 population amendment—the amendment that would permit San Francisco to expand down the peninsula and would permit other cities besides San Francisco and Los Angeles to form city and county governments, and have joined with the other cities throughout the State in asking that this proposed constitutional amendment be adopted."

MAY LOSE JOBS

SAN DIEGO. Aug. 29.—Whether San Diego has a larger municipal payroll this year than last will be ascertained by Councilman Adams, chairman of the finance committee of the Council. This committee, appointed recently, is to ascertain where expenses can be cut. The examination of the payrolls for the two years will be the first work of the committee, according to Adams.

He has called on the auditor to furnish the data. It is considered likely that the committee will recommend that the force in most of the departments be reduced if it is found by the comparison of payrolls that total for salaries for this year is much in excess of that for 1913.

WOMEN ARE FATIGUED
GRASS VALLEY. Aug. 29.—The extension of the election hours from twelve to thirteen, the writing in of names of county committeemen, and the length of the ballot caused the officials to put in what is termed a long shift by the miners, who served on the election board. It was nearly noon in some of the precincts having 300 and more votes before the results were announced. The women on the election board were fatigued and many of them have no desire to repeat the experience, even for the ten large dollars allowed by the supervisors for the work.

LOSSES LAND CONTEST
ELDEN. Aug. 29.—Dr. P. E. Wellington of Chico, who contested the homestead of Mrs. Susan Belden of Elden on the ground that it was mineral in character, has lost on his appeal to the secretary of the interior, who affirms the filing made by Mrs. Belden's husband many years ago.

The decision of the Sacramento land office upheld the homestead. This decision was reversed by the land commissioners and the case was then carried to the secretary of the interior on appeal.

The formation of combined city and county governments does away with unnecessary duplication in the creation and filling of public offices and in the doing of public business. When taxes are levied upon the same piece of property to raise money with which to pay a city official and a county official for performing the same or a similar public service, such taxes are unnecessarily burdensome.

Formation of combined city and county governments eliminates this double taxation, without depriving the communities concerned of either city or county governments.

A further reason for adopting this proposed amendment is that it puts a stamp of disapproval upon all attempts of San Francisco to cross San François and California Avenue. Any who has a garden or is interested in one will find that this Department is planned for the benefit of her special benefit. Look for it in the

LAKE TAHOE TOUR STARTS THIS WEEK

Automobile road map of the Aetna Springs trip, compiled by the Automobile Department of THE TRIBUNE from the data secured off the speedometer of a Buick Six car, which was driven over this road for the purpose of securing this data for the readers of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE Outing Section. ### AETNA SPRINGS IS AN IDEAL DRIVE

No Grades and No Toll on This Ideal Route Mapped

(By EDMUND CRINNION.)

A tour that from every standpoint should be well among the most popular automobile trips out of Oakland is mapped today by the Automobile Department of THE TRIBUNE from data secured off the speedometer of a Buick Six equipped with Goodyear tires which was driven over the roads between Oakland and Aetna Springs for the purpose of securing this information for the readers of today's Outing Section.

The Aetna Springs tour is an ideal one from every standpoint. It is an easy drive to make even for the new beginner. The roads are fine. The grades—well there are none. Any one that can drive a car as far as Martinez can easily drive to Aetna Springs. The roads between here and Martinez are mountain roads compared to the balance of the trip, and yet the Aetna Springs road takes the motorists into the very heart of the mountains, but always in between them.

Another feature of this Aetna Springs road is the fact that it is the most direct road into Lake county with practically no grades as far as Middletown and with no toll road features. It sure is a find and the Automobile Department of THE TRIBUNE is very much pleased to tell local motor car owners about it and also to recommend it as a good road, in fact almost a boulevard all the way to Aetna Springs and from there to Middletown, a mountain road with all that no heavy climbing is necessary.

On account of the mileage being marked on the map herewith published in the Aetna Springs tour, there is no necessity without taking up valuable space going over the same ground by printing a log of this tour. It is one of the easiest tours to follow from the map that we have ever measured for the public.

There are many possibilities for those following this road. First one and for a place for an outing this resort can hardly be surpassed. Also those driving on through Lake county can take advantage of this road, stop over at Aetna for lunch or better yet for the night, and then go on through Middletown and make the circuit of the larger resorts in lower Lake county including Harbins, Adams, Sieglers, Andersons, Hobergs and Howards and then to Kelseyville and Highland Springs and out over the Pieta-Toll road to Pieta and Cloverdale and back home again via way of Santa Rosa. Or if one desires to make the swing by Upper Lakes and back by way of Hopland and over the new state highway from Hopland to Santa Rosa, it can easily be done. But by all means take a drive soon over this Aetna Springs road.

Turn to right at Rutherford, 66.5 miles from Oakland City Hall, by way of the Tunnel Road to Martinez. There is but little chance to get on the wrong road after that if one follows the accompanying map.

WILLYS TRUCK ON WILLYS TRUCK ON YOSEMITE ROADS

"Probably one of the most difficult tests ever given a commercial vehicle was handed one of our 3.4 ton Willys Utility trucks last week when William Barcroft of Merced undertook to show Ed. Webb of the same town what a 'real truck' would do on the road to Yosemite Valley," says J. T. Barnes of climb. From the summit into the Valley it is a severe descent, grades running very like pieces for brick走在。

"After arriving at the Valley the truck made the return trip through the Big Meadows, going over grades of twenty percent.

"Barcroft advises us that the entire trip was made with absolutely no trouble and without adding a drop of water to the radiator notwithstanding that there was considerable overload.

"It is needless to say that Webb placed his order for a Willys Utility truck to do regular passenger service with a prospect of several more in the near future."

LONG TRIP MADE.
Averaging over 150 miles per day Mr.

traveled across the continent this summer in their Franklin roadster. Their route led them through San Francisco, Salt Lake City, Denver, Kansas City, St. Louis and Buffalo.

Their actual time on the road in going 4400 miles was 24 days. From Los Angeles to St. Louis they carried with them a third passenger. When they arrived at the Franklin factory in Syracuse the same air was in three of the tires that was in when they left Los Angeles. One tire was punctured twice by nails.

TAHOE TOUR IS BIG AUTO RUN OF YEAR

1915 Models to Tackle Mountain Highway in Contest

(By EDMUND CRINNION.)

Judging from the interest already shown in the big 1914 Lake Tahoe Endurance tour, which leaves this city Saturday, September 5, the event will be one of the largest in the history of automobile runs on the coast.

The entries already pledged include the majority of the new 1915 models and the public will have an excellent opportunity to judge the mechanical merits of the new cars when the big event ends at Tahoe Tavern on Sunday.

Many private car owners have made preparations to join in the tour taking advantage of the arrangements made for accommodations for the participants.

The car owners will have every opportunity to enjoy the outing and the speed will be tolerated.

Also, participants will be started at 10-minute intervals from Auburn to Tahoe, so that to dust will mar the pleasure of the occupants of cars following.

With so many competent men in charge of cars in the contest division, no private owner, no matter how inexperienced in mechanical matters, will have cause to worry over his car giving trouble. In this matter a special ruling is made that no car may be entered unless it is in running order and informed that his company is not wanted for this will not in any way or manner be a contest for speed. The plan carried out will be for an endurance and social run, pure and simple. Contesting cars will be awarded perfect scores only on the basis of mechanical examination at the end of the tour, and they will not be allowed to drive faster than the ordinary tourist would on similar road conditions.

DODGE BROS.' MAXWELL MACHINE ON YOSEMITE TOUR

HARRISON COMPANY GETS COVETED LINE IN THIS TERRITORY

Official announcement is made by Dodge Brothers, Detroit, of the selection of the H. O. Harrison Co. to handle the forthcoming Dodge Brothers' car in San Francisco and vicinity.

The rivalry on the part of dealers to represent this new car has been intense, not only in San Francisco and Oakland, but throughout the country—as high as 30 applications having been received from various parts of the country.

Dodge Brothers are widely known in the automobile industry as the largest manufacturers of parts in the world. It is stated on good authority that they have supplied the vital parts to over 800,000 of the 1,250,000 cars now in use in this country.

Because of their tremendous manufacturing facilities, their high financial standing and their wide experience in the manufacture of parts, it is generally conceded that the car they will market this fall will set a new standard in automobile values.

Their car has been called the "Car of Mystery" because of the fact that no word has been given out as to price, dimensions or equipment. In spite of this fact, the reputation of Dodge Brothers is such that the best dealers throughout the country are taking on the line, "because," as Harrison says, "it is inconceivable that a concern of the character of Dodge Brothers should manufacture a car that would not play a very large part in establishing automobile values for the future."

Dodge Brothers are fortunate in securing such representative dealers in the H. O. Harrison Co. The success of the new car in the hands of the H. O. Harrison Co. is assured.

While traveling through Alabama a young salesman was one day forced to dine at a farmhouse. Not being very well satisfied with his meal of cornbread and bacon, he asked if he might have a glass of milk.

"Leave Wawona early (the entrance hours in which a motorist may pass into the valley are from 6 to 8 a. m.) the twenty-six miles which lie between Wawona and the floor of the valley may be easily made in the time allowed by the rules and ample time be found to enjoy all of the sights there. Gasoline here will cost the motorist forty cents

Wawona Road Followed by the Nobby Tread Tire Crew, in Sierra.

Probably no route in California is better adapted to bring out all that there is in a car than that from San Francisco to Yosemite National Park. The following account of a trip just completed by J. W. Crawford, of the Maxwell Motor Car Company, and Milton Garrett, of the Arthur Spanning Company will be read with interest, therefore. Garrett says:

"In a Maxwell '15' loaned me by George Pearson, head of the Pearson Motor Car Company, local distributor of the Maxwell cars, we left San Francisco early Saturday morning, says Crawford, and took the usual route through the San Joaquin valley to Merced where we stopped over night.

From Merced we traveled west via Wawona, passing Le Grand, Dickinson's and Watt's warehouses and through the fields to Raymond, where we struck the main road from Madera to Wawona. At Dickinson's warehouse the road makes a sharp divergence from the railroad tracks, and as it is not marked, care must be exercised or the traveler may go astray. The road, after much divergence, finally leads back to the tracks and crosses them at Watt's warehouse, where the road turns abruptly to the East and leads across the fields, finally coming out at Raymond.

While dusty, the road is hard and smooth and good time may be made.

"After leaving Merced the price of gasoline and oil will be found to advance and at Raymond it will cost thirty cents per gallon. From Raymond the stage road is followed, and will be found in very good condition for a mountain road, with no steep grades or deep sand.

At Miami Lodge lunch may be obtained and it is but a short distance to the Mariposa Grove of Big Trees, which may be seen and Wawona reached in time for an early dinner. There is a fee of $2.50 charged by the Government for permission to visit the Big Trees and a toll fee of $1.50 for passing in to the Yosemite valley over the Wawona road.

"Leaving Wawona early (the entrance hours in which a motorist may pass into the valley are from 6 to 8 a. m.) the twenty-six miles which lie between Wawona and the floor of the valley may be easily made in the time allowed by the rules and ample time be found to enjoy all of the sights there. ### KISSEL KAR SALESMEN ATTEND CONVENTION

The Oakland house of the Pacific Kissel Kar branch was the scene last week of an unique convention—what one would call a get-together meeting of salesmen from both the San Francisco and Oakland organizations.

The salesmen compared selling experiences and the good points of the new Kissel Kars and in general spent an evening in an entertaining and instructive manner. Mary Miller was in attendance to customers to get the utmost benefit of their cars were related.

W. L. Hutchison, president of the company, addressed the boys present telling of the phenomenal growth of the company and how the success of the company was due to the principles upon which the business was conducted.

Hutchison also impressed the salesmen with the necessity of carrying out his principles in every deal made. Among those present were:

Peter Healey, vice-president and general manager of the Oakland branch; Ben Hammond, manager of the Oakland house, and the following Oak land salesmen: J. R. Brown, N. Scotcher; George Miller, J. C. Clark, H. V. Jacobs, W. W. Lard, P. E. Sittman, H. F. Noda.

GOODYEAR WRITES ABOUT TIRE COST

Rubber Markets Will Soon Be Normal, According to Officials.

Knowing that the public is interested in the market conditions of all raw and finished products which might be affected by the war, we take pleasure in quoting a letter received from the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, which is of particular interest in face of the widespread speculation as to the effect European and marine conditions will have on rubber prices.

"In view of the agitation about advances in prices of various commodities, it will doubtless be interesting to you to have the clear facts as to the situation in the automobile industry.

"As you know, the United States produces no crude rubber, all of this material being imported. At the commencement of the European war, medium for transmitting payment to Europe and other countries.

From San Francisco the following salesmen attended the convention:

In addition to this, it was impossible to secure ships in which to transport rubber from the foreign ports to the U. S. and States.

In the face of this condition, such crude rubber as was on hand in the United States, immediately suffered a rapid increase in price. Just before war was declared crude rubber was selling around 20 cents in the New York market. New York is the chief market for crude rubber and it rose to $1.00 per pound and even reached a higher figure than this later on. In other words, crude rubber rose in price over 100 percent in a few days and such purchases during the first month of the war were compelled to make during the interval were made at greatly advanced prices.

"These advanced prices on raw materials resulted temporary increases in the retail price of tires and these increased prices were reflected in the shortage of rubber available and the high prices of the crude material continued. Fortunately, Europe's exchange was very soon re-established and assurances were made that vessels would be available for the shipment of rubber from the various foreign ports where rubber is accumulated.

"The result of this re-opening of commerce was to make available additional supplies of rubber at approximately the same price and as soon as the shipping difficulties were removed, immediately made the announcement that we would give our which we are able to make on account of the present cost of crude rubber.

"So far as the tire business is concerned, the advanced prices made

Tires at Before-War Prices

Yet We Never Got Choicer Rubber
We Never Built Better Tires

There exists now a new reason—most compelling—for buying Goodyear Tires. It results from war conditions.

These leading tires—built of extra-fine rubber, in the same way as always—are selling today at June prices.

Due to Quick Action

Early in August—when war began—the world's rubber markets seemed suddenly closed to us. Rubber prices doubled almost over night.

Men could see no way to pay for rubber abroad, and no way to bring it in. We, like others—in that panic—were forced to higher prices. But we have since gone back to prices we charged before the war, and this is how we did it:

We had men in London and Singapore when the war broke out. The larger part of the world's rubber supply comes through there. We cable them to buy up the pick of the rubber. They bought—before the advance—1,500,000 pounds of the finest rubber there.

Nearly all this is now on the way to us. And it means practically all of the extra-grade rubber obtainable abroad.

Today we have our own men in Colombo, Singapore and Para. Those are the world's chief sources of rubber. So we are pretty well assured of a constant supply, and our pick of the best that's produced.

We were first on the ground. We were quickest in action. As a result we shall soon have in storage an almost record supply of this extra grade of rubber. And we paid about June prices.

Now Inferior Grades Cost Double

About the only crude rubber available now for many makers is inferior. In ordinary times, the best tire makers refuse it. Much of it had been rejected. But that "off rubber" now sells for much more than we paid for the best. The results are these:

Tire prices in general are far in advance of Goodyear. And many tire makers, short of supplies, will be forced to use second-grade rubber.

Be Careful Now

In Goodyears we pledge you the same-grade tire as always. And that grade won for Goodyear the top place in Tiredom—the largest sale in the world.

And, for the time being, our prices are the same as before the war. We shall try to keep them there.

We accept no excessive orders, but dealers will be kept supplied. And we charge them, until further notice, only ante-bellum prices.

THE ARTISTIC NEW STUDEBAKER HOME OF THE MATHEWSON MOTOR COMPANY, IN THE UPPER BROADWAY AUTO ROW. THE NEW BUILDING IS ALREADY OPEN TO THE TRADE.

STUDEBAKER IN NEW BROADWAY HOME

Better Accommodations for Owners From New Arrangement

The Studebaker home in Oakland has moved. For years this famous line of motor cars was distributed from the big store at the corner of Twelfth and Jackson streets, but no longer will the old place be known as the Studebaker corner. From today on the line of Studebaker cars will be housed and distributed from their attractive new home in the upper Broadway auto row near Twentieth street.

The old location was good, in fact any location would be good with a line like the Studebaker as an attraction for motorists. But in keeping with the new car the local dealer E. Linn Mathewson decided a better arrangement and more artistic home was needed. So he secured the place.

The new Studebaker home in the upper Broadway auto row will prove one of the best Studebaker owners to be proud of. It is well arranged for the handling of new cars and also has better facilities for the giving of service to all.

Besides the new building in Broadway Mathewson has secured the adjoining 50x foot frontage which will be enclosed and roofed over for the quick accommodation of owners requiring small adjustments made. This novel feature will do away with the necessity of Studebaker owners having their cars sent to the shops to await turns with jobs of longer duration. While this will be a new and novel feature in the handling of automobiles in this territory, still there is no doubt but what it will immediately prove popular and it is surprising that it was not thought of before.

E. Linn Mathewson has his full line of 1915 models in the new store and in order to accommodate those who have been unable to see the new line during the past couple of days on account of the moving operations of the company, Mathewson will keep the new home open all day.

The Studebaker line this year is a most popular one and in Alameda county the demand is quite keen. On the first shipment of these cars for the coast Oakland and trade look more than did three other large cities combined. Mathewson has increased his contract for 1915 models and even at that states that he expects the demand will find him unable to supply it before the season is over.

KISSEL OWNER IS GOOD CAR BOOSTER

So many motorists are driving to the Atlantic coast this summer, and so many more are contemplating the trip, that the experiences of those who have gone before are of general interest. C. L. Woodward of Minneapolis adds a cheerful chapter in the following letter:

"From the time we left Buffalo we arrived in Dresden Mills, we drove several hundred and fifty miles per day without a mishap of any kind. We encountered numerous bad hills, but I am glad to state that we did not have to shift a gear except when stopping in towns and villages.

"There was one day that we drove from Lee, Mass. to Newburyport, Mass., a distance of one hundred and seventy-five miles. The car worked fine, and when we reached Newburyport, Mass.

"At Gardner, Me., where the Kissel has established an agency, I demonstrated our car to one of their prospective buyers and he was so pleased and astonished at the performance, that I feel certain they will close the deal some time this week. I have gone over some pretty bad roads here, and have astonished the people by climbing hills and going over places that they said were impossible."

GEAR SHIFTING HARD ON TIRES

Fisk Tire Dealer Gives Some Valuable Hints to Autoists.

"Speaking in general the shifting of gears is the most expensive operation in handling a motor car in figuring the cost of upkeep," says Sales Manager R. L. Sergeant of the Fisk Rubber Company.

"For tires are wasted through the improper handling of gears than practically through any other operation of an automobile."

"The proper time to shift from low into intermediate is when the car has assumed a speed equal to the speed ratio of the intermediate gear. This means that when the engine assumes work on the intermediate gear upon the release of the clutch there will be no acceleration of speed until the gas throttle is advanced.

"The result is that something has to move under this increased power delivered to the rear tire. These tires take up the strain and spin causing an unnecessary wear that each time is equal to between 50 and 100 miles of travel.

"A driver should always remember to first retard his gas, throttle and change gears at the earliest opportunity without causing a strain on the motor to increase the momentum."

gears that is, they allow their car to assume a speed greater than the minimum of the next gear to be taken without first retarding the gas throttle. The result is that when the next gear is in mesh the engine takes hold under a gas supply that was sufficient for the gear left but too great for the gear just engaged.

BATAVIA TIRES

Q Batavia tires are quality tires, built in a modern factory by men who know how. Batavia tires weigh from 3 to 8 pounds more than any other tire.

Have Not Advanced in Price

Q We built Batavia tires and tubes first, and then figured the cost. Our users are getting from eight thousand to ten thousand miles on a set of our tires, which proves that they are right.

Guaranteed for 4,500 Miles

Q This guarantee is based on your speedometer, not by someone who has not used the tire or seen what it has done.

Q If Batavia tires do not give the guaranteed mileage, we will make a cash or tire adjustment. Thus you will not have a lot of money tied up in tires that you are not using.

Batavia Users Are Batavia Boosters

Q There is not a dissatisfied user of Batavia tires any place on the Pacific coast that we know of, and we are the people that would know if our customers were not satisfied.

Q Batavia nine-ply red tube is the strongest tube on the market.

JEFFERY QUAD IS MAKING GOOD HERE

The Jeffery Quad which made such a splendid showing in the government tests along the Mexican border in Texas is repeating itself in California. Its latest operations showing its great worth has just been reported by Frank Fageol, local dealer of the Jeffery cars. Fageol says:

"The latest operation of the Quad is over a haul of 119-10 miles from the Big Basin country to the wharf at Pigeon Point lighthouse. The firm of Sexton & Trotter are hauling railroad ties and tan bark to the latter point for shipment.

"The haul is over grades which range from five to twenty-five per cent through dust from six to eight inches deep and a climb from sea level over the mountains 3300 feet high.

"The haul is over a two ton load and hauls a trailer which packs another five ton. Four trips a day were made the first day I rode via the Quad to watch its operations.

"It was impossible to ascertain how quick the distance could be covered on account of the trailer which was an ordinary truck, the axle bearings of which did not permit of a faster speed than six miles per hour. With the new trailers especially built for such work which will shortly arrive from the factory greater service will be obtained.

"Of all the tests that we have made up to the present time none of them have shown the success of the Quad under such varied conditions as demanded by the mountain roads as seen in the haul from the Big Basin to Pigeon Point.

"Time and again the Quad was driven through dust and heavy going which could not have been negotiated successfully or efficiently by the ordinary truck even without the trailer.

"The first day's work was interesting, but the second 8 hour shift on the following day became monotonous for the reason that knowing the capacity of the trailer the Quad was speeded up to six miles per hour on the speedometer and then sent along down hill, up hill, over the steepest grades and through the heaviest dust covered roads it was the same gait and one did not realize from the action of the Quad whether it was hauling the seven ton load or running track empty."

DON LEE SIGNS UP FOR PAIGE AGENCY

Cadillac Dealer Is to Handle Paige Cars in California

An announcement of the utmost interest to the motor trade and the public was made public in the news sent out by the Paige Motor Car Company of Detroit that Don Lee, the California distributor for the Cadillac, had taken the Paige line for the State. The first shipment of 1915 cars has been received and the new model is now in use.

This puts Don Lee in a position to supply the motor car buyer with machines from less than a thousand dollars to the most luxurious of Cadillac lines.

This also means an extensive policy of expansion, as it will enable the Don Lee organization to be extended to the smallest of California towns. The work of establishing agencies will start at once and wherever practical the same agent will handle both the Paige and Cadillac. A definite announcement regarding the Paige has not been made, but it is freely predicted by those in the know that it will revolutionize the high grade motor car industry.

Don Lee stayed for the Paige only after the most thorough investigation. He went to Detroit and spent six weeks in studying the proposition. On account of his extensive state organization Lee was sought by many of the leading manufacturers. He considered the men behind the cars and the class of machines and after running a Paige car for several weeks decided upon that as the best of the light car field.

The factory policy also had a great deal to do with Don Lee's decision. He had carried out certain policies of service in connection with the Cadillac that he wished to incorporate in his Paige policy. He found the factory only too willing to co-operate with him in this line and in the opening announcement Lee states that Don Lee service will be given Paige cars that same as has been done with Cadillacs.

The first shipment of 1915 Paige cars consisted of the Model 25, a five passenger touring car to be sold here for $1800. This car is modern in every particular. It has a stream line body and crowned fenders. The top is a drop-top, a roomy, packed comfortable seat, easily holding three people. The front compartment is also roomy with individual cushions and wide doors. The front can be entered from either side, having a left hand drive. The front doors swing back and have ventilating flaps which enables them to be kept partly open in warm weather. The entire wheel is placed at a comfortable, easy angle.

Paige motors are built in the Paige factory, one of the largest and best equipped plants in this country. No company gives its products a more severe test than the Paige. The motor is of the D-horse type, having a four-limb bore and five inch stroke.

The cylinders are made of gray iron and cast in bloc to secure rigidity. They are all bored at one operation to assure perfect alignment after seasoning; for weeks are then reamed to prevent warping and ground to a glass like surface. The intake and exhaust manifolds are bolted to the cylinders and shaped to allow free access and exit of gases and accessibility of valve and tappet adjustments. The crank case is of aluminum with special shaped ribs to obtain greatest strength with lightest weight.

Valves have two-inch iron heads welded on carbon steel stems. This construction eliminates all danger of warping and ground to a glass like surface. The long connecting rods, together with the fact that the cylinders are offset from the center of the crank shaft in the direction of rotation greatly reduces side thrust and consequent wear on the cylinder walls. This construction insures smoothness, quietness and maximum power from every stroke.

THE BUICK MODEL C-25, EQUIPPED WITH GOODYEAR TIRES, AT THE FINISH OF ITS RECORD-BREAKING RUN FROM SAN FRANCISCO TO SEATTLE. IN THE CAR ARE E. E. GROSS, C. A. McGEE OF SAN FRANCISCO, HOWARD BRANCH AND FRED FORBES OF THE PORTLAND BUICK HOUSE.

RECORD TRIP MADE TO NORTHERN CITY

Buick Pilots Tell of Having Broken All Records on Long Trip.

All existing records were broken and new ones established, when a little Model C-25, five-passenger Buick touring car, fully equipped in every detail, and covered by the dust and dirt of the three Pacific Coast States, drove up to the Northwest Buick Company's Seattle office and checked in at 4:45 p. m., August 22, just 52 hours and 15 minutes after leaving San Francisco.

In the car were Fred E. Gross and Claude A. McGee of the Howard Automobile Company, San Francisco, Pacific Coast distributors of Buick cars, and Fred V. Forbes of the Portland Branch of the Howard Automobile Company.

In addition to establishing an elapsed time record from San Francisco to Seattle, the Buick and its crew lowered the San Francisco-Portland elapsed time record one hour and twenty-five minutes.

The best time ever before made between San Francisco and Portland was made last September by the same drivers in a small 1913 Buick roadster, in 40 hours and 50 minutes. This lowered the existing record more than 18 hours.

It was predicted at the time, by those who were familiar with road conditions, that the Buick record of 40 hours and 50 minutes, would stand for some time.

It has stood for 11 months, and it is a coincidence that it should be lowered by the same crew and by a 1915 Buick touring car of the same horsepower.

In speaking of the road conditions, and the trip general, Gross and McGee, who were with the car the entire distance, gave the following interesting account of what is without doubt one of the hardest tests ever given an automobile:

"We were checked out at the foot of Market street, San Francisco, at 12:30 p. m., Thursday, August 20, by three members of the San Francisco press, and were on our way at once.

"Dunsmuir, 217.02 miles out, was passed at 4:05 Friday morning, and the California-Oregon State line, 339 miles from San Francisco, was crossed at 7:20 a. m.

"At Grants Pass, 455.02 miles out, we were met by Edgar C. Alcock of the Kissel Kar branch in Portland.

"Alcock acted as pilot and relief driver into Portland.

"Good time was made from Grants Pass to Roseburg through the famous Cow Creek canyon, and we arrived at the latter place, 530½ miles out, at 2:20 p. m.

"Engle, 600.69 miles out, was reached at 7:15 p. m. —

"We had expected to make good time between Eugene and Portland, but owing to construction work being done, we were unable to follow our regular route, and for that reason became hopelessly lost, and finally arrived in Portland, 765.03 miles out, at 7:55 a. m.

"After a few minutes stop we continued on to Seattle.

"The little Buick was equipped with Goodyear no-rim-cut tires, and they are certainly entitled to a lot of credit for the way they stood up under the awful treatment we gave them.

"We were both familiar with road conditions in California and Oregon and for that reason had six spare tires available at different points, should we need them. "Much to our surprise, we had only one puncture. Three of the original tires were on the car when we arrived in Seattle, and in spite of their hard trip, they showed very little wear.

"We were particularly thankful for absence of tire trouble, not only on account of the time and labor consumed in making tire changes, but on account of the fact that we ran over a big rattlesnake with both the right wheels on the Siskiyou mountains, and having read of people being poisoned by a broken piece of fang, we would not have relished the job of changing one of those tires at that time.

"Strange to say, our only puncture was a big staple in the right rear tire, but as the car had run some 600 miles since the rattlesnake episode, we had no fear of the snakebite.

"One of the largest motor car deals to be closed in the West during the present season has just been closed by Sales Manager Fred Hauger of the Haynes Auto Sales Company with the Belknap-Spears Motor Company of Los Angeles for the handling of the famous Haynes car lines in the territory of Southern California and Arizona.

Hauger is now in Los Angeles, attending to the final details of the big deal.

The signing up of the Belknap-Spears Motor Company for the Haynes Agency in Southern California will come as a big surprise to many. It is asserted that the Belknap-Spears organization will continue to handle the Lozier line in the southern part of the State.

A California Sunday-school teacher has invented a map which flashes an electric light whenever a pupil touches a place which he is told to find with a pointer.

to the sharp competition that has always marked the selling of motor cars on the Pacific coast and especially in San Francisco.

The latest and most important following the assumption of the control of sales of the Oakland Motor Car interests on the Pacific coast by R. H. Roberts comes the announcement by Roberts of the appointment of Calvin C. Eib as manager of the San Fran. Division branch.

Eib, who is one of the oldest members of the automobile trade in San Francisco, made his initial appearance with the old Locomobile Company of the Pacific in 1901 and was one of those who called the first automobile company off the rail in the fall of that year and later became identified with the Pioneer Automobile Company until its dissolution this spring.

Eib is familiar with every angle of the local automobile industry. The success of the companies with which he has been connected is due to his executive ability and stamps him as one of the leaders in handling the sale of motor cars.

Eib, in speaking of his latest move says: "When those who owned the Pioneer Automobile Company decided to withdraw from the trade and devote more time to the other commercial interests, I received a most flattering offer to join other interests in this city. I appreciate the fact that the automobile business today is far different than when I first joined it. While salesmanship is the most prominent factor in obtaining profitable results yet what you sell to the customer have quality and be standard in construction. The buying public has ceased to overlook deficiency which heretofore has been excused on the grounds of the experimental stage of manufacturing.

I am thoroughly investigating every offer that is made and thoroughly considering the popular demands of the day.

I decided to join the Oakland interests for in looking over the new Oakland feels that I will handle a car that will be more honest built than the new

Oakland. Therefore in joining this company I feel that I will carry out the lines on which I have worked since joining the local trade."

Many automobile men—well informed judges of motor car values—have used these very words in describing the new Paige "36" for 1915.

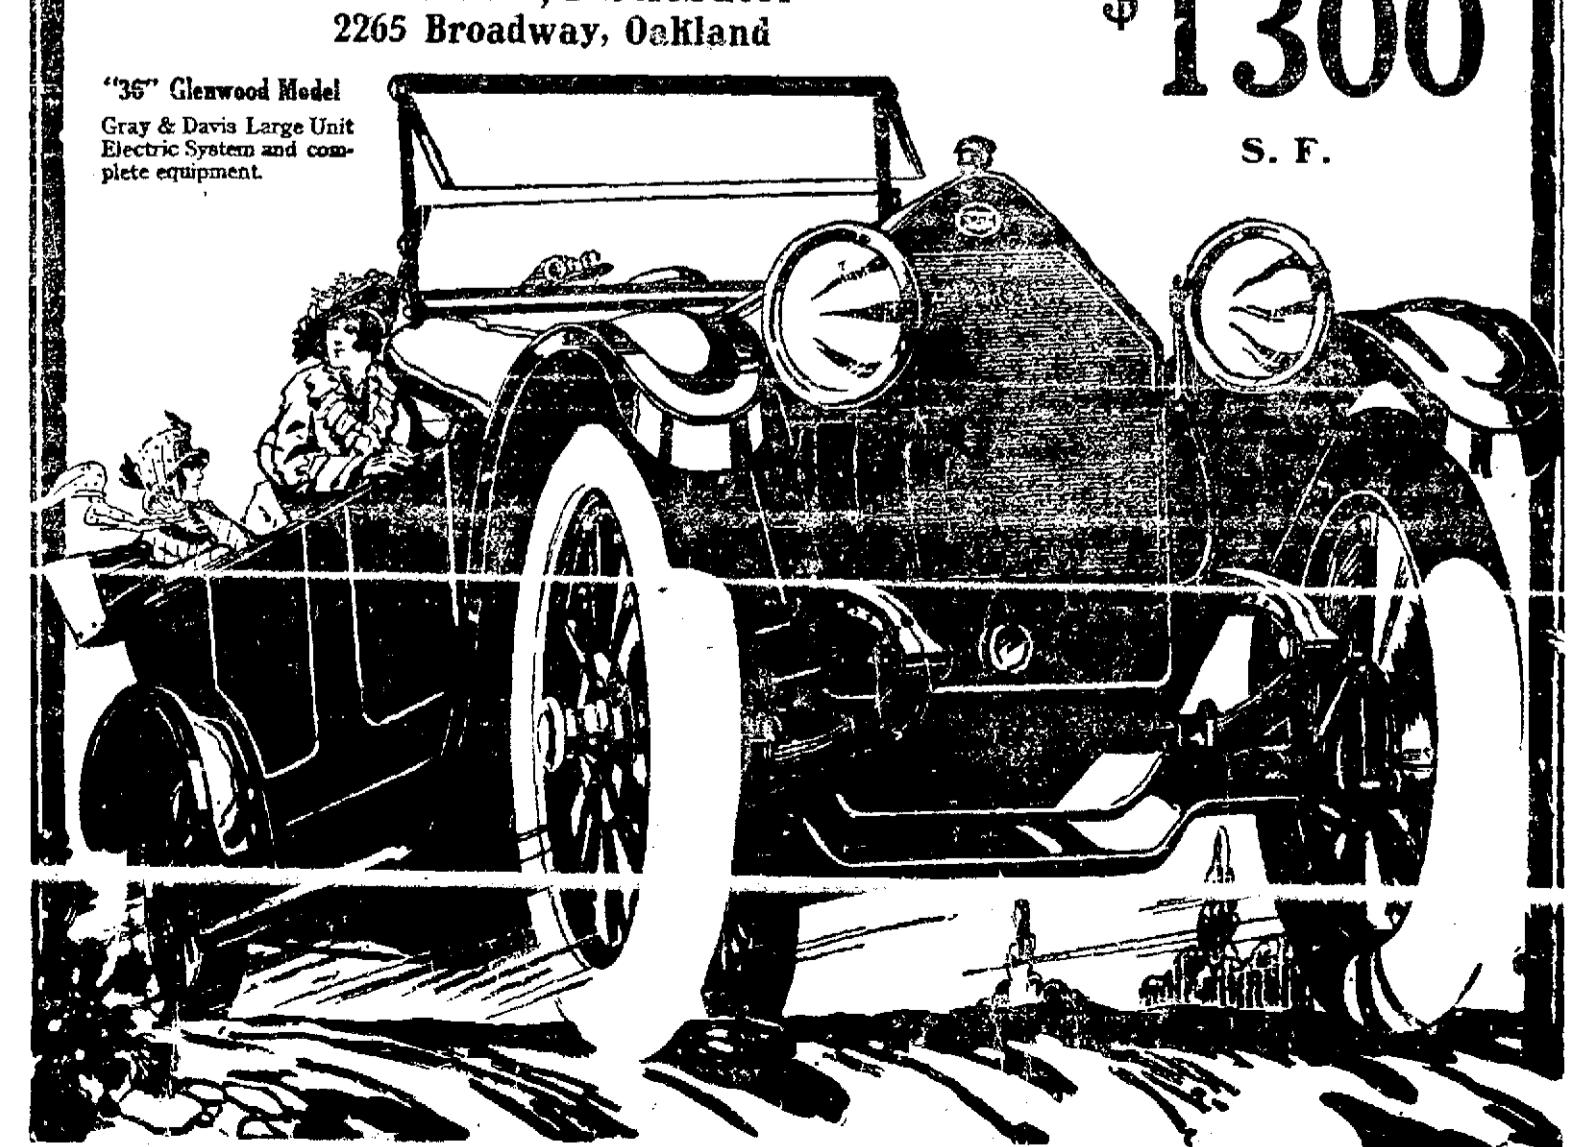

They have carefully examined this car from every possible angle and it is their unanimous decision that there is no car in America which offers so much for the money.

If you stop to consider the matter for a moment, you will realize that this is quite the most satisfactory form of praise which can be bestowed upon any automobile.

To offer the greatest value for the money means that Paige cars are the soundest investment in the automobile market. To offer the most value for the

Stoll - Strugnell Company Opens Branch in Oakland

Another new but apparently strong factor in the business at Oakland has entered this field in the Stoll-Strugnell Company with the distributing rights for the Batavia tires.

The new firm, which has already strongly entrenched itself in the San Francisco field, has opened a branch house in Oakland in the Twelfth street auto row and with an announcement in this issue of THE TRIBUNE starts its campaign for a goodly share of the tire business here.

The Batavia tires are well known on the coast and are among the better grades of tires, according to F. H. Davis, manager of the new Oakland branch house. One of the principle features of the new tires is the security tread design on its non-skid casing. This tread has the non-skid feature built in the tire and according to Davis this principle has big advantages in that, while it is a non-skid also, it does not retard car speeds as the tire revolves on an even surface at all times. The company is also making a feature of the red tubes built by the Batavia tire factory, which is located in Batavia, New York.

In talking of the new tire the Davis says:

"The Batavia 'Security' Tread is so designed that by means of sharp and frequent grooves, even slight slips are immediately wiped clear and dry enough to afford proper forward traction and prevent skidding to the side. It does not retard the speed of the car because of suction the solid center strip of rubber on the tread affording a continual bearing surface, while each indentation presents sharp right angle edges in maintaining a direct forward travel car."

On sandy or muddy roads or snow-covered streets these depressions are deep enough to catch the soil and hold across the tire just as the cross-section of a grip chain.

THE BATAVIA TIRE.

The materials used in their construction are the very best, both as to rubber and fabric—only the highest grade of Sea Island Duck and finest Up-River Para Rubber is used. Combined with this the most modern machinery and skilled workmen, and you have the "Batavia Tire"—with one exception. You, no doubt, have seen a great many advertisements regarding over-size tires and the great stress laid upon this fact by certain companies. We want to state right here that ever since the Batavia Tire was built they have been over-size, and they will weigh today anywhere from three to eight pounds more than corresponding sizes of most other makes. They are built honest all the way through. We have built up our reputation due to our quality, and we mean to maintain it.

PACKARD DRIVER IS HERE FROM OHIO

Carrying out the principals of the saying, "See America First," H. E. Sanderson of Columbus, Ohio, accompanied by his family has just completed a transcontinental tour in a Packard car entirely equipped with United States "Nobby Tread" tires, which he says has seen one long 4,000 miles by road, and which has been the source of more travel entertainment and adventure than usually falls to the lot of the ordinary man.

Starting July 15 from the Ohio city, the Sanderson party have been on the road ever since visiting all the principal cities on the line of the route in Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Colorado, Nevada and California. From the great American plains country to the snow-covered reaches of the Rocky Mountains and the Sierra Nevada, they traveled, visiting many out-of-the-way places, to see the wonderful scenery en route and getting a splendid impression of the country and its roads in many states.

"There is nothing in the world like taking this kind of a trip to get an idea of one's country," said Sanderson in telling of his experiences, and I would advise every man who can afford the time and money to take a far to take several months or even a year off to sight-see.

"We left Columbus, Ohio, on July 15 and have been on the road ever since, passing right through the middle of the country to San Francisco, and during all this journeying, though we have had numerous adventures, and some exciting ones too, still there has never been a day during which we did not feel that the trip is one of the finest experiences of our lives."

"Whenever we were traveling on the Lincoln Highway, we found it the best road in the territory, but after we drove off the main roads into out-of-the-way places to see some particular stretch of mountain scenery, or other interesting bits of country, and then the roads we encountered were in many cases very poor. Our Packard and its complete equipment of "Nobby Tread" tires certainly stood up under the severe tests we subjected them to."

"Going through the Rocky Mountains our tires were given a severe trial of their wearing and reliability qualities, and I am glad to say that as far as I am concerned 'Nobby Tread' tires are good enough for me to motor over any and all kinds of roads."

Sanderson and his party will go from here to Los Angeles and then back to the city again, where they will probably stay for several months.

HINTS TO OWNERS BY AN OVERLAND MAN

"Experience has taught us that you cannot teach a new owner of a motor car, especially if it be his first car to properly operate it through teaching or through lessons in driving given by an expert on the road," says J. T. Barnes of J. W. Leavitt & Company coast distributor for the Overland cars.

"You have to go further: you have to give memorandums or instructions that can be carried away by the new purchaser and mentally digested by him at some other time. Even then we have found it necessary to from time to time check him up on his errors in handling his car."

"Now that the new 1915 models are being delivered we would like to suggest to Overland users that in starting out their cars on the level or slightly down the hill that they start in the first speed, get the car well under motion and then change directly into the third speed, thereby not troubling to go through the second speed gear. The change from the first to the third gear is very easily accomplished and it saves the trouble of shifting into the second gear or bringing it up—if the operator is unskillful."

"We would suggest that the clutch brake be drawn back from the clutch so that the brake operates but very little. There is little need for the clutch brake, except to stop the clutch from spinning when going into first speed from neutral position. After that in changing from first to third, or third to second, it is not desirable to have the clutch stop spinning. Therefore, as suggested have this brake operate but very slightly."

"After the gears are shifted into place, they are held there by a gear shift lock, the adjustment of which is on the forward right hand side of the transmission case."

FIRESTONE TELLS OF RUBBER COSTS

States Scarcity of Ships Is Re- sponsible for Raise in Prices.

In an interview with H. S. Firestone, president Firestone Tire & Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio, regarding the present crude rubber situation, quite a few interesting bits of information were given out. Firestone says:

"There are two facts: Over 60 per cent of the crude rubber comes from the Far East, via the Red Sea and the Mediterranean. No such ships are now available through these seas now, and we don't know when they will start, surely not for a while. Shippers could divert the shipments via the Pacific Ocean to our western coast, but that would require time and we have no way of knowing when such a course is under advisement."

"London, of course, has always been the transfer point, but the high grade rubber in stock there would not supply the American market for more than a week."

"A sharp turn of war conditions may quickly relieve the present tie-up of navigation and permit crude rubber shipments to reach us, but right now the situation is serious. Just to be an optimist, I might tell you that the crisis is over, but I don't believe anything but you and I know about it.

It needs no deep analysis or exhaustive investigation to size up the crude rubber situation. Everything is on the surface and everybody who reads the war news knows as much as the rubber experts do. The price of rubber when regular shipments will again start.

Rittler Has Words of Praise for Tribune and Advice to Runners

(By OTTO RITTLER.)

THE OAKLAND TRIBUNE is deserving of the greatest measure of praise for the encouragement it is giving amateur athletics. With climate so favorable and amateur so abundant, it is greatly to be wondered at that some such activity in Oakland amateur athletics was not begun before THE TRIBUNE inaugurated it last year. THE TRIBUNE has proven itself a live paper in undertaking such a movement in the athletic line—a move which will make for clean, healthy sport in this city.

Oakland in its time has had the best long-distance runners on the coast, but in the last few years they have been competing under the patronage of White such conditions are deplorable, it is reasonable to be expected that races such as THE TRIBUNE is holding will develop plenty of new material for future sports—champions who will hold up the fame of Oakland as former runners did whom I handled. Among these former bright lights were such men as Jeff Hassard, record holder of the famous Dicea race; Robert Howden, twice winner of the ten-mile state fair races and many other events; W. Howden, famous time-prize winner in Dicea race; Louis Day, C. Stewart, C. Walters, L. Manning, P. Noble and H. Welsh, middle distance runners; Robert Vlught, who will be an entrant in THE TRIBUNE's race this year, and Mason Hartwell, who ran in splendid races under the colors of the Olympic club. From the foregoing the younger boys of Oakland can readily see that it is up to them to keep up the good work done by those before them. No man is what he is capable of doing as a runner until he has gotten into shape and tried his best, and that is the only course to be recommended. This TRIBUNE Lake Merritt modified Marathon is one which any boy can run if he has the right amount of pep in him. As for prizes, every athlete who finishes within the liberal time limit of one hour gets a silver bar. Three silver bars bring a gold bar. This in itself should be encouragement, although there are valuable medals offered for the first fifteen runners to finish and these are within the grasp of all competitors.

Before concluding I would like to give the runners a few words on training:

Go to bed early, say between 9 and 10 p. m. Arise between 6 and 7 a. m.

Do not drink intoxicating liquors or smoke.

Do a little gymnasium work or sitting-up exercises in the morning and do your running in the afternoon.

Do not attempt to run the full distance every day, but only once a week at the most.

During the rest of the week practice for speed.

Keep your feet in good shape. This is very important. Leather running shoes are best, as the rubber soles keep the feet warm and soft. Take a rub-down after training to keep the muscles soft and pliable.

After training faithfully the confidence in yourself will grow, and that is the one thing you must have on the day of the race. Nerve alone will enable you to plug and plug and plug until you have finished, and possibly won, the race.

A large crowd will journey to the Oakland Tennis Club today for the purpose of witnessing the finals of the class championships singles tournament of the Oakland Tennis Club, which will be completed this morning upon the club's courts in East Oakland. The remaining eight players in the tournament are fast and capable of dishing up a lively brand of tennis.

Edward A. Klein and Reuben Gay Hunt will compete in the finals for the first class honors, while in the second class semi-finals a great struggle for supremacy will take place with Ralph E. Parr opposing Raymond S. Jones and J. D. Van Becker competing against Nelson G. Welburn for the privilege of playing in the finals against the winner of the Jones-Parr match. David Caig and William E. Milwain will fight it out in the finals for the third class championship title.

The local situation has changed very little in the last month or so, and the entries of the two new teams in the persons of Winthrop Branchfield and Elmer G. Sharp and Paul Faulkner and Raymond Johnson. It is hardly possible that the entrance of these two teams in the tournament can in any way change the prognostications as already made, excepting the probable winners of this event.

The Alameda Tennis club is diligently at work making the final arrangements for the staging of this much looked for event, and the following committee have been duly appointed to attend to all the details:

Tournament committee, Edward W. Kearney, Eddie M. Ogle, Nelson G. Welburn, Charles Schneider, Winthrop Branchfield and Robert Sherhart; reception committee, Duncan C. Stevenson and the members of the Alameda Tennis club.

The various tennis combinations are surely as incidentally revealing the signs that will start them into action. Each player is imbued with the winning spirit, which has caused him to heartily assure his friends that he is capable of turning the trick.

WHERE IS KITTY GORDON? LOST IN THE WAR ZONE

Last Heard of Actress in London With Her Husband

"Our own Kitty Gordon" is lost in the war zone.

This is the latest news from the front and it is expected to cause much consternation in this state where the fair owner of the "million dollar back" is a great favorite, both socially and as a theatrical star.

When last heard from the beautiful Kitty Gordon was in London preparing to go to Paris to acquire some of the latest fashion models in which to startle her devoted public next season. With her was her husband, Harry Beresford, and her two prize Pomeranian dogs.

Now it is feared that Beresford has been ordered to the front with his regiment—he is captain in one of the British regiments—and that Miss Gordon is in Paris or Vienna, alone and unprotected.

Miss Gordon is due to open a season's engagement at the Palace theater in New York in two weeks, and the managers are in the depths of despair for fear the charming English star will not make her appearance on this side in time to grace the vaudeville bill.

Miss Gordon and her husband were spending the summer in London when the war broke out. Their return to America was scheduled to take place this week, but no news of any kind has been received from them and great anxiety is felt by New York producers.

COMMISSION HEARS OF SUHR'S ABUSE

Attorney of Convicted Man Gives Details of Alleged Brutal Treatment.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 29.—Private detectives mistreated Fred Suhr, who is under sentence for second degree murder in connection with the Wheatland riots of last year in an effort to obtain a confession from him, R. M. Royce, his attorney, declared today, before the Federal Industrial Relations Commission.

"Suhr first was arrested in Arizona, and then thrown into a box car and held over night," he said.

"He was taken thence to Los Angeles, Fresno and San Francisco, being lodged in a hotel under detective guards in the latter city.

"When Suhr retired a detective, armed with a loaded revolver, sat at the foot of the bed and talked to him all night.

"From San Francisco Suhr was taken to the Alameda county jail where he was kept for three days. He told me he was placed in a cage cell and when he tried to lie on a bed and sleep the bed clothing was pulled off him by a detective.

When he attempted to sleep on the floor he was poked with rolls of paper. If he leaned against the side of the cage his guards would pound on the bars. Frequently he was awakened and walked in the corridors of the jail. Finally, due to this treatment, he agreed to talk. He signed some sort of a statement. I asked him what he said and he told me he did not know, but it related to shooting."

Royce first interviewed Suhr in the Yuba City jail some time after he had signed the "confession." This was the first opportunity Suhr had to see counsel.

BRITISH STEAMERS TO RESUME OCEAN SERVICE

South American passenger service by British lines and passenger service to England and the continent by other big steamer lines is to proceed uninterrupted, despite the war, according to reports issued today by T. A. Riggan, local manager for several big companies, who has received wired notices that sailings will be practically uninterrupted. This, according to Riggan, assures all Oaklanders now in Europe, as well as all other Americans, a chance of safely reaching America.

The Lampert and Holt lines, plying between New York and South America, has notified Riggan that it considers travel on its lines safe, and that it will continue its service. The Canadian Pacific lines, the trans-Atlantic routes to England and other parts of Europe, will commence sailing at once. The lines will accept British, French, Belgian and Dutch subjects sailing for Europe and Americans both ways.

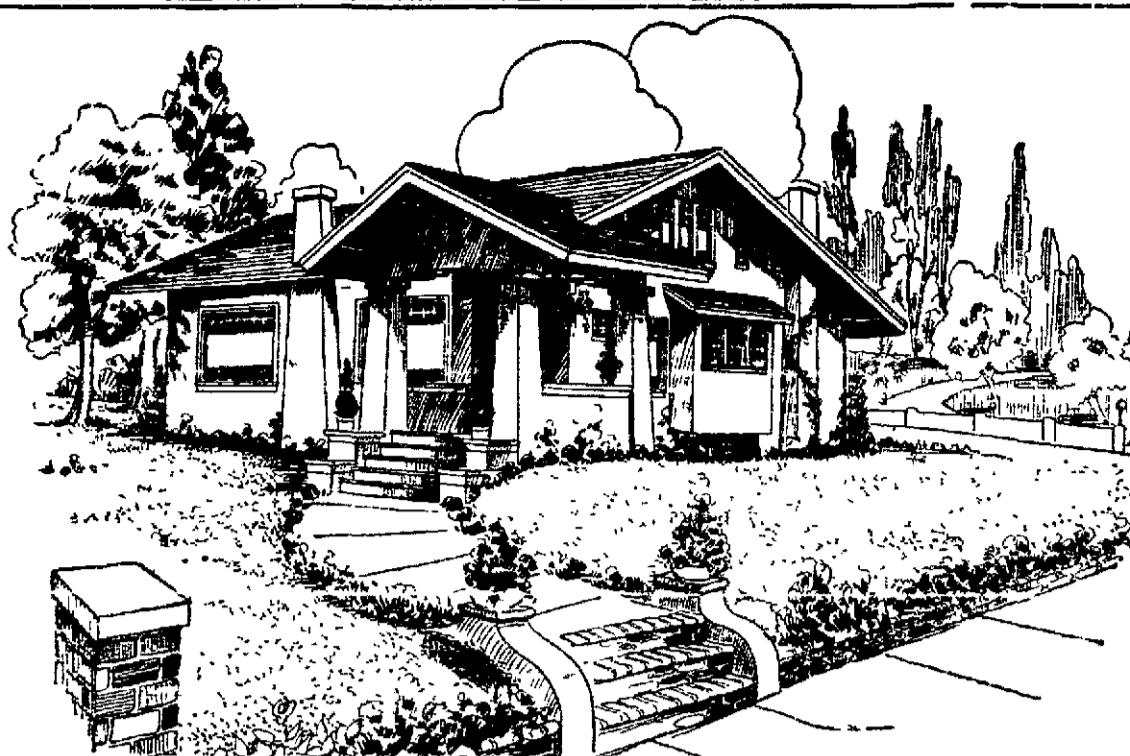

The White Star lines have also resumed service from Montreal, Boston, New York and Europe. The Mediterranean service from Boston to the Azores, Madeira Islands, Gibraltar, Algiers and Naples will also maintain service, according to notices received at Riggan's office as will the Greek lines from New York to Athens.

I have been before the American public for 25 years and built up the largest dental business in the world. The Ethical Dental Trust calls me a "quack" because I advertise and warn the people against the dangers of decayed teeth. ## Home Society Event to Be Held Next Tuesday

success is assured the benefit and party which is to be given for the Children's Home Society at the Twenty-seventh Annual Picnic, to be held on Sunday, Sept. 12, at the University of Berkeley. Already a great number of tickets have been sold, and upon these the chairman, Mrs. Hogan D. Cosby, is making arrangements, giving privileges at the tables unless they make their reservations with her at once.

Assisting Mrs. Cosby are the following: Mrs. E. J. Humphreys, Mrs.

D. H. Parks, Mrs. F. S. McCullough, Mrs.
P. Stoddard, Mrs. O. Donohu, Mrs.
H. J. McNulty, Mrs. William T. Phillips,
Mrs. Walter Percival, Mrs. Frank Elmer,
Mrs. C. E. Folger, Mrs. R. R. Johnson,
Mrs. C. E. Elmer, Mrs. A. W. Starnes,
Mrs. D. H. Sylvester, Mrs. Frank Belvel, Mrs. E. A. Blocklinger, Mrs. A. L.
Houle, Mrs. Bernice Taylor, and others.

Punch will be served during the afternoon by a score of young Berkeley girls, including Misses Pease, and others. Miss Elmer, Mrs. H. G. Osgood, the chairman, announced this afternoon that, so far as he has been able to ascertain, there is no one playing bridge who does not make reservations of later than Monday night. Those coming will be conveniently located.

So universal is the commendation of the splendid work of the Home Society, that dozens of people who do not know

one from another are taking tickets to help the worthy cause.

Home Society has given up its funds for the education of all children during the next three years and to watch over the welfare of the children and as all this work means that much money will be needed the women are anxious to have as large a number as possible to help, which is easily done among the 10,000 children during the few years of its existence. It does not drop its responsibility with the placing of the kiddies but continues through the succeeding years to see that the home-life is as ideal as possible.

The council hesitated to call the school district at this time in the hope that the real property in the outlying territory of Claremont, El Cerrito, and construction of new schools.

The council did not take action on the recommendation, nor attention is

sel of the South Pacific Coast Railways

Company that its bill, for which he had voted, was introduced, marked "Exhibit A" and made a part of this protest, and your attention is in particularly directed to the report in the action. That said grant is conditioned upon the city of Alameda making a grant to the city of Berkeley, and

quested to do so.

If the bonds are not issued or sold work

not prosecuted or completed, as above provided, then the lands conveyed by the act to the city are to revert to the State of California.

IMPROVEMENTS PROJECTED.

This city for a long time has been and now is the sole owner of a tract of real property, other than and independent of the islands above granted, said tract containing 6,727 acres and having a frontage of 1929 feet on the said tidal basin, and as such owner, objects to any change whatsoever of the pierhead line.

If the bonds are not issued or sold work

provided, then the lands conveyed by the act to the city are to revert to the State of California.

WOMAN AVIATOR VISITS.

ALAMEDA, Aug. 29.—Miss Mathilde

Moisant, noted for her achievements as an aviator, and who is the head of the big aviation school in New York, which is one of the gathering places of the fashionable world of the great metropolis, is hereunto annexed, marked "Exhibit C" and made a part hereof. The council is about to cause an election to be held for the purpose of voting the respective bonds on said sum. To alter the present pierhead line would not only servously embarrass the city in its efforts to comply with the provisions of said act but would inflict upon it permanent damage.

The city of Alameda, for a long time, through its harbor advisory board, has been endeavoring to carry out the provisions of said act of the legislature in the matter of granting leases to the occupants of the uplands abutting on its tidelands, not only along the section affected by the proposed changes of harbor lines, but also along the entire northern shore of the city including that portion from the Webster street bridge to and including the Alameda mole. Letters have been sent to all said occupants both on route to Salvador to Los Angeles, where another sister, Mrs. An-neal West, wife of Bertin West, attorney

and Miss Anna, Mrs. Elmer E. Johnson

N. S. G. W. Carnival to Have Original Idea for Parade.

VALLEJO, Aug. 29.—When Joseph Clavo, grand marshal of the Admission Day celebration, which is to be held in this city September 7th, 8th and 9th, heads the parade on California's Natal Day, he will lead one of the biggest parades ever held in the history of the Native Sons. In point of numbers it is apparent even at this time that it will exceed many similar parades. From the standpoint of the numbers of parlors participating it will surpass any previous efforts.

Preparations have been made to care and provide accommodations for this unprecedented number of visitors.

Interesting as the big Admission Day parade will be, the night parade of September 9th will surpass it. Not only will it embrace the element of great interest, but it will be exceedingly spectacular. The entire downtown section of Vallejo will be ablaze with lights. The parade will be made up of illuminated floats, both horse-drawn and self-propelled.

Interspersed between the various sections will be a parade of horrors which will be as thrilling, grawsome and frightful as it is possible to make it. In order to insure a real nerve-curdling feature in the horrors, advertisements with that object in view have been placed in the big dailies of the bay region.

Following the parade the city will resuscitate itself to a carnival of revelry which will last the entire night, punctuated in the earlier part of the evening by water fireworks on Vallejo bay.

SUSPECTED OF ARSON.

FRESNO, Aug. 29.—Upon suspicion of having attempted to destroy his home in order to collect the insurance, Jake Fritzler is being held while the police and fire officials make a thorough investigation of the fire that slightly damaged the Fritzler home late Wednesday night.

According to Assistant Fire Chiefs Bernkowitz and Norman, when they arrived they discovered that fires had been started in five different places in the little dwelling at A and Inv. streets. They claim rags saturated with coal oil were found in the attic, basement, living room and two bedrooms. The rags were afire, claim the fire officials, but the blaze had not made any headway, as there was no draft.

AUTO GOES OFF GRADE

RED BLUFF, Aug. 29.—E. J. Bergman, a lumber dealer of 112 Market street, San Francisco, and J. B. Graham of Santa Ana had a narrow escape from serious injury when Bergman's machine went off the grade on the Cottonwood road, ten miles north of this city. The machine turned over several times and was considerably damaged. Dick Kells, chauffeur, was painfully but not seriously hurt.

ECZEMA SPREAD ALL OVER CHILD'S BODY

Came on Face and Caused Disfigurement. Clothing Aggravated Trouble. Itching Burning Sensation. Could Not Sleep. Curicura Soap and Ointment Healed.

1177 Market St., Chehalis, Wash.—My little nephew was cross and cried and complained of itching. The eczema broke out with a rash, reddish looking. It spread until it was all over his body, and it caused on his face and caused disfigurement. His hands had to be tied to keep him from scratching. His clothing aggravated the trouble and made the breaking out worse. He was so covered with eruptions he didn't look natural. There was such an itching and burning sensation he could not sleep and kept someone with him continually. Weeks and months passed by and we had almost given up in despair.

One day I read about Curicura Soap and Ointment being good for eczema and all skin troubles. I sent for a free sample and immediately we discovered a change for the better. Before the sample came my wife was such a remarkable change that I bought a box of Curicura Soap and a box of Curicura Ointment. The eruptions were stopped.

Now by the time the Curicura Soap and Ointment were used up he was a well boy.

Mrs. J. L. Stevens, Aug. 4, 1914.

Curicura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the country. Send us a sample of soap with 32-p. Skin Analysis and free soap request. Address "Curicura, Dept. T., Boston."

San Bernardino, Aug. 29.—Mike Espinoza, wounded in a duel at Redlands Junction, which is said to have been the outcome of a feud resulting from the killing of two Mexicans for the affections of a young Mexican woman, died at the Loma Linda hospital. He was shot by Everett Martinez who claims that Espinoza to save the life of his father.

We contracted for 500 sets of these in order to get the lowest price. They were to be shipped 50 sets at a time. No Telephone orders sold—under advertised conditions only.
